Last night saw the week's biggest scoring in 5-pin circle when 26 teams of C.G.E. trundlers, 4 teams of Bankers and 8 full teams of City League bowlers rolled off at Duffus Academy. Charlie Low of the C.G.E. extended his streak of heavy hitting by cracking off the high total, 845. During the evening three others better the 800 mark, Jack Playford and Bob Clyde of the midnight C.G.E. group banged off 809 and 807, while young Elgin White of the Capitol Grill team in the City League had 308 and 301 singles to chalk up 808. Low's great performance included a 319 single and Clyde put a 303 game in his.

Nine men lined up in the 700 column: Fred Martin, Walter Firth and Tom Curvin walloped of 752, 709 and 707 counts for their City League teams. Alex Ferguson of the 6.30 C.G.E. placed the night's best single, 334, in his 757, Roy Parnell had 721 and Dick Pearson 705 (303) while in the last ten team league of C.G.E. men Tom Martin, Frank Wood and Art Mattuci levelled off 777, 731 and 703 respectively.

There were also on hand 46 ordinary guys who heaved off in the 600 ring, sixteen of those were from the early C.G.E. gang. L. McIntosh 662, B. Ashmore 652, J. W. Copping 644. H. Winterbottom 642, H. Ralph 640; A. Heal 633, G. Seabrook 627, D. Hall 611, J. Marsden 611, A. Spicer 615, D. Pilling 622, J. Lalonde 609, A. Hann 602 W. Carter 601, D. Emery 601 and A. Pilling 600. The final C.G.E. troupe gave out G. Niles with 668, V. Shaughnessy 644, L. Jones 663, L. Calladine 636, R. Dyer 613, F. Earle 611, G. Fields 607, M. Ruiter 606 and P. Halliday 606. Archie Weir and Keith Whatley worked two games each for 459 and 450 while Geo. Walton got a 305 single.

The City League shot out 25 men in the 600 or better class. 3 to 1 defeats were hung on the I.A.C. and Examiner teams as they went down under powerful Capitol Grill and Grafton teams. Fowler's Barbers and Pattenick's had a close one, each team taking 2 points, with only 14 pins difference in their totals, while after two previous weeks of murderous pin busting the K. of C. Bowling Alley entry eased off to normal by dividing the spoils with Duffus Recreation, the latter team totaling 3322.

Club Sponsors Two Puck Teams

The Peterborough Hockey Club at a joint meeting of players and officers in Duffus' last night decided against operating an intermediate "B" team this winter. The club will sponsor a junior "B" squad in the O. H. A. and one other team, either intermediate "A" or senior "B" depending on a grouping. It was felt that if a good grouping could be obtained in intermediate "A" ranks, the Petes would drop back to that. Otherwise they will continue in senior "B". A possible grouping again of Trenton Fliers, Belleville, Queen's and Peterborough was mentioned, but the O. H. A. will have to arrange the matter.

President R. M. Glover was in the chair and explained that since players held several offices this year, it was really a players' club and the boys themselves would have to co-operate in business affairs of the team as well as the playing side of it. Tommy Miller's appointment as manger of the intermediate or senior team was officially announced. With Al Gratton resigning as treasurer—being transferred from here shortly. Cliff Cadd was given this office for the time being, depending on whether or not he plays with the team. It was felt that a player could not put sufficient time to such a position. Mr. Cadd is also recording secretary, with James Dorris the corresponding secretary.

No coach was appointed at this meeting. Two names were all to be submitted, Jack White and Frank Buckland. As it was felt many of the prospective players had not notice enough to consider this matter. it was left over for another meeting. Neither nominee appeared anxious to accept such a responsible job with the club, but neither refused to stand for the position.

A number of other matters were discussed by the good turnout of players, with several officers on hand, including a draw to be run in the near future, equipment and a trainer. Shocky Mein will again look after the team's equipment and it was suggested that Johnny Banks, former pro trainer in Windsor, act as masseur for the Petes. He will be contacted and asked to act. The team may accept an invitation to a pre-Christmas exhibition game with Owen Sound Trappers in the new Owen Sound rink, and inquiries will be made by the secretary regarding indoor training drills at the local "Y". Another meeting will be held before the team takes to the ice here.

With The Boy Scouts

The Mothers' Auxiliary of the St. George's Scout group held a joint tea for the cubs and scouts in an informal farewell to the Rev. Mr. Gault, who is leaving the parish on November 15, to take up work in Campbellford.

In keeping with the occasion the tables were beautifully decorated in the troop colors of red and white, with red and white candles, carnations and 'mums.

Mrs. Moscrop poured tea. A full turnout of cubs and scouts was on hand to bid adieu to their chaplain and friend. Mr. Gault has shown a live interest in the scout movement since his first coming to the parish and rarely missed the opportunity to pay the boys a visit.

It was the privilege of Wolf Cub Vernon Penn to read the address and that 8-year-old smiling cub carried out his task with clarity that would put many older men to shame.

Jack White of the scouts then presented a brass desk lamp to the Rev. Mr. Gault, a gift from the boys as a memento of the pleasant times they have had in the past. — The Skipper.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

COME ON, youse co-eds and students—from frosh to seniors—come on and root P.C.I. gridders over that Bowmanville hurdle tomorrow aft in the Exhibition Grounds. And you older followers of the Garnet and Gray colors, come on out and raise the roof on the grandstand with your yodels. As Julio Caesaro nearly said when Marco Antonio clasped Cleopatrio to his manly bosom: "If ye have cheers, prepare to shed 'em now—or hold your peace forevah more!" While that was back in the days when a pedestrian's biggest hazard was a pair of spanking bays prancing down the dirt road with a careless driver—with foot swinging nonchalantly from a new surrey—plying the blacksnake, it applies as well to tomorrow's rugby fray. Those P.C.I.-ers are facing a tough task and a 19-point deficit, so a bit of encouragement in their gallant fight won't come amiss.

'TIS SAID the Bowmanville boys play a pleasing style of rugby, but not too pleasing to the Peterborough laddies. The boys of Bowman Villa break fast from one formation—the deceitful things!—and they travel like warplanes. Open field running finds 'em doing a movement like a Swiss watch, but the locals claim it'll be run down tomorrow. Our squad do a lot of razzle dazzle playing, too, with a first-rate forward pass flinger in Foster. He'll have to hurl a heap of 'em in this game in a gamble to overcome that lead in the first of the Lakeshore group finals. We look for a lively game with anything and everything happening in it, and with P.C.I. winning the contest—whatever about the series. It rates a real crowd of rooters. A local loss will finish football here this year.

More Than Optimism

A RATHER CRIPPLED but game gang of Orfuns' gridders entrained last eve for the trip to Sarnia and today's game. Their wind-up number for 1938. Back of the eight-ball again, they figured on fighting it out to the last ditch in the Tunnel Town 'gainst the mighty Oilers. Shortly after this paper rolls off the presses, the final figures on the game will be wired back to Peterborough. Surprisingly enough, quite a few fans in this town held to the belief that another miracle might occur, with Orfuns once more trimming the Imps. We couldn't go for that, but will hope for the best—while looking for the worst. Such a hopeful outlook as these fans possess cannot be alluded to merely as optimism. It is much more than that—it is belief in Divine Providence where sports are concerned!

ABOUT 20 GUYS attended the Peterborough Hockey Club meeting last p.m. in Duffus', mostly players. Prexy Rollie Glover was in the chair but some of the other ossifers didn't show up. They discussed several business angles, including a draw to be run shortly, equipment, possible grouping, an agreement with the independent local junior "C" club, etc. A swell word "etc."! The boys hope to get started soon on indoor training drills in the Y.M.C.A., and they'll be hoping hard for ice within the next three weeks or so. Prospects of a couple of good teams are quite fair—but there'll be no intermediate "B" this year. It didn't draw well last season and several good players have left Peterborough since.

Ad: Coach Wanted

NO COACH has been appointed yet for the Petes' puckists. Two names were mentioned at the meeting, Frank Buckland and Jack White, but it was left over till the next session. And it wasn't at all certain whether the Petes would be classified as senior "B" or intermediate "A" this year, depending a lot on their grouping and on the O.H.A. decision near the end of this month. It is hoped to have a similar group to last year with the Petes in with Trenton Fliers, Queen's and Belleville—all of the same classification. More will be known later on. And before long now, too.

LACK OF ENTRIES in the bantam and juvenile sections in the Church Basketball League this autumn forced the loop to drop these two series for this season. Just four teams answered the call, two in each section—which made it not worth worrying about. Cage sport seems to be a winter game here. The junior division wasn't due to get going till Nov. 23rd, and officers figure the'll get at least four teams in that class to operate. Other cage activities around Peterborough will not hit their stride till after Christmas, but heaps of hoop play from then till spring.

O.R.F.U. is investigating the eligibility of Henry Living, husky lineman of Sarnia Imps. No protest has been entered by any club but it is suspected that Living was born in Michigan and played with Michigan State collitch in 1935 and '36—moving back to Sarnia last spring. O.R.F.U. rule states that an import in rugby must be a continuous resident of Canada for one year prior to Sept. 1st of the playing year. (Local officers please note.) Living is alleged to have said he was born in Michigan, while Sarnia officials claim he was born in Western Canada. If it is found that the player is not eligible, the games he played in for Sarnia—including one here—may be thrown out, or else the Sarnia club might be tossed out altogether. But in neither case would it put the Orfuns into a playoff position. Only club it would help would be Balmy Beach—and we imagine the Beaches are checking the matter most carefully.

P.C.I. Gridders Set For Battle

Facing big odds in the form of a 19-point deficit, the senior P. C. I. footballers will go into tomorrow's game with Bowmanville full of fight and ready to take long chances. It is the second of their two-game C. O. S. S. A. Lakeshore group finals, points counting, and unless P. C. I. can overcome that first-game lead, they will be eliminated. Should they upset the dope and pull out on top in the series, the local Collegians will again enter provincial high school senior grid playdowns. The contest tomorrow is here at 2.30 o'clock in the Exhibition Grounds. It should draw the biggest crowd of the season to see a C. O. S. S. A. scrap, as the tilt will be wide-open and exciting throughout with anything possible.

Bowmanville has a fast, husky young squad which plays smart rugby. The rubbertown boys run all their kicks off the one formation, they have a speedy sweeping end run and a good defence against forward passing. They will have to be good in the latter department here tomorrow as Nels Foster will be flinging a lot of forwards in an attempt to get a couple of touchdowns for a first-half lead as the scrappy P. C. I.-ers try to whittle down the first-game margin. It'll be a merry battle all the way through and the locals feel they have a fair chance of copping the duke.

Revenge Is Sweet

It's an oft-repeated story when a team sells a player and he returns the compliment by becoming a means of defeating his old mates whenever he stacks up against them. Joffre Desilets, ABOVE, turned the trick for the first time in the new hockey season when he scored two goals for Chicago Black Hawks as they turned back his old mates, Canadiens, 3-2.

Sam Snead Wins Winter Golf Tourney

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Nov. 11.—(AP).—Slammin' Sam Snear, last year's champion pro money winner in the United States, tucked the $750 first prize of the new winter season in his pocket today.

With a scintillating final nine hole count of 32 Snead chalked up a 373, seven under par for the 72-hole test, to win first prize in the $3,000 White Sulphur tournament.

Stan Horne, young Ottawa professional, was best of the two Canadian contestants, finishing with 286. One stroke behind was Jules Huot, Quebec, who slipped after making a brilliant start with the best card of the opening day—66. Both were out of the money.

GLASGOW—(CP). — The Scotland-England football game at Hampden Park April 15, will be an all-ticket affair. Applications for tickets are pouring into officials now.

Two Big Clubs Ignored By Selectors

LONDON, Nov. 11—(CP Cable).—Directors of Rangers and Celtic are chafing at the indifference of the Scottish football selectors who this week virtually ignored claims of their players for international honors. At Edinburgh and Falkirk Saturday the famous Glasgow clubs will have good opportunities to regain the confidence of the selectors.

J. Delaney, Celtic winger, was the only representative of the "Old Fire" in the team that triumphed 3-2 over Wales at Edinburgh. Six Anglo-Scots were included in the eleven while the choice of three Hearts players only added to the discomfiture of the Glasgow officials.

Hearts provide the opposition for the league-leading Rangers at the week-end and a capacity crowd is expected to witness a renewal of the rivalry between the famous teams. A slip by the Rangers who lost 3-2 in the corresponding match last season, will put the Tynecastle Park squad in a strong challenging position.

At Brockville Park, Celtic will be forced to play heads-up football if it is to snatch victory. While Falkirk is well down the league table the team is quite capable of springing a surprise on the sharpshooting green shirts.

Search for Forwards.

South of the border the hectic quest for goal-scoring forwards by several major-league clubs continues. After refusing an £8,000 ($38,400) offer by Sunderland for Frank O'Donnell last week, Blackpool surrendered the clever international to Aston Villa at the same figure. The money gained went to Brentford in exchange for George Eastham, a play-making inside left.

O'Donnell has been with the seasiders one year. Previously he played for Preston North End. Four losses in a row induced the Villans to seek new material.

Eastham's departure created the second big vacancy in Brentford's forward line and came as a distinct surprise; Dave McCulloch joined Derby County earlier in the season and the fast-slipping Griffin Park Squad will build up a new attack in an effort to get out of the league's danger zone.

Saturday's fixture list finds Derby in London, where Charlton Athletic may put a crimp in the County's championship aspirations. At pres-

LEAFS SCORE FIRST VICTORY BY BLANKING THE CANADIENS

Thoms And Metz Score Goals For Maple Leafs

THE FORUM, Montreal, Nov. 11.—Toronto Maple Leafs hit their stride in masterful manner here last night, when they skated stride for stride with the speedy Canadiens, and won a brilliantly and cleanly played National Hockey League game by 2-0.

It was Leafs' first win in three starts and Canadiens' second loss in two games.

It was the old story of the cast-off returning to wreak a measure of vengeance when Gus Marker, a Maroon who Canadiens did not want, started the play that brought Toronto's first goal. Bill Thoms scored the goal in the second period, Marker and Jackson assisting, after the Frenchmen had been opening the speed valves wide, but could not shake off their Toronto checks.

Toward the end of a hard-fought third period Kelly broke loose from a five-man ganging attack and slid the rubber to Metz, who coasted in unopposed to beat the defenceless Cude as he pleased for the clinching goal.

Referee Ion did not have to impose a penalty in the very fast but very clean contest.

King Clancy was linesman, and turned in an efficient performance under the gaze of about 7,500 fans.

Normie Mann, Leafs' newest right-winger, joined the team here yesterday and worked quite well in the injured Drillon's place on the line with Apps and Davidson.

The shut-out win was a notable one for Toronto, because Canadiens throughout stuck to their most potent weapon — speed and more speed — and still could not score. Incidentally, Broda played a grand game in the winners' net. The same two teams are scheduled to play in Toronto this Saturday.

Canucks Press at Start.

In the first couple of minutes, Cain got past Horner, and Broda had to pull off two real saves in their ensuing net mouth scrambling. Leafs were having some trouble to hold the first pair of lines sent out by the Frenchmen. Leafs' third line of Chamberlain and Company then got a 50-50 break in the play.

Cude did the splits perfectly to cheat Thoms on a corner-ticketed shot. Cain again got around Horner and once more Broda saved the situation.

Then Apps circled past Siebert, but Cude blocked his sharp-angle shot. Play was opening up as the light checking eased. Cude was much busier as the goalless and cleanly played period came to an end.

Thoms Opens Scoring.

Leafs responded to the applause by scoring at just 3.21. A wave of blue-jerseyed snipers swept into Canadiens defence, pulled the rear guards over, and a three-way passing play resulted in Bill Thoms beating Cude with a short back-hander. Jackson and Marker assisted.

Leafs nearly went two up when Chamberlain's slap shot of Kelly's pass just missed the open net corner. Marker came back like a streak and took out Gracie when the latter seemed all set to score.

Metz Clinches It.

Canadiens were driving hard in the first minutes of the third period, but Leafs were back-checking well and counter-attacking often. Fowler rode off Blake just before the Canadien winger was ready to pull the trigger on a loose puck right in front of Broda. Leafs often were penned up in their defence zone, and Broda now was getting plenty of work.

Huot Is Hot

Taking apart the course at White Sulphur Springs in Virginia, Jules Huot, above, diminutive Quebec golfer, took a first round lead in a classy field in the $3,000 open tourney staged in Sam Snead's home town. He posted a four under par 66 for the first 18 holes to lead Slammin' Sammy, Harry Picard, Harry Cooper, et al.

DEAN MAY MOVE

NOTTINGHAM, England—(CP).—Dixie Dean, former international soccer centre-forward, has been placed on the transfer list by Notts County. He joined the third division club in March this year.

Hagen Drops Out Of Contests; Stay With Club

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(CP).—By mid-November of almost any year of the past quarter-century Walter Hagen would be striding the winter tournament trail that lures top flight golf pros with its pot of gold, but not this year. To-day The Haig is through.

Hagen, maker of more than $1,250,000 in golf, has turned his back on money competition to concentrate on club making. Since returning from a world golfing tour he's been doing just that together with trips from Detroit to New York for the first complete moving picture record of the golf technique that won him a dozen major championships including the Canadian open in 1931.

During a recent movie-making trip Walter announced his decision to leave the money competitions to the youngsters. He called them "the kids." These young stars such as slammin' Sam Snead, the present Canadian open king who won the $3,000 White Sulphur Springs open yesterday.

"They fire to many birdies for a 40-year-old player like me," said The Haig.

No other master of woods and irons has approached Hagen's golfing "take." Probably nobody, not even Bobby Jones, enjoyed a greater personal following. Nor has there been another master with Hagen's flair for the spectacular.

Walter made money fast and spent it that way. He was always picking up the dinner checks. After winning his greatest single purse — $6,800 for trimming Bobby Jones 11 and 10 in Florida in 1926 for the so-called "world's championship"—he immediately dipped into his winnings for a pair of cuff links for Jones. They were platinum set with diamonds. It was typical of The Haig.

His plans still call for a game now and then but not with the idea of winning anything. That's a thing of the past, of the days when he won four British open titles—1922, 1924, '928, 1929; two United States' opens—1914, 1919; five United States Professional Golfers' Association crowns—1921, 1924, 1925, 1926, 1927; three Metropolitan open championships and his lone Canadian title.

BIRMINGHAM, England—(CP).—Among other things there will be provision for skating, boxing, swimming and dancing in a stadium with accommodation for 15,000 to be built here next year.

Leafs Require Replacement

Trying to bolster a team handicapped early by injuries to Drillon and Boll, both right wingers, Toronto Maple Leafs have secured Normie Mann, ABOVE, last year with Syracuse Stars and before then on Newmarket, junior champions of Canada. Mann was drafted this year by the Rangers and turned in fine exhibition games. Leafs secured him on a four-day trial with option of purchase.

Davis Cup Feared Gone Gosling For United States Players

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—(AP)—As far as the United States is concerned the Davis Cup seems a gone gosling with the decision of Donald Budge to take $75,000 and launch his professional tennis career against Ellsworth Vines here on Jan. 3.

Budge won the big trophy from the British almost single-handed a year ago, and his mighty play enabled the United States to turn back Australia's fine challenge last August.

Now the garish bowl can be crated up and prepared for shipment either to Australia or Germany, depending upon whether Baron Von Cramm, the German ace, is forgiven the misstep that sent him to jail last winter.

If Von Cramm is chosen on the German team, and his months in prison did not break his spirit or rust his game, he and Henner Henkel should be good enough to whip any combination that either Austrial or the United States can put on the court. Otherwise, it looks like Australia.

When Budge signed his pro contract, the United States was left with a prospective Davis Cup team of Bobby Riggs and Gene Mako and a varied assortment of mediocre probables. It is the weakest lineup the United States has had since the Davis Cup matches first were contested.

Its calibre is perhaps best reflected in the fact that Mako, never a singles player of note, was able to reach the finals of the United States championships against Budge, where he was slaughtered. Riggs was beaten by Gilbert Hunt, who does not even belong to the upper crust of tennis.

Australia will be back with Jack Bromwich and Adrian Quist, and with Budge out of the way they should have small difficulty winning three out of five matches from any combination the United States can put together. Von Cramm and Henkel would figure to win at least as decisively.

Mustang Galloper

Out after their first eastern intercollegiate title since 1928, McGill's mighty gridders can cop the crown without a playoff if they beat Western in London this Saturday. One of their problems when they face the Mustangs, will be Wallie Hilton, ABOVE, hard-hitting backfielder. A win for the Londoners will force a sudden death game to decide the rah rah championship.

DEAD IN FIELD

DUBLIN — (CP). — Capt. J. C. Leeper, husband of Miss Alice Gardiner, noted Irish golfer, was found shot dead in a field near his home. He was managing director of a linen mill at Cooksstown, County Tyrone.

Nels Stewart Opens Season With His 303rd

DETROIT, Nov. 11 (C.P.).—While the mere mortals who make up the rest of the National League continue to shorten one another's playing careers, old Nels Stewart just goes on rolling up his scoring record and winning hockey games for New York Americans.

Ole Poison, who came around the bend 14 seasons ago to camp by the nets and wait for passes, shot the 303rd goal of his big-league life last night. It was Nels' first of the new schedule, and a mighty important one at that.

Scored on a first-period power play, it gave the Americans a 2-1 victory over the Red Wings at Detroit. It brought to an end a losing streak that started when the spangled shirts lost six straight preseason contests to New York Rangers and continued when they lost their schedule opener to Chicago, 6-1.

It brought Americans into a third-place tie with Toronto Maple Leafs, who blanked the Canadiens 2-0 at Montreal last night. Chicago leads the league with three straight wins, Boston has taken two straight, Detroit and Canadiens haven't won in two starts, and Rangers don't open until Sunday.

Sets New N.H.L. Mark.

Stewart, setting a new N.H.L. mark every time he scores and running so far ahead of every active player that his eventual record may never be touched, finished off an 85-second rally that produced both his team's goals. It started when Eddie Wares of the Wings was penalized for holding in the early minutes. Lorne Carr scored quickly on a relay from Tommy Anderson and Sweeney Schriner.

Anderson helped Eddie Wiseman to get the puck to Stewart for the second counter. From that point the Americans' punches were mainly defensive ones. Their cause was aided by the fact that Charlie Conacher, Detroit's big right-wing bomber, was forced to leave the game in the second period.

Conacher, who hasn't started to hit his stride, suffered a shoulder injury on Sunday in the Wings' loss to Boston, when he collided with his young brother Roy, a Bruin rookie. The shoulder bothered him last night but doctors said he would be able to return to the lineup on Sunday.

New Manager

It's nice to be working but whether Fred Haney, above, feels that way is debatable. Haney is the new manager of St. Louis Browns, one of the most consistent teams in the American League —consistently bad. He succeeds Gabby Street, deposed at the close of last season, coming from Toledo where he was manager two years.

Cattle Steady During Week Hogs Down .25

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—(CP). — Butcher cows and some plain killing steers and heifers were down 25 cents on Toronto livestock market this week while, with a few exceptions, other cattle were steady the Dominion Livestock Branch reported. Calves were unchanged. Hogs were down 25 cents cwt. with sheep and lambs steady.

Cattle run included 1,200 westerns, mostly stockers. Weighty steers of medium to good quality sold at $5.25-$6 and one load of choice heavy steers brought $6.50. Butcher steers and heifers sold from $3.50 for common up to $5.50 for top quality.

Good butcher cows closed at $3.50-$3.60 with plain cows down to $2.65. Canners and cutters were $2-$2.50. Butcher bulls sold at $2.65-$4.10 and bologna bulls from $3.25-$3.50. A few choice fed calves sold steady at $8.50-$9.25 while mediums were lower at $5.50-$6.50.

Several lots of plain stockers were unsold at the close. Medium to good stockers sold steady at $4.25-$5 and some good stocker calves sold up to $5.75. Good milkers and springers were steady at around $75 for tops while plainer kinds were slow and a shade lower.

Calf receipts included 500 heavy western calves. Lght vealers sold steady at $9.50-$10.50 for choice with common downward to $6. Heavies brought $5-$5.75 with a few at $6. Grass calves were mostly at $4.50-$4.75 with some as low as $4 cwt.

Hogs dropped 25 cents and closed weak at $8 off trucks for bacons with bids at $7.75 for week-end deliveries. The decline was due to heavier runs and to a drop in the British bacon market. Sows sold at $5.50-$6 off trucks.

Lambs sold generally at $7.75 for good ewes and wethers delivered by rail and at $7.50 by trucks. A few picked lots of rail lambs sold up to $7 cwt. Bucks and heavies were at $1 cwt. discount and culls mostly at $6 cwt. Sheep were $2-$4 cwt. according to quality. Breeding ewes from Western Canada sold from $5-$9 each.

As the service ended a great stream of members of the British Legion began a march past the Cenotaph that was to take hours. Representatives of many organizations throughout the day deposited wreaths before the Memorial.

Most Vivid Reminders

All around Whitehall, in the parks and other open spaces, piles of yellow earth and deep trenches reminded citizens how close they were to another Great War little more than a month ago. It was the same throughout the nation, even in little villages.

Other things which reminded them poignantly of the last war were red poppies made by disabled or sightless men and shabby veterans selling programs.

Those who left the Cenotaph for Trafalgar Square noticed along upper Whitehall nine greying, bemedalled men, each lacking an arm or a leg. Playing accordions and guitars they were bellowing the old war songs: "Pack Up Your Troubles," "Keep the Home Fires Burning," "Tipperary" — songs they sang as they marched in Flanders in the days when they had two legs to march on and two arms to swing.

Children's Coughs Quickly Relieved

It is hard to keep the children from taking cold; they will run out of doors not properly clad; have on too much clothing and get overheated and cool off too suddenly; they get their feet wet; kick off the bed clothes at night. The mother cannot watch them all the time, so what is she going to do?

Mothers should never neglect the child's cough or cold, but on its inception should procure a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It is so pleasant to the taste the youngsters take it without any fuss.

Steel-Helmeted Guards Patrol Paris Streets Fearing Trouble

PARIS, Nov. 11 (AP)—Thousands of steel-helmeted mobile guards patrolled Paris today with strict orders to stop any war veterans' demonstration for a "public safety" cabinet.

The presence of the mobile guards, carrying carbines over their shoulders, and extra squads of police gave the capital an air akin to that which saw the Great War end in the Armistice 20 years ago.

Pomp and martial music, highlighted in a massive military parade past the tomb of the unknown soldier, found Frenchmen of all stations calling for a new regime to strengthen the nation in the face of Germany's rise to power from defeat in 1918.

Veterans' organizations have declared a government above political parties and with great power is needed if France is to mend her finances and economic system and regain a strong diplomatic and military position in Europe.

Thousands of veterans from Paris and the provinces were ready to answer the call of their leaders should they carry through plans to ask President Albert Lebrun to return Premier Edouard Daladier out of office and establish a "public safety" government.

Meets Veterans' Chieftains

Daladier conferred with the veteran's chieftains until early this morning. The conference followed reports that Henri Pichot and Jean Goy, heads of the veterans' organizations enrolling millions of members, were prepared to order a march on Elysee Palace to present the demands to the president.

The ministry of pensions acted to halt this with an order forbidding all war veterans' parades "under any pretext whatsoever" to follow the army parade in the morning.

General Maxime Weygand, Marshal Foch's wartime protege who retired as chief of France's armies in 1936, called upon his countrymen to banish "division, illusion and confusion" which he declared resulted in the loss of Great War victory in the 20 years which have followed. He condemned internal weakness which he said forced France to "lower her flag before German strength," at the four-power Munich conference on the partition of Czechoslovakia Sept. 29. His appeal was in an article published in Le Journal.

Northern Canada May Hold A New Mineral

OTTAWA, Nov. 11—(CP)—Possibility of a new mineral being added to the list of those now produced in Canada is foreseen by government officials as a result of the recent discovery of M. F. Goudge of the Bureau of Mines, Department of Mines and Resources, that certain large deposits of crystalline limestone at Ruthergien, in Northern Ontario, and Bryson, in the Pontiac district of Quebec, contain from 20 to 40 per cent of a magnesium mineral known as Brucite. The commercial aspects of these deposits as a source of brucite are now being investigated by the Bureau of Mines.

Magnesium minerals such as magnesite, dolomite, and brucite have come into greater demand in the past few years for the making of refractory products, such as the linings of furnaces used for the melting of metals at high temperatures, and as a source of magnesium metal. Deposits of dolmite are abundant in many parts of Canada, magnesite is found in British Columbia, and deposits of magnesitic dolomite are worked in Argenteuil county, Quebec. But hitherto pure brucite, which contains a higher percentage of magnesia than either magnesite or dolomite, was not known to occur in this country.

Local Rebekahs Are Guests At Millbrook

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Nov. 11. — Over sixty guests from Golden Link Rebekah Lodge, Peterborough, and including a number of Oddfellows from the Electric City, motored to Millbrook on Tuesday evening, as a friendly gesture in connection with the progressive euchre given by the local organization, Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge No. 176.

Thirty-two tables were in use for play, and prize winners announced by Brother W. S. Hodson, included for ladies, Mrs. F. Lemon and Mrs. J. Mowry, for gentlemen E. L. Morden and James Price. Lucky prize winners were Miss Lois Dawson, who found the electric light bulb hidden beneath her chair, and Miss Marian Earle, who was equally successful in locating the rubber bands concealed about the chair she was occupying.

Supper was served at 11 p.m., a number of the local Rebekahs and Oddfellows having this matter in charge, and afterward dancing was enjoyed for an hour or more, music at the piano being provided by Miss Ruth Ball, and other visiting sisters from Peterborough.

A friendly interest in local Rebekah activities on the part of Golden Link Lodge, Peterborough, has continued since the latter had a vital part in the instituting of the sister fraternal society at Millbrook, several years ago, and substantial assistance with the event of Tuesday evening was given by the visitors from the neighboring city.

Ask Government To Complete Central Ontario Highway Within Period Of Three Years

Be it resolved that we the undersigned request the provincial government and the Department of Highways to proceed with the completion of all unfinished sections of the Central Ontario highway system—the Central Ontario highway and No. 7 highway—within a period of three years, providing for a reasonable and proportionate amount of permanent construction work in each division annually and that this request shall be presented to the government and the Department of Highways as the first objective of all municipalities and service organizations interested.

The above resolution moved by F. J. Overend and seconded by J. H. Watson was passed at a representative meeting held under the auspices of the Central Ontario Highway Association in the Chamber of Commerce Thursday night after President Ald. James Dutton of Peterborough and Secretary W. M. Bowes of Port Perry had reviewed the history of the movement to secure an east-and-west highway through Peterborough and Port Perry and had presented a synopsis of the situation as it existed at present.

Those present endorsed the resolution as individuals and the matter will be brought before their respective organizations for approval within the near future.

The outstanding feature of the meeting was the fact that the great majority of those present strongly favored pressing for the completion of the Peterborough, Port Perry, Orangeville link before giving any consideration to the mooted diagonal road from Peterborough to Brooklin, possibly linking up with the dual highway and giving a trunk highway to Toronto.

Favor Original Plan

Outside of Alex Sollitt, president of the Automobile Club who said that the Toronto-Peterborough highway was another and separate proposition and should be considered as such those who took part in the discussion emphasized the desirability of completing the original east-and-west highway before the other proposal was pressed.

George Hewitt, president of the Chamber of Commerce, presided at the opening and then turned the meeting over to Ald. Dutton as president of the Central Ontario Highway Association.

Ald. Dutton in addressing the meeting pointed out that for twelve years Peterborough had been dreaming of and working toward the completion of a highway through the district west of this city. At first it had been only a local project, having in view the fact that it would open a way into Peterborough for the people of Cartwright, Manvers, Cavan and other municipalities, the majority of whom had a great desire to come to ePterborough as a market for their wares.

Mr. Dutton outlined the history of the birth of the Central Ontario Highway Association and stressed the necessity of an unanimity of purpose and policy. This section of the province whose people had, through the gasoline tax and motor licenses, helped to pay for the network of fine highways that existed in Western Ontario had the right to demand that they too should be given adequate highways. The speaker told how the Peterborough-Port Perry road project had been finally endorsed, with promises of

Following a short business session at which it was decided the next meeting should take the form of a banquet, the members played cards. Miss Grace Irwin was the prize winner. A dainty lunch was served by the hostesses, Misses K. Bygott, Marian Dickson, Marie Crosson, Jean Wallace and Mrs. Jack Cowell.

Wallie Edwards Is Freed On Theft Count

"My personal belief is that you were there and that you know a good deal about this affair. However the fact that three out of four crown witnesses have sworn that they did not see you raises too much of a doubt to justfiy a conviction," Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., remarked in police court Thursday afternoon in dismissing a charge against Wallie Edwards, Lang storekeeper, of stealing four ladders, 40 gallons of tar and a gate from Melville Edwards on Hallowe'en night.

The trial of Edwards, one of eight young men and boys charged with theft following the disappearance of Melville Edwards' property, began at the morning session and took up most of the afternoon.

After Harold Wallbridge had sworn in the morning, after being cross-examined as a hostile witness by Crown Attorney McElderry, that Wallie Edwards had been with the "gang" on the night the articles were removed Keith Pimmett, Thomas Weir, Jack Knox and Neil Edwards on whose behalf the protection of the Canada evidence act was requested by the Crown Attorney were called by the Crown and none of them remembered seeing Wallie Edwards on the scene on the night of the thefts.

Wallie Edwards did not give evidence on his own behalf but called one witness, Odo O'Toole who told of seeing the accused in his store at 8.30 o'clock on the night of October 31 and of afterward seeing him in his home with his boots and windbreaker off.

Many Questions Asked

Questions by the Crown Attorney and Magistrate Langley brought out the fact that O'Toole did not know where Wallie Edwards was between 8.30 and 9.15 o'clock and that it was at the latter hour that the accused had entered his own place and taken off his windbreaker and boots.

"Have you been trying to hoodwink the court?" asked Magistrate Langley and witness replied that he had been trying to tell the truth.

In dismissing the case because the Crown had failed to establish the guilt of the accused, Magistrate Langley emphatically declared his own private opinion that Wallie Edwards had been on the scene on the night of the theft.

Lloyd Miller, charged with the same offence, found the Crown offering no evidence against him and the charge was dismissed and a similar charge against Timothy Walsh was also dismissed after one Crown witness had been heard.

The cases of four other youths, similarly charged, were adjourned until Monday next.

Blinding Blizzard Strikes Alberta

A 25 mile an hour wind from the northwest swept the snow into high drifts, blocking secondary roads and threatening blockade of main highways southward from Calgary. Isolation of smaller farms and smaller towns and loss among range cattle was feared.

A survey of ranchers showed every endeavor was being made to keep stock close to home ranches where there was an abundance of feed but it was feared there might loss among cattle on the open range.

Herds were reported drifting before the storm, seeking shelter in Coulees and ravines.

Snow ranged from 4½ inches deep in Calgary to more than a foot in rural south country districts.

The treasurer, Mrs. Earl Greenly, gave the financial report.

Civic Luncheon Is Given Labor Minister

Leading figures in the city's professional, legal and business life, with J. J. Duffus, M.P., Warden McDonald, and members of the City Council, paid tribute to the Hon. Norman Rogers, Federal Minister of Labor, at an informal civic banquet in the Empress Hotel today at noon.

Mayor James Hamilton was in the chair, and the two veteran entertainers, Jack Smith and Bob Hendry, delighted the gathering with songs, jokes and music. His Worship warmly welcomed the Minister and extended an invitation to return in the very near future.

J. J. Duffus, M.P., introduced Mr. Rogers, as his friend and colleague, and lauded his sincere efforts in handling such a difficult portfolio in the Dominion Government.

The Minister voiced pleasure at being able to visit Peterborough.

The warm hospitality of Ontario has led me to believe that differences which often arise between provinces are only superficial after all. He paid tribute to Joe Duffus for the commendable work he has done in advertising Peterborough.

He related that his most depressing experience was the recent trip through the drought areas. Peterbor is fortunate in having so many fine industries, but you should not lose sight of the inter-dependability between agriculture and industry.

People in the drought areas were encouraged by the generous sympathy and assistance of people in all parts of Canada.

Tinge Resentment.

"Sometimes there is a tinge of resentment from westerners when they hear some say the west is living off the rich, industrial east," he declared.

This year was a critical one for the west. It was imperative that farmers get a satisfactory price for their wheat as it was the first crop in years. By fixing the price of wheat and regarding it as an emergency measure, the great western market was stabilized, with benefits certain to accrue to all eastern provinces.

Grants to relieve these peoples may seem staggering but this step was imperative. It was a national emergency."

Want National Unity

"The idea of Western secession does not represent any large body of opinion," Mr. Rogers said. "Still we should not ignore it. We want national unity above all. Our government seems cumbersome but we mustn't forget the provinces could never have been brought together without a federal constitution. The task of establishing national unity still exists. Every large country has trouble reconciling sectional differences with the national good.

"We must exercise greater forbearance and tolerance, recognize other points of view and realize in the long run all our problems must be based on compromise. Avoid where we can an over emphasis on sectional claims and lend our effort to national unity. The next few years may be critical ones."

"For the first time in 70 years a Commission is attempting to get the facts, so that any needed changes may be made. It is to be regretted that Chief Justice Rowell has been forced by illness to cease his direction of this commission."

The Minister expressed his pleasure again at such a friendly reception.

Marmora Ladies Assist Library

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Nov. 11.—The November meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. P. Sopha with a fine attendance.

The roll call, "A Canadian Woman and Her Work," met with a splendid response. The report on the tag day showed that 28 dollars were collected on Fair Day for that worthy cause, the National Institute for the Blind.

An interesting paper and demonstration on "Buymanship" was given by Mrs. D. L. Curtis, who was the local delegate. An interesting discussion followed. A grant of $60 was made to the Library. A further $15 will be given later. It was decided to hold a travelling bridge and euchre on November 25.

Miss Dorothy Henry contributed two guitar solos, after which Mrs. W. A. Sanderson gave a splendid paper on "Health." The president, Mrs. James Gordenier, who was delegate to the recent area convention in Belleville, gave a full report of the different sessions, which proved interesting and helpful to all who were privileged to attend. Several games of bingo were played, after which lunch was served by the committee. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Allied Nations Pay Tribute To Fallen Men

(By The Canadian Press.)

Twenty years after the Great War's end millions paused to-day to reflect in silence upon peace and its endurance while others set about repairing the devastation of more recent conflict.

Throughout the British Empire, the United States, France and Belgium the soldier dead of those nations were honored in solemn ceremony.

King George led the people of Great Britain in an Armistice Day service at the foot of the Cenotaph in Whitehall while trenches nearby reminded the nation how close it was to war in the critical days of last September.

In the two minutes' silence while the nation stood in prayer the wheels of Britain's massive armaments industry stopped in thir urgent process of building up defences against another such eventuality.

The King, accompanied by Queen Elizabeth, went to Whitehall shortly beore 11 to place a wreath at the foot of the soldier memorial, where all night long flowers and wreaths had been sent.

Police and soldiers were grouped about the King alert against any repetition of the disturbance last year when a demented man broke the two-minute silence by crying "All this is hypocrisy—you are deliberately preparing for war."

A Pershing Warning

As the United States honored its war dead General John Pershing, who led the American forces in France, warned that "the situation in the world today is as menacing as at any critical time in history."

It was a rare statement on public affairs from General Pershing, who accepted an invitation to attend memorial ceremonies at the tomb of the unknown soldier with President Roosevelt.

In Paris thousands of French troops equipped with the nation's most modern instruments of warfare marched through the streets as France observed the anniversary of armistice.

Thousands of mobile guards patrolled Paris with strict orders to stop any war veterans' demonstration for a "public safety" government to mend France's finances and regain her lost diplomatic and military leadership.

Across the border in Spain soldiers of the government and of Insurgent General Franco fired at each other across the Ebro River front. In other parts of that war-torn nation the grim task of repairing the wreckage of air-raids and bombardment went ahead slowly.

Passed Unnoticed.

The people of Germany let the anniversary of the nation's defeat pass almost unnoticed. Only isolated references in newspapers reminded the Reich of the conflict which cost it 2,000,000 lives.

It was cleaning-up day for Jews after violence yesterday to avenge the slaying of Ernst von Rath, secretary of the German Embassy in Paris, by a young Polish Jew.

Neither was there any widespread observance in Italy where the Armistice was celebrated a week ago. Instead they celebrated the birthday of King Vittorio Emanuele, proclaimed Emperor of Ethiopia, in a later conflict of which Italy itself is more proud.

Japan's thoughts were on more immediate things than the Great War's end. The nation, engaged in pacifying China, was busy adjusting its domestic life to its vast task.

Two Hunters Lost Four Days In Bush

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Nov. 11.—William Green, aged 78 years, and his son, Manard, of Westport, who were lost in the woods near Flower Station, in the township of Darling, were found by Constable Albert Rombough on Wednesday.

The two men, who were deer hunting, lost their way Saturday in the dense woods, and wandered for hours without food until Constable Rombough found them. The older man appeared to be weak due to the mental strain, as well as the physical endurance test to which he had been put. The son was not so weak. The men explained all they could do was to wander hoping to meet some other hunter, which they finally did.

Constable Rombough took them back to the Triangle Hunt Club, where the two were kept until they became stronger, and they then proceeded to their own hunting cabin.

The report also stated that a bad fire was raging in the woods, but it was thought the rain of Tuesday would extinguish it. (This fire was in the township of North Canonto and was extinguished by members of the Ontario Forestry Branch.)

SACRIFICES MADE IN GREAT WAR RECALLED THROUGHOUT LAND

To British Army Chaplain Goes Honor Of Suggesting Tomb Of Unknown Warrior

By Edwin Pye
(In Canadian Legionary.)

An Unknown British Soldier (Of the Black Watch). This brief but poignant inscription pencilled in deep black letters on a white wooden cross kindled the flame that culminated in the burial of the Unknown Warrior at Westminster Abbey in 1920. The simple cross and the grave that it marked nestled in a little garden behind a billet in front of Erquinham—in France—the village one mile west of Armentieres, recorded by Dumas as the scene of the climax in his Three Musketeers.

The inspiration that saw its fulfilment on Armistice Day four years later, came to the Rev. David Railton, M.C., M.A., Senior Chaplain of the 47th London Division, and later of the 19th Western Division, early in 1916. The Padre had just returned from the line where he had carried out the sad offices pertaining to his calling. It was dark as he came to the billet at Erquighan, and in the garden only about six paces from the house stood the cross bearing the inscription mentioned above and printed in two lines with the lower in brackets.

The Inspiration.

"How that grave caused me to think," stated the Padre. "What can I do to ease the pain of father, mother, wife or sweetheart?.... Quietly there came out of this mist of thought an answer clear and strong. 'Let this body, this symbol of him, be carried reverently over the sea to his native land.'"

Then came the Big Push on the Somme. Here at the Bois des Foureux—or High Wood, as that charnel house became known—Padre Railton won the Military Cross when at great personal risk he rescued an officer and two men under heavy fire.

The smoke of battle, however, did not obliterate the memory of that nameless grave, and among his foremost thoughts was the sending home after the war of the body of an unknown comrade.

On his return to England after the Armistice, the Rev. David Railton—who had been Curate at Ashford, Kent, in 1914—was appointed Vicar of St. John the Baptist Church at Margate. Deterred, however, by the unsettled state of affairs following demobilization the Padre held his peace; moreover, he was in a quandary as to whom of the great men would likely heed his peculiar request. In August, 1920, his good wife—who in no small measure deserves a share of the credit—urged him to take action; whereup he wrote to Bishop Ryle, then the Dean of Westminster, asking him if he would consider the possibility of burying in the Abbey the body of one of our unknown comrades.

The Dean was strongly impressed by the suggestion which he forthwith communicated to the War Office, the Prime Minister, the Cabinet, and Buckingham Palace; with the result that special arrangements were made to obtain the body of an "Unknown" from the host of the nameless dead. The Padre's cherished suggestion that the tomb should be designated the "Unknown Comrade," which he considered a more homely and friendly title, did not appeal to the Dean as signifiable as that of the "Unknown Warrior." The latter therefore was adopted.

Empire's Unknown.

The remains of six unidentified bodies were then taken from the plains of Flanders, the hills of Artois, from Picardy, and the Aisne, which included areas fought over by the 63rd (Royal Naval) Division. After being placed in pinewood coffins, the bodies were brought to the mortuary—a temporary hut-chapel at St. Pol. It is not possible to describe with certainty the scene that was there enacted as no official statement has even been published, nor were the names of those who carried out the arrangements made public. Different accounts have appeared from time to time, and the following, while not vouched for, perhaps fairly describes the proceedings.

An officer of high rank was first blind-folded and then led into the hut where rested the six unknown warriors, to all outward appearance exactly alike. With outstretched hand the officer moved slowly about the hut until his fingers touched one of the coffins.

The coffin thus selected was placed in an iron-bound oak casket, and on the night of November 8-9, 1920, was brought to Boulogne in an army ambulance.

On the morning of November 10, while the French destroyer Marne stood by, the Unknown Warrior was taken on board the British destroyer H.M.S. Verdun, both nations thus paying tribute to each other by the vessels detailed. At each corner of the coffin an able seaman took up his position with arms reversed.

The homecoming presented a wonderful sight, when the flotilla, consisting of an escort of six British destroyers, three abreast fore and aft of the Verdun, crossed the Channel from Boulogne to Dover.

Arrival in England.

At Dover the body was placed in a funeral coach and conveyed by train to London, the coffin remaining in the coach overnight at Victoria Station.

On the morning of November 11, 1920, the gun carriage, drawn by the famous "Old Blacks" of the Royal Horse Artillery and bearing the flag-covered coffin, moved slowly in solemn procession to Whitehall where His Majesty King George V. unveiled the Cenotaph to "The Glorious Dead." Following this impressive ceremony the body of the Unknown Warrior was borne to Westminster Abbey and there committed to its final resting-place, being covered with soil brought from the battlefields.

Seven days later—on the night of November 18—the grave was sealed.

Padre Railton's flag—the Union Jack which had been used at many burials on the Western Front and which had served as the pall on the coffin of the Unknown Warrior from the time of the moving scene at St. Pol until the reburial on November 11, 1920—was deposited in Westminster Abbey for safe custody on Armistice Day, 1921.

The flag was first placed on the High Altar and dedicated by the Dean "To the Glory of God and in perpetual memory of all who gave their lives fighting, by land and sea and air, for their King, for Great Britain and Ireland, and for the Dominions beyond the Seas." Following the two minutes' silence the flag was taken in procession by representatives of the 47th (London) Division to the Unknown Warrior's grave and placed on a pillar nearby, where it still hangs.

Other Nations.

Other nations soon followed Britain's example and to-day in numerous capitals Unknown Warriors are to be found sepulctured with the most illustrious of the land.

Although fittingly referred to as "Warriors," the bodies brough from the battlefields by other nations are known as those of soldiers. The inscriptions affirm this fact. King Albert of the Belgians used the words "Ce guerrier inconnu" at the re-interment ceremony in Brussels on Armistice Day, 1922; the word "Soldier," however, is inscribed in two languages on the bronze slab over the grave.

The term "Soldier" should never be used when referring to the Unknown of the British Empire who rests in Westminster Abbey as nobody can say whether it is that of a sailor, a soldier, or an airman, nor whether he came from the British Army or the forces of the Dominions. Due to the symbolism of this grave being Imperial in the broadest sense, no Unknown is to be found in any other country of the British Commonwealth.

Belgium disinterred five bodies of her unknown soldiers from cemeteries in the areas of Liege, Namur, Antwerp, the Yser, and the fields of Flanders, and brought them to a temporary chapel at Bruges. Here the pathetic office of marking one coffin for distinctive reburial in the crypt of the Colonne du Congres was assigned to a veteran who had lost the sight of both eyes in the Great War. The blinded veteran was given a palm wreath and this he placed on the second casket from the left of the row.

The last rites were carried out before the statue of King Leopold I. which surmounts the Colonne du Congres, on the morning of November 11, 1922. Light rain fell during the ceremny. The gun carriage—one that served during the whole of the war—was drawn by six black horses. Sixteen disabled soldiers acted as pall-bearers, eight of them having lost the right arm and eight the left arm.

The bronze slab covering the tomb is inscribed in both French and Flemish :"Here rests an Unknown Soldier of the War, 1914-1918." A flambeau—the symbol of everlasting remembrance—burns day and night nearby.

The U.S.A.

The United States of America selected four unidentified bodies of the A.E.F. from the Meuse—Argonne, Aisne—Marne, St. Mihiel, and the Somme cemeteries. Each body was placed in a special casket and taken to the Mairie at Chalons-Sur-Marne, where the sad duty of making the selection was given to Sergeant Edward Younger of the U. S. forces. On October 24, 1921, this non-commissioned officer, an outstanding hero of the American Army in France—entered the room wherein rested the four flag-draped coffins and slowly walked around the flower-decked floor; he was then handed a spray of white roses to place on the coffin of his selection. With hesitating steps the sergeant proceeded to the second bier and deposited on it his small spray of roses. He was then led away in tears.

The body of the American Unknown Soldier was brought home on the U.S.S. Olympia and on Armistice Day, 1921, was re-interred in the Arlington National Cemetery.

Poland exhumed only one of her nameless war dead. The soldier's remains were taken from the vicinity of Lwow, near Lemberg, and were placed to rest in the Mausoleum at Warsaw on November 2, 1925.

Portugal brought one body from Flanders and one from Africa. The remains that represent that country's war dead were given repose in the Pantheon at Belem in 1920, transfer being made the following year, with further funeral rites, to Batalha Abbey.

Italy and Germany honored their nameless dead in similar fashion. Italy's Unknown Soldier rests in the Church of Santa Marie degli Angeli 'in Rome, and Germany's lies in Das Ehrenmal, at the eastern end of Unter den Linden in Berlin.

France.

France removed nine bodies of her war dead from Lille, Amiens, Chalons-Sur-Marne, Belfort, Nancy, Epinal, Alsace, Lorraine, and Belgium, and brought them to Verdun where in the Great War the most sanguinary fighting in the history of French arms took place. Verdun, as a consequence, will remain hallowed in the hearts of the French people for all time.

The nine coffins were placed in a row in the Citadel and, on the morning of November 10, 1920, the selection of one of the bodies to be signally honored on the morrow was made. A guard of honor consisting of a company of veterans was drawn up on each side of the row of coffins. In response to the order of the Minister of Pensions, M. Maginot—later Minister of War, after whom the famous line of forts along the Franco-German frontier has since been named—one of the veterans stepped forward and chose the Poilu Inconnu.

The first repository agreed upon was the Pantheon, where rest the ashes of Gambetta, but a last minute change was made and, on Armistice Day, 1920—coincident with the burial of the Unknown Warrior in England—the body of France's Unknown Soldier was borne to the first floor of the Arc de Triomphe, there to personify the country's nameless dead.

Two weeks later, however, the French Cabinet decided to place their hero beneath the famous arch, so that the people might pass by the grave and render their tribute and respect. This was done, and to-day on a flat slab directly under the arch, passers-by may read in French: "Here lies a French soldier who died for his country — 1914-1918."

Canadian Tribute.

On August 1, 1936, Canadian veterans on the Vimy Pilgrimage proceeded to the Arc de Triomphe and for once performed the nightly duty of re-kindling the Flame of Remembrance. The ceremony on that occasion is graphically described in "The Epic of Vimy" as follows:

"At the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, a flat slab almost directly under the great arch, the parade divided, the Canadians drawing themselves up on either side. It was now 6.30 o'clock, the hour at which the ceremony is nightly performed.

"One saw the flame slowly dying until it was nothing more than a gutter of blue light rising fitfully from its cresset. There was a low mutter of drums, then slowly Col. Macintyre (Lt.-Col. D. E. Macintyre, D.S.O., M.C., Chief Transport Officer of the Vimy Pilgrimage) received from one of the officials a blunted sword. Each grasped the hilt, the fingers of the official encircling the Canadian's hand, and the sword was inserted into the slot with a quarter turn. The flame immediately leapt up—it had again been rekindled."

World In Arms Observes Twentieth Anniversary Of Armistice

Canada's National War Memorial — Somewhere in France 1914-18 — U.S. War Memorial in France

Today you vision distant graves
Among the poppies set;
The pain, the anguish, and the tears . . . .
All these are with you yet;
But these be futile murmurings
We plead you to forget.

Scarce had our home been pioneered
When came the mother's cry;
And we, who were her rightful sons,
Who held her honor high,
Who had been schooled to sacrifice
Beneath a western sky. . . .

We answered; and on Flemish fields,
We set our slender line,
Proud that we tarried not to ask
For further word or sign;
Today our dead and living leave
A heritage divine.

At St. Eloi and Vimy Ridge,
At shell-swept Passchendaele,
We held our thinning lines of men,
We held!...and did not fail;
At Courcelette we held the foe
With lips faith-set and pale.

These are but memories; today
Our blood-stained bayonets rust;
Our earthly forms have mingled with
Old mounds of valiant dust . . .
To you who mourn let now be born
Inviolate our trust.

Our war-torn souls are like the stars
That ride the silver night;
For death has cast her gentle spell
Upon our feeble sight!
While God completes his masterpiece
Of beauty, hope and light.

Think of us only when the dawns
Come with the wind's soft cry,
As silent marchers in a host
That arcs the morning sky,
For we are happy in our lot
And would not hear you sigh.

Today you vision distant graves
Among the poppies set;
The pain, the anguish, and the tears . . .
All these are with you yet;
But these be futile murmurings
We plead you to forget.

Looking Back
On This Date

Twenty years ago! Do you remember the real Armistice Day of November 11, 1918? Do you remember how, hoping against hope, you had read in the newspapers that there was a bare possibility of peace?

Do you remember how crowds surrounded the newspaper offices late into the night, some of them through the night, waiting for the official news, the official because there had been, 48 hours before, a premature bulletin that an armistice had been agreed to?

Do you remember how strong men were not ashamed to weep for joy; how staid ladies embraced those nearest to them and murmured their "Thank God's"?

Do you remember the magnetic thrill that went round the world as the cable carried the news, and how the whole world took holiday and cheered and laughed and cried and laughed again that the Horror was over and that there was a world again at Peace?

Looking back at it now, it was all very wonderful; but, remembering our own experiences of a few weeks ago when minute by minute we waited for the slightest ray of hope from London and Munich, can we imagine what that armistice period of 20 years ago would have been? Rumors and counter-rumors, suppositions and possibilities, fear, joy, despair, hope, all in alternate seconds! Perhaps, in view of that recent wave of hysteria on the American continent over a radio broadcast, it is just as well we did not have the radio of the present in that November of 1918.

As we remember today; as we pay our silent homage to those who died for us in that most agonizing of wars (to us at least; although perhaps thousands in Ethiopia, Spain and China have suffered far worse agonies)—let us all with one accord join thanksgiving with our remembrance today. The Valiant Hearts of whom we sing would be the first, if they could but speak, to tell us on this Remembrance Day to remember not only their sacrifice but also that divine guidance which at Munich averted from us of today the fear of another war, to be followed in its turn by its own Remembrance.

Let us this day recognize, personally and as a people, that He who rules all things has saved us from another bloody cataclysm and "Sing to the Lord with joyful voice" our gratitude that today we are able to Remember in Peace maintained by Him who ruleth all things best. And say with Kipling:

Still stands Thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart;
Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget.

support from the members of tht Legislature, Mr. Conant for Ontario, Mr. Mercer for Durham and Mr. Elliott for Peterborough and how the project had received the approval of the department.

Recently he said the Brooklin to Peterborough road proposal had come into the picture and the impression had been created that if Peterborough would support that proposition work would start almost immediately. That proposal he said had definitely put back the work that the Central Ontario Association had been doing. He added that at a meeting in Port Perry recently it was unanimously decided by those present to support the original program.

"I feel that Peterborough's interests would be best served," said Ald. Dutton, "by having the Peterborough-Port Perry highway completed."

Mr. Bowes' Address

In beginning a lengthy survey of the movement for an east-to-west highway Secretary W. M. Bowes stressed the fact that from the point of view of opportunity Peterborough stood in an unique position. "I don't believe you realize your opportunity," he declared.

Mr. Bowes pointed out, after describing the Peterborough-Port Perry highway plan, that Deputy Minister Smith of the Highways Department had always favored the idea of a road running directly east from Brooklin to the Newcastle-Lindsay road, along that road to Pontypool and then easterly through Millbrook to Highway 28. The speaker said that such a road would not be any shorter, it would cost more and it would not begin to serve nearly as many people as the Peterborough-Port Perry plan.

The speaker told of the progress that had been made in Western Ontario in favor of the completion of the through highway and described the unanimity with which representatives of Western Ontario municipalities, many of them not on the highway themselves, had endorsed the plan of a highway from Peterborough through Port Perry to Orangeville. They regarded it as an essential work in the interest of the whole province. If the people of this district stood together, they fortified by the hearty cooperation of the Western Ontario division of the Central Ontario Highway Association, could count on getting action from the government. In this connection Mr. Bowes advocated a three-year program, with a proportionate amount of work being done in each division each year.

Mr. Bowes concluded by dealing with the suggested diagonal highway from Peterborough to Brooklin, declaring that if Peterborough endorsed that proposition now it would be selling its birth right for a mess of pottage.

Supports Original Plan

Urging that the completion of the original plan should not be endangered by support for this new proposal, Mr. Bowes said that he felt confident that Peterborough, which had given leadership to the movement for the building of the east-and-west highway for ten years or more would not desert it now.

"If it were paved with gold and pearly gates were set up at one end," said the speaker, "I would not expect any change in your policy." In addition to being a threat to the proposition that had so long been advocated Mr. Bowes said that the suggested diagonal road would do Peterborough infinitely more harm than good for it would take trade to Oshawa and Toronto that otherwise would come to this city. He pointed out that the completion of the through highway from Montreal to Lake Huron would mean an immense amount of tourist business for Peterborough and urged that the chance should not be thrown away for doubtful benefits of another highway plan.

At the same time the speaker doubted very much if a direct diagonal road would be built. Such a highway had never been constructed in Canada and it would be a very expensive proposition. He was sure that all that would eventually be done would be to open a road from Brooklin to Peterborough that would be constructed like a series of steps, rather than directly diagonally.

Motorists Want It

When the matter was thrown open for discussion Alex. Sollitt said that he represented the motorists of the city and felt that the vast majority of them would be in favor of a trunk highway to Toronto. He was in favor of the Peterborough-Port Perry highway and was sure that that road would be built but this diagonal highway was over and above the other plan and was a separate proposition. The idea of the government was to divert a lot of the touristtraffic which came into Ontario at Niagara Falls away from Highway No. 2 and to give such traffic a trunk highway to Ottawa.

J. H. Watson of the Business Men's Association said that he felt that while the Toronto-Peterborough highway might serve its purpose later on the thing to be striven for now was the completion of the Peterborough-Port Perry highway. George Hewett and Fred J. Overend expressed themselves as of the same opinion that the through highway should come first and Tom Brown, president of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition and James Kennedy of Cavan added their endorsation of the policy of completing the original project before thinking about the diagonal suggestion.

President Dutton declared that he was not opposed to the Peterborough-Toronto idea but his position was that the Peterborough-Port Perry proposition came first and until that was completed he refused to consider the other plan.

This concluded the discussion and after the resolution had been endorsed the meeting closed with an expression of appreciation from President Dutton to Mr. Bowes for the mass of information he had made available.

Present in addition to the speakers of the evening were George Hewitt, Fred J. Overend, Ald. James Juby, J. J. Dorris, secertary of the Chamber of Commerce, H. L. Garner, James Kennedy and W. Cathcart, Cavan, Alex. Sollitt and Tom Brown.

Times As Grave Now As Ever Pershing Says At Ceremony

By Andrue Berding
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Heavy guns roared, shells whistled through the mist, German shells shrieked overhead—then, of a sudden, unbelievable silence. It was 11 o'clock on the morning of Nov. 11, 1918.

And in Washington on the same day President Woodrow Wilson told the United States congress "the war thus comes to an end."

Throughout the United States millions observed solemnly today the 20th anniversary of that end of the Great War. For the first time it was a national holiday.

President Roosevelt, Colonel Fulgencio Batista, head of the Cuban army, and General John Pershing were among the dignitaries accepting invitations to memorial ceremonies at the tomb of the unknown soldier.

The occasion brought a rare statement on public affairs from Pershing, who led the United States forces in France.

"The situation in the world today is as menacing as at any critical time in history," he said.

"It demands immediate and vigorous action on our part lest there be visited upon us the recent experience of England and France.

"Not only from beyond the Atlantic do these dangers threaten the Americas. Moreover we are the natural protectors of the freedom of this hemisphere and we cannot escape our obligation."

Pershing advocated an adequate, thoroughly trained and equipped army, supported by a mobilized industry. His statement was issued while army and navy officials were outlining the largest peacetime budget ever to be presented to congress. It is estimate to be about $1,300,000,000.

Amiens Defeat Told Germans War Was Lost

By Captain W. W. Murray, M.C.
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Twenty years ago to-day Canada with tumultuous acclaim from sea to sea heard the news of the armistice ending the war in which, during its sanguinary four years, hundreds of thousands of her sons had been engaged.

On board a special train in the station of a remote village in the Champagne district of France the armistice was signed at five o'clock in the morning of Nov. 11, 1918. Rethondes, where this momentous document was accepted by the defeated army, had no spot in the world's gazeteers before the war. To-day it is recalled as the place to which the German emissaries came on Nov. 8, 1918, to sue for peace.

Twenty years later, in 1938, with the fruition of the new Germany's military preparations and the re-establishment of another great war machine considerable effort has been expended in the Reich to assert that the German army of the Great War was not defeated in the field, but that treachery on the home front brought about the collapse of the nation. Logic of events argues against this; also the evidence of the German war-time leaders themselves.

"The Emperor told me later that, after the failure of the July offensive, he knew the war could no longer be won." So wrote the late Erich Ludendorff, Quartermaster-General of the German Armies, in his memoirs. Ludendorff spoke frankly in those reminiscences. He characterized the Canadian victory at Amiens on Aug. 8, 1918, as "the black day of the German Army." Six days later, he has disclosed, Kaiser Wilhelm instructed Secretary of State von Hintze "to open up peace negotiations."

Approaches For Peace

This was even before the British offensives in the west were properly started. Von Hintze, it is learned, "confidently hoped" on Sept. 9, "for mediation through the Queen of Holland."

The collapse of the Hindenburg line, the Canadian triumph at the Canal du Nord, and the other onslaughts which reduced position after position evoked, on Sept. 29, the following admission from the German leader: "Duty compelled us at last to substitute action for idle time-wasting and empty words. The enemy had to be asked for peace and an armistice."

The German general headquarters agreed with the political authority to despatch a note to President Woodrow Wilson and the French and British Governments. And on that point Marshal Paul von Hindenburg, supreme commander of the German forces, has this to say on Oct. 3: "General headquarters holds to the demand made by it on Monday, Sept. 29, of this year, for an immediate peace offer to the enemy."

The offer found its way, through the United States ambassador in Switzerland, to President Wilson; but the United States executive would not act independently. He communicated the terms to Clemenceau of France and Lloyd George of England. Meanwhile there was no diminution of the furious attacks before which the German army was reeling. Its morale had greatly deteriorated; its will to resist had collapsed.

"In deep inward anguish I could only say: 'There is no hope, Germany is lost.'" Thus wrote Ludendorff on the conditions he had to deal with on Oct. 25. Haste was now imperative. "In the German note of Oct. 27 we capitulated," he wrote.

Events accelerated Germany's activities. Valenciennes had fallen. Everywhere the field-grey soldiers were being hurled back. On Nov. 6 it was announced a German commission had been appointed to devise means of agreement "concerning an expected armistice."

Marshal Foch communicated the route which the enemy's envoys must take on entering the war zone. They had to advance to the French outposts by the Chimay-Fourmies-La Capelle-Guise Road. There the German delegation was met by French officers and conducted to the station at Rethondes, where Foch's special train was drawn up.

In Great Britain the terms of the armistice had been completed several days before. Sir Sam Faye, president of the London and South Western Railway, who has much to do in the direction of military transport during the War, has disclosed that on Oct. 24 he was at the War Office. "engaged all day with the General Staff, fixing up ideas of an armistice for the Western and other fronts."

Germans Aghast

Sir Sam discussed the clauses next day with Sir Henry Wilson, Chief of the Imperial General Staff. On Nov. 4 he "went through the terms of the armistice, which had been settled at Versailles for presentation to the Germans when they give in."

What took place at Rethondes now is history. The Germans asked for an immediate cessation of hostilities which Foch preemptorily refused The generalissimo then read to the enemy the terms imposed by the Allies, and informed them these must be accepted. There would be no modification. Aghast at the severity of them, German enjoys asked permission to communicate them to their Army Headquarters at Spa, Belgium. For this purpose they were accorded 72 hours grace. A messenger was despatched to Spa; and he returned on the morning of Nov. 11, bearing with him the unqualified acceptance of the Germans.

In the railway car at Rethondes signatures were affixed to the 35 clauses of the armistice document at 5 a.m., with six hours allowed wherein to have all belligerents notified that the Great War had ended.

At eleven o'clock on the eleventh day of the eleventh month "cease fire" sounded.

Prominent Leaders At Marmora At Legion Remembrance Banquet

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Nov. 11. — The twentieth anniversary of Remembrance Day was fittingly observed by Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion with a banquet in the Town Hall on Thursday evening, the catering for the occasion being in the hands of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

All walks of life from almost every surrounding village were represented in the large gathering which filled the hall to the doors. Toastmaster duties fell to Lieut.-Col. A. V. Yates, M.C., V.D., who, after submitting "The King" and calling upon Comrade W. Mumby to propose "Fallen Comrades" (responded by Comrade G. Brooks with the sounding of Last Post and Reveille), tendered thanks to the orchestra, Jack Grant and his aces, for playing selections as the banquet was in progress. Comrade S. B. Cheeseman having rendered "The Veterans' Song," community singing followed.

The toastmaster welcomed all and said three were few present at the tables who did not remember the Armistice of twenty years ago. He wished there were more of the younger folk present to get the vision of what that Armistice meant.

Reads Message

He referred briefly to the experiences of the ex-service men who remembered twenty years ago. He read the original message received by his battalion of which he was adjutant, on Armistice Day. "Hostilities will cease at eleven hours and all troops will stand fast in the lines they have reached," the message read.

The toast "Canadian Legion was proposed by Comrade P. Gray who outlined the objects of the Legion and also referred to the Junior Legion. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, M.C., of Belleville, in response, gave a most inspiring message. He prefaced his remarks by saying that the Marmora Branch had inherited the traditions of the Canadian Corps and noted that the maxim "One for all and all for one" was in evidence.

The speaker reminded his hearers that Canada and her interests were close to their hearts that night, and following a description of Canada's resources said that they have a thrill for various other audiences but "the true core of Canada's hold on our faithful love is still unexplained.

Few Wealthy

"Few of us," he said, "would be invited to the bankers' table, few would be given a seat at a board of directors whose true business is to count their wealth. The majority must bear the burden of the day and heat. Only one thing that will lighten the burden of the toiling masses. That is the divine spark of heavenly fire. It gives one courage and spirit to raise his eyes to the level of other men. The one thing that constitutes his earthly happiness is his freedom. His love for Canada is only second to his love of the Kingdom of God. There are three words he can say with emphasis, "I am free."

Speaking of the men who gave their all for Canada, Monsignor Nicholson said there was unhesitating recognition that they had the Divine beauty of sacrifice. "A man may gain his life again by losing it," he continued. "Dust thou art, to dust returnest," was not spoken of the soul.

"The citizens of Canada are free people living under the principles of freedom. In vain will Communism ever affect Canada or Nazism or Fascism. May generations to come pay homage to the men whose achievements made fame of Canada known to the four corners of the earth," said the speaker in conclusion.

George Woodhouse then rendered "That Tumble Down Shack in Athlone" and "When You Wore a Tulip," in response to an encore.

An address by Alf Scadding, of Moose River fame introduced as an original First contingent man, received the closest attention of everyone present. A few sections only of his impressive address are herewith given.

Comrade Scadding mentioned that he and Dr. Robertson had gone to France with the First Contingent. Referring to the interest taken in the harrowing experiences of the trio at Moose River, he said that there were about one hundred reporters and about the same number of photographers there. He and the doctor received about five thousand letters after the rescue and about one hundred had notes of condemnation in them.

Speaking of the 242 hours they were underground, Mr. Scadding said his weight decreased in that time from 145 pounds to 90 pounds. He maintained that he and Dr. Robertson would not have survived had it not been for their army training. Referring to the matter of his feet being affected more than those of Dr. Robertson, he said that whereas he was wearing prospector's boots, the doctor wore oxfords which allowed more circulation in his feet.

Following more community singing with Fred Houchin of Stirling at the piano, Comrade T. Cousins ably proposed "Our Visitors" and excellent responses were forthcoming from Rork Ferguson, M.P., George S. White and R. D. Arnott, M.P.

Benediction was pronounced by Dean A. B. Caldwell following the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

Release Of Mons Is Recalled In The Observance Of Remembrance Day In Canada

By Captain W. W. Murray, M.C.
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Recalling 20 years after the reactions of the men at the front on the first Armistice Day it would seem a proper climax to the four years of fighting with its tragedy and wretchedness to observe boundless jubilation among the troops when the "cease fire" message was received.

Rejoicing there was, unquestionably, but in the main, the fighting troops "carried on" throughout the day of Nov. 11, 1918, pretty much as they had been accustomed to on any other day.

Whatever excesses featured the war's end elsewhere, none were manifest among the soldiers. The 2nd Canadian Division, south-east of Mons, was advancing all morning, intent upon gaining a good defensive position by 11 o'clock. The same is true of the 3rd Canadian Division, east and north-east of the city.

The 1st and 4th Canadian Divisions had been "in rest" in the vicinity of Valenciennes for some days. Actually the war ended for the 1st Division in the last week of October. Orders had been issued for the battalions of this Division to relieve the 3rd Division on the evening of Nov. 11. The armistice brought about a cancellation of these instructions.

In the forward area the armistice found the troops digging in on the ridges east and south-east of Mons. Eleven o'clock came and went. The scattered rumbling of the guns ceased abruptly, and the troops continued digging-in. Nobody got excited over the event. It was all in the day's work.

Troops in billets cleaned their rifles, polished their buttons, brushed their equipment—and went out on parade. The momentous message was read to stolid ranks of battalions in mass. Nobody cheered; nobody fell out. The parades were dismissed, and the men went back to their card games or essayed a trip to the estaminets, pleased the war was over, but much more relieved that there would be no more parading or route marching that day.

A ceremonial parade through Mons, with a review of the conquering troops by Sir Arthur Currie, the Corps Commander, featured the afternoon of Nov. 11. This was a 3rd Division "show." But that was coldly—er, warmly—officials and it is another story.

The First and the Last.

So fa ras it known, the first official battle casualty of the British Army in the Great War was Trooper Tucker of the 4th (Royal Irish) Dragoon Guards. Also, so far as is known, the last was Private George L. Price, a Canadian from Port Williams, N.S., and a member of the 28th Canadian Infantry Battalion.

Tucker was wounded by an enemy bullet on the evening of Aug. 22, 1914, when "C" Squadron of the 4th Dragoon Guards charged a group of German cavalrymen at Casteau, about four miles north-east of Mons, in the initial clash of the war. Price was killed by a German sniper, near the final outpost line east of Mons, three minutes before the "Cease Fire" sounded, on Nov. 11, 1918.

In the Canadian mind the beginning and the end of the Great War willalways be asosciated with Mons. If the actual evidence of history were to be invoked the Canadian belief would be forced to undergo some considerable amendment, for, although it is quite true that the British and German armies first came into conflict in Mons, it is equally true that at the close of the war the British and Germans were locked in battle along an extensive front which was dotted with many cities and towns. Each of them is entitled to the claim of being a place where the war ended.

That much, however, may readily be conceded. It narrows the Canadian concept but does not destroy it; and it clarifies the claim of the city of Mons. Here fighting began; here it ended. In the period between nearly 1,000,000 British soldiers and sailors lost their lives.

Mons Golden Book.

The liberation of Mons and the arrival of the Canadians, a significantly historical event, preserved in the city's Golden Book, was marked by the visits to the Hotel de Ville of extremely junior officers.

No illustrious names adorn the first page of the Golden Book. The higher command had its hours of glory in the afternoon of Nov. 11, 1918; but in the dark hours of the morning, the visitation was made by young officers in fighting equipment, passing through Mons on the heels of the retiring Germans and halting only long enough at the Town Hall to pay their respects, sign the book and voice a quick salute.

At 5 a.m. the College of the Burgomaster and Aldermen had hastened to the Hotel de Ville, for already the streets were echoing the tramp of the marching Canadians. So far only scattered patrols had weaved their way cautiously through the tortuous, narrow, cobble-stone thoroughfares. But jubilant crowds, the news of the city's liberation shouted from house to house, were thronging in the streets.

First to present himself to the Burgomaster and the city fathers was Lieut. W. M. King, Halifax, Royal Canadian Regiment. He was received with proper ceremony, and signed the Golden Book. His was the first name to be inscribed.

Lieut. L. H. Biggar and Lieut. J. W. Cave, both of the 42nd battalion were the next callers. Others came. They were Lieut. H. Breaby of the R.C.R.; a French interpreter whose name, unfortunately, is undecipherable; Capt. D. C. Malcolm, 8th Canadian Field Ambulance; Major G. G. Backstock, 3rd Canadian Divisional staff; Lieut. L. Deckers, Belgian interpreter; Captain M. P. Gregg, V.C., of the R. C.R.; Lieut.-Col. W. Gibson, 3rd Divisional Staff; Capt. M. N. Thomas, 9th Canadian Field Ambulance; Capt. Frank Knight, 8th Field Ambulance and Capt. W. J. Mackenzie, 8th Field Ambulance.

Luis Companys, president of Catalonia, is shown at the microphone during his recent Barcelona address, in the course, of which, he described the measures taken by the Spanish Loyalist government for the withdrawal of foreign volunteers from government forces. Company's speech was seen as a gesture toward a settlement of the questions that have caused Spain to be torn by civil war for the past two years.

AFRAID TO MARRY

By HELEN WELSHIMER

CHAPTER 45

"STERLING, the guy who made Abbey's heart jump rope for a while didn't forget her, even if he didn't take her up on that idea that he should divorce his wife to marry her," Ronald went on speaking as he faced Judy at the small table in a corner of the coffee shop.

"The trouble was that Abbey forgot him. She went to Europe and decided she perferred a count, one with a castle and a crest and minus a wife. He liked the idea, too. You know all about the engagement to Count Philippe. You were in on the wedding plans and the final explosion.

"What you don't know is that this bozo, Sterling, had saved Abbey's letters. Smart guy. Figured he might have use for them. He wanted to make Abbey buy them. She came to me about it and I almost got down on my knees to beg her to do nothing. She convinced me the letters weren't dangerous. But she was frantic.

"Well, so far as I knew Abbey had obeyed my instructions. Say, what are you looking so all wise about?" He broke off to add.

"Nothing," Judy said, picking up her coffee cup and burning her tongue on the hot liquid. But she had a reason. Now she understood why Ronald and Abbey had consulted together so secretively that morning at breakfast at the Boland estate. She knew why there were other conferences. Maybe the man who slipped into the shadows on Christmas eve, the man whose identity Abbey was protecting, had been this Cregg Sterling.

Ronald wasn't convinced. "You look as though you were putting pieces of a puzzle together. Where did you scent the mystery?"

"I'll tell you some other time. Go on now."

"Well, Sterling was disgusted because he couldn't cash in. He thought the game was up when the Count walked out. Who was I that Abbey would care if I knew? Besides, I knew already and had been advising her.

"Now we come to the part that I didn't know.

"Sterling went to a professional blackmailer and sold those letters to him for a certain sum. This man figured that I wouldn't want Abbey's former romance revealed because I now had an interest in the young lady, so I'd advise her differently. But Abbey didn't tell me about the change in crooks because she didn't know about it herself.

"She saw Sterling and, unknown to me, gave him some money. That whetted his appetite, especially since he now had to divide with the blackmailer. This bozo was using him as a go-between. Abbey didn't know that. Sterling, at the blackmailer's request, asked Abbey to fix a time and place from me where I could be seen. That's where your apartment came in Sterling, getting cold feet, didn't come. He gave the imformation to the blackmailer, who happened around next night. He had met Abbey, who didn't know his past. She thought he was someone whom Sterling dragged along. Now he met her again, explained a little more, and collected.

"Abbey realized what she had done when it was too late. She had played into their hands. So she phoned me. You know—in my office the other night. The blackmailer was already being checked up on two more important scores. Those letters of the alphabet that you got, while having no hearing on this case, identified him as the man who had sent notes in the others.

"See how it all worked together? Meantime, he and the guy who first owned Abbey's letters quarreled over their split. Abbey has the gems back—by gems I mean letters. I advised her to burn them at once."

"But you are no nearer a solution than ever," Judy said, when the recital was finished.

"Not much. This guy Sterling hates me like poison, though. Thinks I put a spook in his game. It might be that he—but that's just a fancy."

"It's worth working on. Told it to the officers?"

"I dropped a hint."

Judy went to the salon and worked until eight that night. Not because she needed to make up time, but because she couldn't think when she worked. The most important question of all she had not asked Ronald. She could not ask him if he and Abbey had made up that strange engagement, and if it held real significance.

At nine o'clock she went into a white-tiled cafeteria near her own apartment. She ordered a bowl of soup, found some iced fruit, and took a glass of milk from the beverage counter. She was tired.

The day had held surprises. She had worked hard, only to discover she had been helping Abbey. But what of it? If it relieved Ronald's mind, she mustn't care.

Wearily she went down the street to her own apartment house. A car was parked in front of it.

As she turned at the steps, Bob Cushing's gay voice called:

"We always are locked out!"

Judy went to the side of the car. "Marjorie and Bob! Come in! Come up!"

Bob shook his head. "No, that's what we want you to do. Move over, Marge. There's room for three, Judy."

She climbed in. "You look adorable, Marjorie. That's a stunning violet togue. Where are we going?

"Ever hear of Greenwich?" Bob asked.

Judy nodded, eyes amused. "Tonight?"

"Tonight! A reporter has to grab what time he can get for things like meals, and sleep, and getting married. I have a night off and—go on, Marjorie, you're getting married, too. You talk awhile."

So the car started up to Connecticut and Judy tried to slip into the gay mood of the boy and girl who were so happy. Marjorie was radiant. Her eyes and lips and skin shone. The count was quite gone now. That was splendid. She and Bob would have a happy-go-lucky life.

As though he knew what she was thinking, Bob said: "I can't offer Marjorie a roof tree and a garden and ancestral teacups. A good, fat trunk so she can pack in a hurry is my best bet. You see, I may be sent anywhere. I'm a rover, a wonderer, a news monger!—"

"Silly nut!" Marjorie's voice made the words divine. "It's going to be heaven!"

It would be heaven, Judy knew. Heaven was anywhere that you and the one you loved and who loved you lived together. Only two could sight Paradise, though. It was never a lonely land. It was there, waiting. She knew. For a brief moment she had thought she held a key— then the tide swept it down stream.

"I'm getting a foreign assignment in a day or two," Bob said more seriously after a little while "That's why the sudden haste. You'll find a few of the gang from the Press falling in line as we pass the office. It may be morning before the wedding celebration ends. Mind, Judy?"

Judy had thought that she would ask Bob's advice about the situation that involved Ronald. She didn't, though. He was so filled with his own plans that she knew it would be dismissed lightly. He would intend to give it serious attention—and never again think about it.

Greenwich. Marriage. Simple, dignified words that bound Marjorie and Bob together. For how long? Judy wondered why she let that doubt arise. Couldn't she ever banish it? Would she always be distrustful of marriage? And if she was, why did she believe with such certainty that there was no happiness for her—if Ronald's train shot under the Hudson tunnel, rolled across the flat plains of New Jersy to Philadelphia, and swung southward to Washington and the southern land he loved?

According to the lunar transits, this day places the accent on occupation work, employers and those in influential positions who may stand ready to give recognition, preferment and favors to those meriting such co-operation and endorsement. This may involve some minor changes, possibly short journeys or a rearrangement of surroundings and plans. Care is recommended in these, as there are signs of trivial annoyances, gossip and duplicities.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which their superiors and employers may be disposed to bestow favors, promotion, or other tokens of personal preferment. As a Son Is Trained in the Home, So He Will Become as a Husband, So Mothers Need To Be Watchful Over the Young Men Before Marriage

"WHEN I think of my mother-in-law," said a woman to me the other day, "I do not know whether to regard her as my greatest benefactor, or look upon her as my dearest enemy. Sometimes I am down on my knees before her for the good man she gave me. Then sometimes I think she ought to go before a firing squad for not teaching him the technique of being a good husband.

"There is no excuse for her not having done this, for every woman knows the kind of husband every wife craves and what things turn marriage from being a chore into being Paradise. And she also knows that these things have more to do with his manners than with morals.

"Why, then, knowing that Charlie would some day marry, didn't she teach him to make paying his wife a daily compliment as much a part of his ritual as brushing his teeth? It would set me up for the whole day to be told that he still considered me a Lady Love and not just a useful household convenience. I would spring with joy from my couch and leap to the kitchen to get breakfast for a man who would rave over my coffee and praise the toast and eggs and tell me that I was the greatest wife ever. But it makes me feel like a driven slave to have to do it for a husband who gobbles down his food and never gives me a pat on the head, or says, 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant.'

"And why didn't she teach him that while love is enough for courtship it takes money to underwrite a home? It would save many a man a shock from which he never recovers if his mother had made him devour the monthly bills along with his spinach. Then even in the cradle he would have known that wives don't grow their own fine feathers as birds do. He would know that wives can't make a few passes with their hands over a cookstove and conjure up steaks and chops and pies out of the air and he would know that having a baby costs just about as much as it does to set up a yacht.

"Why didn't she impress it so deeply upon Charlie's infantile mind that it would have stuck that a wife is entitled to some of the money she earns by her services in the house, even if she can't give notice and quit when her husband doles out chicken feed to her and makes her come like a beggar to him for every penny? It would have saved us a million fights on the money question and kept me from seeing red when he talks about supporting me after I have put in a fourteen-hour day cooking and baby-tending and doing the innumerable odd jobs that must be done to keep a home running on oiled bearings.

"Why didn't she teach him along with the catechism that little things bulk larger than big things with women, that they put more stress on words than deeds and that they would rather have their perquisites than their rights? Why didn't she teach him that the way to get along with a wife is to use the salve-spreader instead of the hammer?

"Charlie thinks he pays me a compliment and that I am tickled to death when he tells me how sensible I am; that he doesn't always have to be honeying me up and telling me how beautiful and wonderful I am because I just take it for granted that he loves me, or else he wouldn't work himself to death to keep me soft and easy. Why didn't she wise him up to the fact that being practical about love is always a bluff with a woman; that I am dying to be petted and made much of and to be given a few white hyacinths instead of being fed on the filet mignon?

"And, oh how I wish she had taught Charlie to be neat and orderly, to hang up his clothes on hooks instead of the floor and not to leave the bathroom looking as if it had been wrecked by a cyclone. How many backaches that would save me!

"For, you see we daughters-in-law are absolutely at the mercy of our mothers-in-law. We have to take what they give us because they fashion the men we marry. They form their little boys' manners and habits and points of view. By the time little Johnny and Charlies are 6 years old Mother has settled whether they are going to be God's gift to some lucky girl, or a pain in the neck to some patient wife. And there is nothing that the wife can do about it. Mother has got in her work first.

"I know nothing else so tragic as that virtually every mother prays that her own daughter won't get the kind of a husband she is rearing for some other woman's daughter."

Good Times for You If You Read Palms

Love, Money, Power?

What fascinating tales palms tell! And how fascinating you are to your friends if you can read their palms. It's simple to know how, too.

And the Heart Line. Does it run across the entire palm in your left hand — but is short in the right one? You've conquered a too affectionate, jealous nature.

Or is it riches you want? A long fourth finger says you'll make money easily. A star below the first finger says you'll have power.

The other lines and stars in your palm? Each one has a meaning which our 32-page booklet explains. Fun to learn them.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of SECRETS OF PALMISTRY to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

Knarf and Hanid, the shadow-children, stepped through the tiny crack in the rock. And there they were, inside the spring!

It was quite dark, and for a moment or two they couldn't see anything. All around them they heard little voices which sounded like the gurgle of water. "Drink us! Drink us!" they kept saying.

When their eyes became accustomed to the darkness, the two shadows saw that they were in a sort of low-roofed cave. It stretched back as far as they could see.

They were in a low-roofed cave.

Look Like Drops.

And now they discovered that the voices came from a great number of curious little creatures who looked like drops of water. They had little watery faces, and arms and legs which kept changing their shape. These little creatures kept springing into the water and splashing out again. All of a sudden they came dashing up to Knarf and Hanid.

"You're in the spring!" they shouted merrily.

"Oh! Don't come too close. You're getting us all wet," Hanid said.

"You're just drops of water, you know," Knarf added. "And you feel cold."

"We're cold and we're clear. We're the water of the spring," they all cried.

Name Is Freshet.

Then one of the drops of water—he said his name was Freshet — looked up at them and said: "Do you know where all this water comes from?"

"No," said Hanid.

Then Freshet said: "Come along with us and we'll show you."

So they started off, walking back, back through the cave. It grew darker and darker. But they could still make out the stream of water.

"And now," said Freshet, when they reached the back of the cave, "we have to squeeze through this little slit in the wall." First he slid through it himself. Then the two shadows followed him. Most of the other droplets stayed behind. "We'll see you later," they said. "Give our regards to our friends at the other end."

"I wonder where we're going now," Knarf said to Hanid as they squeezed through the slit and started climbing up a steep, dim passage.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head and ear noises or are growing hard of hearing go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.—(Advt.)

Girl Wins Veterinary Honors

Another branch of professional endeavor believed to be reserved for men has been successfully invaded by a woman. At the annual commencement exercises of the Ontario Veterinary College at Guelph yesterday, a young woman, Miss Jean Rumney of Hamilton was listed among the honor graduates and tied with a student from Chicago for the Parasitology award. In the old days a "vet" was called a horse doctor and it requires a stretch of imagination to picture a woman in this role.

✧ ✧ ✧

Hoop Skirts Returning

One of Toronto's charming debutantes, Miss Nadine Beardmore, who made her bow to society this week chose a frock of white crinkly crepe made with shoulder straps and a huge hoop skirt. This is further proof that hoops are beginning once more to fit into the fashion picture, and stylists predict that many hoop-skirt frocks will be worn this autumn and winter.

Bride-Elect Honored

Mrs. Florence Butcher, Wolsely street, entertained Wednesday evening from seven to nine at a trousseau tea given in honor of her daughter, Jennie, a bride of this week. Mrs. Butcher and her daughter, assisted by Mrs. Austin Hayes of Omemee, mother of the groom, received their guests in the living room.

The rooms were tastefully decorated in pink and white and the tea table covered with a lace cloth was centred with pink carnations in a silver basket. Tea was poured by Mrs. Dougal Hayes, sister-in-law of the groom, and coffee was poured by Miss Gertie Butcher, sister of the bride. Mrs. R. Armstrong and the Misses Helen Johnston and Ruth Murray assisted in serving and the Misses Elsie Johnson, Jean Murray and Norma Adlam displayed the shower gifts, wedding gifts, hope chest and trousseau. Over 100 guests were received during the evening.

Mix War Service With Education

NORTHEAST SHANSI, China Nov. 11—(CP)—A comely 22-year-old co-ed is leader of 6,000,000 farm women who are assisting husbands and sons in the guerilla armies of North China. A year ago Miss Liu Kuang Yun was a junior at China College in Peiping.

Seen by a correspondent, Miss Liu was dressed in drab cotton slacks, a loose-fitting shirt, and a pair of straw sandals. "Not much like the high heels and silk gowns I wore in Peiping," she laughed.

"Our women's National Salvation Association undertakes many kinds of war work," she explained. "We make stockings and shoes for the soldiers, serve as sentries on the roads, and prepare bandages for the wounded. Sometimes we even help in the fighting."

The co-ed pointed to huge wall maps on which are marked the 8,000 villages of North China in which women's unions have already been organized.

"The best story I can tell you about our work is the contest we held this spring along the Peiping-Hankow railway to see which woman could cut down the most Japanese telephone poles in one night. The prize had to be divided between two 17-year-old girls who sawed down 36 poles each and carried back the copper wire for use in our own guerilla telephone system."

War work is only one emergency activity of the National Salvation Association, Miss Liu said. In the border area of Shansi-Chahar-Hopei provinces, about 200,000 women now are enrolled in classes for literacy, after only six months of organizing, she claims. "We hope to enrol everyone of the 6,000,000 women in this district by the end of next year," she says.

"Our women's unions have already helped to direct the village elections in this district, in which women voted equally with men. Many villages have elected women to the post of assistant headmen, and in some county governments women have been appointed department chiefs. Such activities for Chinese women are evidence of the social revolution this war is fostering.

"We sometimes have mass meetings to denounce the cruel treatment which some husbands give their wives. We hope that day will soon be past."

Everett Elmhurst Heads Officers Westwood A.Y.P.A.

The regular monthly meeting of the A.Y.P.A. of St. Michael's church, Westwood, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Elmhurst on Tuesday evening with the president, Miss Mary Birdsall, presiding. The meeting opened with the singing of the hymn, "Stand Up, Stand Up For Jesus," then the rector, Rev. R. E. Lemon read a portion of the scripture and led the group in a few short prayers.

The instillation service for the new officers will be held in the church on Sunday, November 20.

The meeting was then turned over to Miss Mary Birdsall who gave an interesting and complete report on the A.Y.P.A. conference held in Peterborough and which she attended as delegate for her branch.

A heart vote of thanks was extended to Mary for her splendid report.

Refreshments were served and after thanks was extended to Mr. and Mrs. Elmhurst for the use of their home, the meeting closed with the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

JEWELRY CHARMS THE SIMPLE DRESS

One Piece Assures Luxury-Look and Animation

By ALICE ALDEN

Jewelry is of tremendous importance this season. One piece of jewelry the right piece of course, can give luxury and animation to a simple dress. In fact, a dress of the simple, basic type is the nicest background for a piece of jewelry. This year it is the chatelaine, cleverly adopted to the mode modern, that is doing its bit to bring beauty to our simple frocks. Barbara Stanwyck in the photo, upper left, wears a frock of bottle-green with rush suede accessories, and glorifies it with a piece designed by Fathom. It is a quaint pin, English in motif and inspiration, done in gilt metal with horses and hearts, suspended from a lion's head. The other photo shows Barbara in a sand-colored wool ensemble, having a dress of striped silk. A dramatic touch is a six-strand necklace of heavy gilt chain.

Women of To-day Better Mothers

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.—(CP) — Maybe grandmother was a remarkable woman, but present-day women are better mothers, better cooks, better housekeepers and better shoppers, in the opinion of Helen G. Campbell of Toronto.

Addressing a business club here, Miss Campbell said Canadian women have "the last word" in business. They are becoming more and more interested in the nation's trade and more discriminating in their purchasing. She warned advertisers against cloaking their products with too much glamor. Understatement, said Miss Campbell, was a good British trait, and used in advertising it often provided a pleasant surprise.

Do You Know?

An effective way to remove fruit stains from table linen is to dab the spot on the tablecloth with a drop of liquid ammonia? It will disappear in a few moments.

✧ ✧ ✧

Copper kettles can be cleaned by rubbing with a lemon cut in half and dipped in salt? This will remove tarnish marks and make the metal bright. To keep clean, wipe over with a very little olive oil immediately after polishing with a dry, soft duster.

✧ ✧ ✧

That cheese for use in hot dishes should be blended over a low fire? Cheese that is well ripened has more flavor and blends smoother than new cheese.

✧ ✧ ✧

If you would keep your table line and napkins snowy white and unspotted, you should never press with a hot iron while there is the slightest vestige of stain? A hot iron sets stains and spots to such an extent that it may be impossible ever to remove them. Quick action and the proper method of removal insure best results.

JUST BETWEEN US - WOMEN

"Take life too seriously, and what is it worth? If the morning wake us to no new joys, if the evening brings us not the hope of new pleasures, is it worth while to dress and undress? Does the sun shine on me today that I may reflect on yesterday? That I may endeavour to forsee and to control what can neither be forseen nor controlled—the destiny of tomorrow?" —Goethe.

Dear Friends:

Isn't this a good quotation? We have to have something to look forward to at the end of the day's labor, if life is to be supportable at all. We must have something to look forward to in our work, something to strive for, better than we have at present, else the whole thing loses its savor.

And it is we ourselves who must reach out for these pleasures, it is we who must brighten our own lives. In young faces you see a reaching out for fun, for a good time, and it is right that they should have it.

But after a few years the light seems dimmed, a dull look comes into the faces of men and women, their cake of life didn't have enough icing, or it had too much, so they are either disappointed or satiated, and either one is bad.

Always there are those who want to squelch joy of any kind. They seem to think it sinful. Not long ago I heard two women comment about two older women who were walking downtown. One said, "there the two of them go again. What can they SEE going downstreet every day?"

And the other said: "you would think they would find something better to do with their time. Fancy, they go down every day around this time and come back about four-thirty, just in time to get the supper."

Well, says I, supposing you were about that age. You had done your work, you knew what there was to be for supper, you wanted some air and some companionship, where would you go in this place but down one side of the street and up the other?

They cannot walk out in the country, for there is no place for them to walk and likely some driver would kill them. Possibly they are as tired going this way as you seem to be in seeing them, but what else can they do? So that made them stop and think.

No matter what pleasure we indulge in, no matter how innocent it may be, there are always some who think we are doing wrong. And there is too much joy and fun prevented when we let people who have no business with our lives say what they think is wrong or right in our pleasures.

Peering into the future does no good, besides you would lose the element of surprise if you always knew what was going to happen. Looking backwards isn't well because you are apt to miss some good that is heading towards you when you do that.

Be your own judge of what is good for you in the fun you get and the people you know. (Of course by that I do not mean for you to go off half-cocked without knowing what you are doing.) I remember meeting a girl when a was young, and I liked her a lot, so we decided to "go together".

And this one said she was not "good", and the other one said I would get a bad name if I went with her. But I spent two happy years with her and never saw one wrong action, unless that she utterly ignored what people said about her, and that to me was not wrong.

And she went to South America, and I came to North America, yet I have the memory of a lovely friendship. Fill your cup of life with all the happiness you can, neither looking back too much nor forward too often.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

DAVIS. — To Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Davis, at Nicholls Hospital, Thursday, November 10, the gift of a daughter.

HUNTER.—To Mr. and Mrs. Art Hunter (nee Goldie Robinson), at St. Joseph's Hospital, Friday, November 11, the gift of a daughter, Judith Lynn.

IN MEMORIAM

BRACKENRIDGE, Thomas S.—In loving memory of Thomas S. Brackenridge, who died one year ago, November 11, 1937.

To-day recalls sad memories
Of a dear one gone to rest,
And the ones who think of him to-day
Are the ones who loved him best.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by his Wife and Daughters.

CHARLTON.—In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Roy Charlton, who passed away on November 11, 1933.

Our hearts still ache with sadness,
Our eyes shed many a tear;
God alone knows how we miss you,
As it ends our fifth sad year.
Happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memories still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Lovingly remembered by Father, Mother, Sister and Brother.

TODD.—In loving memory of Nial Todd, who passed away one year ago, November 11, 1937.

Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tries to break, but all in vain;
To have, to love and then to part
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never—
The memory of those happy days
When we were all toegther.
—Ever remembered by Wife and Sons, Murray and Gordon.

FOUNTAIN.—In loving memory of my husband, Oscar Fountain, who was killed on November 11, 1931.

The face I loved is now laid low,
His loving voice is still,
The hand so often clasped in mine
Lies low in death's cold chill.
I often sit and think of him
When I am all alone;
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
—Ever remembered by his Wife and daughter, Betty.

TODD.—In loving memory of our brother, Nial, who departed this life November 11, 1937.

A loving brother, true and kind,
No friend on earth like him we'll find.
Remembrance Day he left us,
In God's beautiful ship called Rest,
Away from this world of sorrow
To a home of eternal rest.
—Ever remembered by Bothers and Sisters.

Install Officers Sons Of England

The officers for the coming year, 1938-1939, were installed on Monday by Bro. Arthur Harris, District Deputy Supreme President.

All the new officers were present, with Bro. Fred Parsons as the incoming president, and expect to enjoy a prosperous year, as all indications point to an active season. Visiting brethren were present from the south-western district of Toronto to complete arrangements for the visit of the Peterborough members to Toronto on Saturday, December 3. A hearty welcome to the visitors was extended by Bro. W. G. P. Benton, the retiring president, and a sociable hour was spent by the members and their guests from Toronto and Lindsay.

King And Queen Will Travel On Battleship

LONDON, Nov. 11. — Their Majesties the King and Queen will travel in H.M.S. Repulse, one of Great Britain's largest battle cruisers, when they go to Canada next year, it was announced from Buckingham Palace last night.

The Repulse will be escorted by "two of His Majesty's ships of the second cruiser squadron," the official announcement added.

The exact date of the trip has not yet been fixed, the announcement said, but Their Majesties are expected to reach Canada "about the middle of May."

The Repulse is well known to Canadian ports. She visited Victoria and Vancouver in June and July, 1924, and Halifax and Quebec in August and September, 1924, during an Empire cruise.

The Prince of Wales travelled in the battle cruiser to South Africa and South America in 1925.

The Repulse at present is being refitted at Portsmouth for service with the Home Fleet. She underwent an extensive overhaul from 1932 to 1936, costing £1,400,000 ($7,000,000).

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks Constipation

OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight! (Advt.)

Change of Church Name

WINNIPEG, Nov. 11—(CP). — A proposal that the name of the Church in Canada be changed to represent it as a Canadian rather than an English church was referred to a committe for consideration last night by the Synod of the Rupert's Land diocese. Archbishop M. T. Harding favored a change, saying the church was losing members because the present name gave some the idea the church was for English people only.

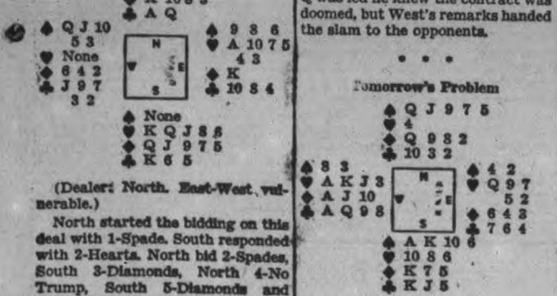
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

HOLD YOUR TONGUE

IF AN OPPONENT commits some irregularity, such as a lead out of turn or from the wrong hand in the case of dealer, you will do well to think a moment before speaking. Of course you do not play bridge primarily for the purpose of profiting from such occurences. But neither do you wish to suffer unjustly from them, as you may if you speak at the wrong time or say the wrong thing in your haste.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North started the bidding on this deal with 1-Spade. South responded with 2-Hearts. North bid 2-Spades, South 3-Diamonds, North 4-No Trump, South 5-Diamonds and North 6-Diamonds.

West's opening lead against this contract was the spade Q, which was won in the dummy with the K and a heart discarded. In his anxiety to try out the diamond finesse, South led the diamond Q, whereupon West shouted: "The lead is in dummy." Crestfallen, declarer felt his haste had ruined his chances for the slam, but he "took the bull by the horns" and laid down the diamond A. Imagine his joy when East's singleton K dropped. Declarer took two more rounds of trumps and forced out the heart A, which was the only trick the opponents cashed.

It is impossible to quote the remarks of East. When the diamond Q was led he knew the contract was doomed, but West's remarks handed the slam to the opponents.

Highway Costs Boosting Canadian Taxes

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—Canadians are too willing to dwell on the cost to the taxpayer of railway transportation and too anxious to forget the cost to the taxpayer of competing forms of transportation, Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Transport, told the international transport conference of the Y.M.C.A. at the Royal York last night.

The Minister of Transport quoted figures from the Bureau of Statistics indicating that for seven years, 1929-1936, Canada spent in an average year on its highways for construction 48.6 million dollars, for interest on highway bonds 20.3 millions, for maintenance 21.5 millions, or a total average yearly expenditure of 90.4 millions. Gasoline and motor license fees netted governments 38.6 millions, leaving an excess of expenditure over income for highways of 51.8 millions.

"The annual call on the taxpayers for railway purposes should not exceed that amount," declared Mr. Howe. "As one who must bear the present criticism for deficits arising out of the government ownership of railways, I cannot feel too discouraged about the future of railway operation." With the return of business to normal and the growth of population to be expected in a country like Canada, Mr. Howe "hoped that our railways have passed over their worst difficulties and can move on to more prosperous days."

The Minister of Transport outlined the history of Canadian railroads up to the formation of the Canadian Nationals Railways as a government-owned system. He said the road last year fell short of paying its way by $42,000,000. "The present system is as efficient a form of management as can be devised for the government railroad," declared Mr. Howe.

Judge Will Hear Assessment Case

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 11.—Only one case may be carried before the judge as a result of the adjourned meeting of the Court of Revision held here Thursday night. Chairman of the Court, Reeve C. H. Calver, and the other members refused to take any action on the request for revision of assessment of the building formerly occupied by the Weston Shoe Company.

On being advised of their decision Mr. John O'Sullivan, who was the interested party making the appeal, declared that he would carry the matter before a judge. On another property owned by Mr. O'Sullivan and located on Queen Street, the court allowed a reduction of $200. No change was made in the assessment of the house. The appeal entered by Mr. Albert Mills on property and house located on Sebastopol Street was sustained. On the building the assessment was lowered $100 and on two lots $50.

Library Receives Conscience Money

WELLAND, Ont., Nov. 11—(CP)—The Welland Library Board is three dollars richer.

At the Literary Board's meeting last night it received a money order from a former Welland man now living in Buffalo, in payment of three books taken from the library in 1932. An accompanying note explained: "I have come in contact with Father Divine and one of his planks for righteous government is the payment of old debts."

The same disciple paid an old outstanding account with a local newspaper a few weeks ago.

BONARLAW

On Thursday of last week Dr. E. A. Carleton of Stirling inoculated the pupils of School Section No. 5, Bonarlaw for diphtheria. On this day also the teacher, Miss Leola Pollock, obtained the weight of each scholar. Records will be kept and the progress of each child's physical condition carefully watched.

On Thursday last the Routly Construction finished work on Highway No. 14 and parked their steam shovels for the winter.

On Sunday morning last, at St. Mark's Church, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Stocker was baptized, Charlotte, Rosellen, Mae. The godmothers were Mrs. A. V. Brown and Mrs. J. F. Baker and the godfather, Mr. J. F. Baker.

Mr. Robert Barlow of Toronto was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Barlow on Monday and Tuesday of this week.

Brings End to 31 Years of GASTRIC TROUBLE

If you have given up hope that your stomach trouble can be cleared up, just consider this case of Mrs. M. H. Y., of Cornwall. For 31 painful years she had stomach pains that made life a misery. It almost seemed that effective treatment was impossible. But it wasn't impossible! Today she is well and healthy, with a strong stomach and a normal appetite. The change was made by the same four powerful alkalies prescribed in the treatment of stomach trouble by specialists. She took these alkalies by taking Maclean Brand Stomach Powder—for this treatment is a perfect balance of the alkalies administered in hospitals.

Let this gentle, effective treatment help you. You will probably find relief from pain comes almost instantly. Then your stomach will grow stronger. But—look for the signature "Alex. C. Maclean". Maclean Brand Stomach Powder is only genuine when this signature is on bottle and carton. Sold only in bottles in cartons, 75c. Never sold loose. 427

Youth Training Making Progress

OTTAWA, Nov. 11—(CP)—Youth training projects under joint direction of Dominion and Provincial governments are making encouraging progress in Western Canada, Labor Minister Rogers found on his recent tour of the West.

"I visited projects in all the western provinces and was impressed particularly with the enthusiasm of the young people in training," the minister told newspapermen today.

The Dominion Government allocated $1,500,000 for youth training purposes, the various provincial governments to put up an equal amount. Last year 55,000 young people were in training to fit themselves for jobs. Of those engaged directly in vocational training as distinguished from physical training and home service training, there were about 4,000, or about 25 per cent, placed in employment immediately on completion of their courses.

Relieved Of Kidney Weakness And Rheumatism

Describes Tortures of Severe Rheumatic Pains and Sleep Disturbed By Kidneys. Had No Energy.

SYNTONA BRINGS RELIEF

Every man or woman in Peterborough and vicinity who suffers from backache, sore joints and painful muscles, every person whose sleep is disturbed, should follow the example of other citizens who have taken Syntona and got grand relief. Here is another of the REALITIES of what Syntona can do for you, as reported recently by Mr. Alfred Stevenson, well-known farmer of Freeman, Ont.

"I had rheumatism so bad I couldn't put on my own shoes or take them off. When I lay down I had to have my legs lifted and a pillow put under them so I could rest comfortably. I was troubled somewhat with constipation and my kidneys distrubed my sleep quite often at night. I felt all used up and everything I tried to do seemed so hard.

"I have taken only four bottles of Syntona and already I feel so much better I can hardly believe it.

MR. ALFRED STEVENSON

My joints are so much looser. I can dress myself with ease and I have more energy than I've had in years. I get more sleep now because my kidneys do not call me up."

Syntona is now being introduced in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. Ask about the special introductory offer.

GERMAN JEWS ASSESSED $400 MILLIONS

One Killed Scores Hurt Rouyn Fire

Police Have Fears Toll May Mount To Seven Or Eight

ROUYN, Que., Nov. 12—(CP).—Worst fire in the history of this mining town was believed to have claimed at least one life as it destroyed $250,000 worth of property early today. Three men were taken to hospital, one critically injured.

The fire, which police said may have killed "possibly seven or eight," originated in Albert's hotel where nearly 100 guests were registered and was carried by a roaring north wind through an entire town block.

All records were lost in the flames. Police said it had been impossible to make any check for those who might harve been lost.

Etienne Pelland, 55-year-old town engineer, was listed as definitely missing. He was said by town clerk Alex LeClerc, another hotel roomer, to have been trapped on the second floor of the three-storey hotel. LeClerc, who discovered the flames following what sounded "like two muffled explosions," said he attempted to arouse Pelland but that smoke and flames filled the hallway before he received response to knocks on the door.

Terror Reigns

Three other hotel guests, Sam, Allard of Kirkland Lake, Ont., Arthur Bellanger of Rouyn and a man listed only as "Stevenson of Toronto, walked to hospital, two blocks away, though seriously burned. Stevensons conditions was reported as "critical."

They, along with scores of others, fled to the streets in near-freezing weather from the frame buildings within the block as flames from Albert's Hotel spread next door to the Commercial Hotel and then to a half-dozen shops and residences.

Light and telephone cables were burned and all power and telephone communications were severed temporarily, leaving terrified guests and residents scurrying around in the streets, illuminated only by the flames.

LeClerc discovered the fire when he returned to the hotel. After trying to awaken Pelland he was forced to climb through a window onto a telephone pole where he remained until rescued by firemen.

"I had just come in about three o'clock," said LeClerc, "and had just gone into my room when I heard a couple of noises which sounded like muffled explosions, I smelled smoke, too, and when I went back into the hall the place was filled with smoke. By this time the smoke and flames burst up the stairway and I started pounding on Pelland's room-door. There was no answer and I had to run to the

No Jitterbug Dancing

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 12—(AP).—The Iowa ballroom operators association has turned thumbs down on jitterbug dancing—for business rather than esthetic reasons. "One jitterbugging couple takes up enough room for five ordinary dancing couples and drive out the more conservative class of dancers," said one association official.

Last Minute News Flashes

TORONTO—Headquarters detectives began an investigation today into the death of Mrs. Jessie Dunham, 21-year-old mother, who dropped dead just after she entered her flat shortly after midnight.

LONDON—Pace-setting clubs in the First Division of the English Football League suffered setbacks in today's games. Derby County, the leader, lost 1-0 to Charlton Athletic and Everton went under by the same score to the last-place Birmingham team.

GLASGOW — While Celtic and Falkirk battled 90 minutes to a 1-1 draw, Glasgow Rangers stretched their Scottish Football League lead to two points over the Celts, by downing the powerful Hearts squad 3-1 at Tynecastle Park. The light blues now have 24 points.

Windows Broken As Crowds Storm Palace

MUNICH, Nov. 12.—(AP).—Excited crowds stormed the palace of Michael Cardinal Von Faulhaber to-day and broke all windows in the building.

The attack followed an address before 5,000 persons last night by Adolf Wagner, Nazi district leader for Bavaria and Bavarian Minister of Interior, in which he read a letter from the Cardinal asking police protection in case popular passions should result in attacks on Catholic clergy in the present tense situation.

"If Von Faulhaber mends his ways he will be protected better than the police can," Wagner shouted. He added he was offering no excuse for anti-Jewish violence that burst out Thursday.

Only last Sunday the 69-year-old Cardinal, the Archbishop of Munich, used a passage from a speech by Chancellor Hitler to support a plea for "the God-given rights of personality." He recalled that Hitler had said Germany's greatest asests were her creative personalities. The sermon was greeted by whistling by Nazi listeners.

No Word From Interior.

Crowds to-day descended upon the Archbishop's palace with bricks and sticks, and shattered glass on the first and second floors.

The demonstration recalled the one made Oct. 8 on the palace in Vienna of Theodor Vardinal Innitzer, Archbishop of Vienna. On that occasion furniture was thrown from the building to the streets and the Cardinal was hurt by stones thrown inside.

At the mass meeting last night Wagner attacked Catholics to whom he referred as "Roman Catholic allies of Jews."

Cardinal Von Faulhaber, outstanding among German Catholic leaders, often has been at odds with Nazis. As early as Aug. 21, 1934, he denounced Nazi opposition to Jews. Soon afterward he expressed dissatisfaction wit hthe Nazi handling of the church situation. He banned marriages between Catholics and so-called Nazi neo-pagans. He challenged Nazi attempts to curb Catholic rights. In February, 1935, an audience in Munich shouted "hang him," but in a subsequent pastoral letter he exhorted Catholics to stand fast in their faith."

Detroit, Nov. 12 (CP)

BILL thought it kind of sentimental, but if Gladys wanted it that way, it was all right with him, so Gladys Treborrow became Mrs. William Hendricks in a marriage ceremony held in a roller skating rink with hte entire party wearing roller skates, including I. C. Little, the Justice of Peace who married them. The bride and groom met for the first time while skating at the rink, and the bride thought it would be a nice idea if they got married that way.

Nazi Purge Arouses All Britons

Cabinet Minister's Wife Adds Voice To Swelling Chorus

LONDON, Nov. 1—(AP).—Th wife of a cabinet minister added her voice today to the swelling chorus of British denunciation of Germany's violent sweep upon the Jews.

Mrs. Walter Elliot, who quit active participation in Liberal party affairs when she married the present Conservative Minister of Health in 1934, declared at an Olympic reception:

"It is impossible to read of happenings of the last three or four days in Central Europe without feeling we must be back again in the middle ages. It is appalling, frightening, terrifying that the whole spiritual thought of the world should be subjected to this doctrine of force."

Th speech served to emphasize the difficulties which Germany's anti-Jewish campaign has put in the way of Prime Minister Chamberlain's plans for appeasement of Germany to forge a lasting peace in Europe.

Meaning Unmistakable

While the minister's wife avoided specific mention of events in Germany, her meaning was unmistakable. She said she could not believe that "people in those totalitarian states want the persecution and terrorism which is going on."

The independent labor party also took a hand, writing Herbert Von Dirkson, the German Ambassador at London, and denouncing Germany's treatment of Jews as "a throwback to the jungle" by which "the human family has been disgraced."

Requesting the ambassador to receive an independent party delegation, the letter protested against "the barbarity and beastiality of the attacks on Jews which occurred in Germany during the last few days."

Emanuel Shinwell, a Labor member of Parliament, speaking at Durham, said the "outrages" placed Germany's rulers "outside the pale of civilization."

Young Inventor Is In Trouble

ALBANY, Calif., Nov. 12.—(AP).—Wendell Zimmerman, 24-year-old University of California physics student, was in trouble with the law to-day over his new super-explosive, "RP-X."

Jester said Zimmerman, found blasting a concrete retaining wall at the city dump, explained:

"I'm experimenting with RP-X. It's my own invention — 15 times more powerful than nitroglycerine."

Jester said it more than worked. A charge of dynamite merely chipped the concrete wall. The same amount of "RP-X" knocked the whole wall down.

Jester arrested Zimmerman on a charge of transporting explosives inside the city limits. Zimmerman was ordered to appear in police court Nov. 16.

Dies Of Exposure In Alberta Storm

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Nov. 12.—(CP)—An unidentified man, believed to be a transient, is dead and another man is believed lost between Champion and Claresholm north of Lethbridge following Southern Alberta's first blizzard of the winter.

Sixteen inches of snow fell from Thursday morning until the storm ended yesterday. Street car service in Lethbridge was stopped altogether on Thursday and had not returned to normal today. Dozens of automobiles were stalled on rural roads and the highway to Macleod was blocked.

The unidentified man was found dead of exposure near Monarch, 15 miles west of Lethbridge some time after his companion was found with his hands, feet and face frozen. The latter was taken to Macleod Hospital. Lowest temperature here during the store was 12 above zero.

Dock Strike Ends

British Admiral Dies

LONDON, Nov. 12.—(CP Cable)—Admiral Sir Herbert Pureycust, 81, who gave half a century of active service to the Royal Navy, died yesterday. For many years, in times of peace, he was in charge of the navy's hydrographic surveys.

Nazi Technique "Germans, defend yourselves. Don't trade in Jewish shops," is the legend these Nazi storm troopers are pasting on the window of a Jewish-owned store in Berlin. This technique was comparatively mild beside that now being used, not only in Berlin, but in Munich, Vienna, Hamburg and other key cities, where mobs, unchecked by police, wrecked Jewish stores and defiled synagogues.

Canada Must Play Active Part World Affairs Speakers Warn

(By The Canadian Press)

Canadians today weighed the armistice messages of speakers who hoped for peace but warned the Dominion must not play an inactive part in world affairs.

Immediately after attending the annual armistice dinner of the Canadian Legion in Ottawa, Prime Minister Mackenzie King declared in a broadcast address yesterday that "peace and freedom cannot be secured through inaction. We must come to see that peace and freedom can be achieved only through continuous and constructive effort."

In all parts of the nation, ceremonies and services were conducted in remembrance of those who paid the supreme sacrifice in the Great War which ended 20 years ago. Prayers of thanksgiving were offered in churches.

Wound In Neck Is Fatal To Woman

PERTH, Ont., Nov. 12 (CP). — Mrs. John Molyneau, 52, of Watson's Corners, 24 miles north of Perth, died in hospital here last night after being accidentally shot in the neck by her 16-year-old son Carman.

The youth was going to the woods to hunt, and while standing on the verandah of his home raised his rifle, which he did not think was loaded, and pulled the trigger. His mother, who was on her way to the house from the well, came in the line of fire and the bullet entered her neck, lodging at the back of the head.

It has not been decided whether an inquest will be held.

Catholic Church Burned

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich., Nov. 12—(AP).—Fire destroyed St. Mary's Roman Catholic church in Iron Mountain last night. Rev. Fr. R. F. Cordy, assistant pastor, rushed into the blazing building to rescue the Blessed Sacrament, vestments, chalice, and other important appurtenances. Nothing else was saved. Damage was estimated at between $50,000 and $70,000. No cause of the fire was indicated.

Motorist Escapes Without Scratch After Bad Crash

Havelock, Nov. 12.
(Examiner Correspondence.)

FAILING to make the sharp curve at the southern approach to the swing bridge at Trent River, when his car skidded on the loose gravel, R. Wellman of Madoc, hurtled down into the steep ditch and crashed head-on into the cement block foundation of the unused dancing pavilion. Wellman escaped without a scratch and luckily too, since he was fortunate enough to go between a hydro pole and guard fence, a space barely wide enough for a car to pass through. The automobile was miraculously only slightly damaged. A woman passenger in the car at the time of the accident also escaped with only a severe shaking up.

New Racket In Bicycle Thefts

A new version of the bicycle stealing racket that has been going on here for some time developed Friday night when two different stolen bicycles were found that had been thrown away after a wheel had been taken off.

Vincent Strano had just reached the police station to report that his wheel had been stolen an hour previously from in front of the Strano store at 256 Charlotte when a telephone message was received from North Monaghan that the stolen bicyole had been found in the river at Crawford's Grove by some boys who were playing around the bank with flashlights. The back wheel, pedals and tools had been taken from the machine.

Almost at the same time the police were notified that another bicycle, also with the rear wheel gone, had been thrown into a yard on Rubidge stret. The owner of this second bicycle was not known.

Air Raid Kills 10

BARCELONA, Nov. 12.—(CP-Havas)—Ten persons were killed and 30 wounded when insurgent aircraft bombed Barcelona today. Anti-aircraft fire finally obliged the machines to flee.

Fine Is Levied On Account Of Murder Of German Diplomat In Paris New Decrees Add Additional Burdens

Jews Are Prohibited From Conducting Retail Businesses

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Jews were assessed today 1,000,000,000 marks—$400,000,000—as a penalty for the murder of Ernst von Rath, German diplomat in Paris, it was announced officially.

Field Marshal Hermann Goering, as director of Germany's four-year plan, issued a decree, effective Jan. 1, prohibiting Jews from conducting retail businesses, mail order and commission houses and independent handicraft enterprises.

Goering's decree further banned Jews from heading any industrial or commercial concern by forbidding them to hold the position of "Betriebsfuehrer," which every factory or similar undertaking must have under the national labor law.

At the same time, semi-official sources said that 1,600 Jews had been arrested in Berlin.

These sources said it was impossible to estimate how many other Jews had been seized in the rest of Germany since the killing of Von Rath, secretary of the German Embassy in Paris, which incited nation-wide burnings of synagogues and destruction of Jewish stores Thursday.

Excluded From Theatres

Another decree issued by Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels, ordered Jews excluded from theatres, movie houses, concerts and other public presentations.

These far-reaching measures toward isolating Jews from German national life were issued after a meeting of Goering, Goebbels, Interior Minister Wilhelm Frick, Justice Minister Franz Guertner, Economics Minister Walter Funk and Finance Minister Lutz Schwerin-Krosigk.

An official announcement said they assembled to "deliberate upon solution of the Jewish question which has become urgently necessary."

"Further decisive measures for elimination of Jewry from German economic life and for prevention of provocatory conditions," the announcement added, "will be issued within the shortest time by decrees and laws."

Pay For All Damage.

Jews, it was decided, must pay for all damage to Jewish property "occasioned by the indignation of the people over incitement by international Jewry against National Socialist Germany."

A decree ruled that insurance claims by German Jews would be confiscated in favor of the German state.

It ordered Jews to remove all debris of the destruction immediately and declared that damage done to homes must be repaired in the same manner as that done to commercial property.

With disclosure of the Berlin arrests in one of Nazidom's greatest anti-Jewish drives, it was announced officially in Salzburg that 300 Jawish families had been isolated and that the Salzburg district "now is completely freed from Jews."

Male Jews Rounded Up.

The city of Frankfort on the Main reported that all male Jews between the ages of 18 and 60 had been rounded up in police stations and confined to a provisional camp in an exhibition hall.

It was understood that Jews held in Frankfort were being compelled to pay for food and board and that the Jewish relief committee was providing money for those unable to pay for themselves.

Some of the arrests in Berlin were said to have been made for the Jews' own protection, others for illegal possession of weapons and still others among alleged criminal elements.

Goebbels, announcing his decree forbidding Jews to attend public presentations, said Germany previously had provided cultural outlets for Jews. He issued the decree as president of the Reich Culture Chamber.

Frost Will Enter Leadership Race

TORONTO, Nov. 12.—(CP)—Cecil J. Frost, president of the Ontario Conservative Association, said here he will announce in Hamilton today that he will be a candidate for the leadership of the Conservative party in Ontario.

"The official announcement will be made at a meting in Hamilton," said Mr. Frost.

Col. George A. Drew, Toronto barrister, politician and soldier, has announced he definitely will be a candidate for the leadership when the Association meets here Dec. 8-9 to elect a successor to Hon. Earl Rowe, member of parliament for Dufferin-Simcoe, who has announced his retirement.

Tax Placed On Calls From Dormitory Lasting Over 5 Minutes

Boulder, Colo., Nov. 12.

BOY FRIENDS of Colorado University co-eds have been puzzled by abruptly terminated telephone calls and even their girls wouldn't explain.

But here's the reason for the "quickie" calls. Faculty members thought there might be a connection between scholastic failures and lengthy telephone conversations. So—theres now a five cent "tax" on women's dormitory calls lasting more than five minutes.

Bomb Explodes In Face Of Woodstock Man

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Nov. 12.—(CP)—Angelo Fazzari, Woodstock, restaurant proprietor, suffered minor injuries here as the result of a mysterious explosion which occurred in his garage about three o'clock this morning. He was taken to hospital.

Fazzari, who had just put his car in the garage, was closing the door when the blast occurred, indicating that it might have been caused by a bomb placed in such a way that the closing of the door would detonate the charge.

The explosion shook the windows of nearby houses. It was not particularly strong, breaking only one of the double doors of the garage and doing little other damage.

Only serious injury to Fazzari is said to be to one eye. Doctors said the sight may be endangered.

City and provincial police investigating the bombing have disclosed no possible reason for what was evidentl ay attack on Fazzari's life. Fazzari has been a resident of Woodstock for the past 10 years, conducting a restaurant on Dundas street. He is about 35 years of age.

Football Player Killed In Crash

BELLE PLAINE, Min., Nov. 12.—(AP)—A bus driver and a football player were killed, a coach was critically injured, and dozen other members of the team were bruised and cut when the bus carrying the Gustavus Adolphus College team of St. Peter crashed the rear of a truck early today.

Three Nations Enter Protest With Japs

LONDON, Nov. 12.—(AP).— Official sources here to-day disclosed that parallel notes have been delivered in Tokyo by the United States, Great Britain and France protesting discrimination against their merchant shipping on the Yangtse river.

The British note, described as "firmly worded," took the Japanese to account for not keeping their promise to open the Yangtse river to British merchant ships after the capture of Hankow. Japanese merchant ships, the note said, were using the river increasingly while British vessels were banned. Japanese have said the dangers to navigation prevented opening the river.

Resentment In Britain Threatens To Impede Premier's Peace Effort

LONDON, Nov. 12 (A.P.).—British resentment over Germany's widespread campaign against Jews threatened to-day to impede Prime Minister Chamberlain's efforts to bring lasting peace in Europe.

Indignation at the most recent anti-Jewish outburst in Germany probably will be brought out in Parliament on Monday when Major Clement Attlee, Labor Party leader, asks the Government for information on the attacks.

It was believed in some quarters that discussion of Germany's colonial claims—the thorny problem which the Prime Minister has proposed to tackle—would be seriously hindered by the latest example of Germany's treatment of her "minority" problem.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal Party leader, said in an address at Northampton last night that the German campaign against Jews showed that Great Britain could not honorably turn over to Germany "any of those primitive peoples in Africa."

Also Blame British.

Sir George Ogilvie-Forbes, British Charge d'Affaires in Berlin, already has been instructed to seek an explanation of an article in Propaganda Minister Paul Goebbels' newspaper Der Angriff suggesting British politicians were implicated in the assassination of the German diplomat, Ernst von Rath, in Paris last Monday by a young Jew.

Another indication of the British government's concern was seen in the reception by R. A. Butler, parliamentary Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, of Jewish leaders in Britain who went to the foreign office to state their views on "certain questions" arising from the anti-Semitic riots in Germany.

Deplorable Act.

"I believe that I speak for the Christian people of this country," Most Rev. Gordon Lang, Archbishop of Canterbury, said in a letter to the Times, "in giving immediate expression to the feelings of indignation with which we have read of the deeds of cruelty and destruction which were perpetrated last Thursday in Germany and Austria.

"Whatever provocation may have been given by the deplorable act of a single irresponsible Jewish youth, reprisals on such a scale, so fierce, cruel and vindictive, cannot possibly be justified.

"A sinister significance is added to them by the act that the police seem either to have acquiesced in them or to have been powerless to restrain them. It is mostly distasteful to write these words just when there is in this country a general desire to be on friendly terms with the Germa nnation.

"But there are times when the instincts of humanity make silence

Windsor's Return Is Discussed

PARIS, Nov. 12.—(AP).—The possibility the Duke and Duchess of Windsor might establish a home in England soon after Jan. 1 was forecast by some of the couple's friends to-day as the ultimate result o their meeting with the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester.

As the Royal brothers' re-union came to an end, it was said they had discussed the Duke of Windsor's permanent return to England. The date was expected to depend on public reaction to their projected Christmas visit to the Royal family in Sandringham.

The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester flew to London. They are returning from a visit to East Africa.

Present Economic System In Canada Is Greatest Challenge To Democracy

TORONTO, Nov. 12 (CP)—The present economic situation in Canada is the greatest challenge to democracy and a challenge that bankers in other countries have been able to meet only through dictatorship, Hon. Colin Campbell, Ontario minister of public works, said before the annual convention of the Twentieth Century Liberal Association of Ontario here last night.

The two-day convention closes tonight with Premier Mitchell Hepburn scheduled to address the annual banquet. Mrs. Meta O'Brien, Niagara Falls, is presiding at the sessions with more than 200 provincial delegates in attendance.

Credit is needed in the Dominion to restore private business and return men to work, Mr. Campbell said. Usury has become the biggest business in Canada. He deplored the taxation problem and its increases and asked that the Bank of Canada be used as the weapon for economic rehabilitation.

"It is claimed that if there is monetary reform in Canada, and some of the things that have been suggested are done, then insurance companies will suffer. If we keep on the way we are going now, there will come a time when insurance companies and everything else will surrender to other forces."

Taxation has reached a point where "business is crying for a reduction," Mr. Campbell said. Canada is not paying its way and increasing its debt by borrowing would not solve the problem.

Grief-Stricken Father Gives Self Up After Angry Slap Kills Infant Son

CHICAGO, Nov. 12 (AP)—A young father was held in police custody today after telling officers he slapped his infant son, Tod, on the head in distraction over the baby's prolonged crying, causing fatal injuries.

Policeman Irwin Schmidt said the father, Ralph Koch, 24, appeared at the state police headquarters in suburban Norwood Park last night and said:

"I think I killed my baby. I want to give myself up."

Koch was caring for the child while his wife, Marcia, 20, was at work. He told police he tried for two hours to quiet the youngster and, becoming distracted, suddenly slapped him. Tod was the Koch's only child.

The remorseful father, who was held without charge pending an inquest, told police he and his wife were reconciled yesterday after being separated since shortly after the baby's birth.

Warning Given German Jews Of A Showdown

BERLIN, Nov. 12 (AP) — After two days of anti-Semitic violence and terror, German Jews received an additional threat today of a "show-down."

The warning was contained in the newspaper, Fraenkische Tageszeitung, of Julius Streicher, strongly anti-Jewish editor and governor of Franconia, which called 457 mass meetings throughout that district next week.

Streicher, speaking before 10,000 in Nuremberg, declared: "The day is coming for a show-down of the Jewish people." His paper said: "We must neither rest nor cease in enlightening the public on the Jewish question."

Another warning was sounded by Propaganda Minister Paul Goebbels who told foreign newspapermen yesterday that Jews abroad hold the key to the fate of Jews in Germany and indicated today in Chancellor Hitler's newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter there would be more grief in store for German Jews if those abroad do not cease what he called "misrepresentations and distortions" of happenings here.

Many Are Arrested

Arrests of Jews, many of them of prominence, were reported continuous throughout the country today. Authorities said it was done to "insure their safety." Many others stayed away from their homes to avoid being taken into custody.

A trainload of about 800 Jewish prisoners left Vienna last night for an undisclosed destination, perhaps to a concentration camp like Dachau or Buchenwalde.

A ban was promulgated on the possession of by Jews of firearms, ammunition and other lethal weapons on penalty of fines and prison terms up to five years.

Many foreign Jews who suffered heavy loss in the acts of vengeance —smashing of store properties, looting and burning synagogues — that flared Thursday asked help from their respective consulates.

British Property Destroyed

British-owned property destroyed was believed to be largest among that of foreigners. One of Berlin's largest stores has British capital. Large plate glass windows in it were shattered.

Adolf Wagner, Nazi district leader for Bavaria, told residents of Munich that Jews would be made to pay for the damages to their property.

Streicher predicted "the time will come when Germans will no longer live in tenements, only Jews."—perhaps a reference to reports that the ghetto of the middle ages would be re-established in Germany for Jews.

Appeal Voiced Western Needy

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Nov. 12.—Mrs. L. S. Clarry, and her daughter, Miss Blanche Clarry, Reg.N., entertained the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's church for its annual thank-offering meeting, at their home, Park Roadway, on Wednesday at 3 p.m., over thirty being in attendance.

The call to worship was given by the president, Mrs. (Rev.) A. L. Siscoe, who was in the chair, and the program was in charge of Group D, Mrs. T. H. Aiken, convener.

One new member, Mrs. G. Freelove, was welcomed, and note made by the secretary of a bequest from the late Mrs. (Rev.) Joseph Wilks' estate, which had been sent on to headquarters in Toronto.

The president voiced an appeal for clothing for the needy areas of the west, two such requests having come to her, and donations were asked to be left at the Parsonage where they will be packed and shipped to the points indicated. A request for the members to save their used stamps and leave same with Mrs. P. I. Bentley, was also made, these to be remitted to the Bible Society which makes an income from this source.

The temperance secretary, Mrs. John Rowland, gave a brief outline of the evil resulting from the use of alcohol as a beverage, and the finance secretary, Mrs. J. McKnight, spoke on "The Responsibility of Stewardship." The request of the Mission Circle to have the Auxiliary meet with them for an evening session was accepted, subject to a suitable time being arranged for the gathering. The invitation of Mrs. P. Stinson to hold the annual meeting, in December, at her home was accepted, and after the thankoffering, which amounted to over thirty dollars with more envelopes to come in, had been taken, the dedicatory prayer was offered by Mrs. McKnight.

Miss M. E. Hetherington read the lesson and Mrs. Clarry offered prayer, after which the new study book, "The World in Canada," by Mr. McKay, superintendent of The Church of All Nations in Toronto, was introduced by the leader, and the first chapter, covered in a most informative manner by Miss E. L. Hetherington. Mrs. Aiken gave the closing prayer, and candy was served by the group in charge during the social hour; the vote of thanks being voiced by Mrs. W. E. Ball and seconded by Mrs. J. A. Brown.

Captain Acquitted Of Manslaughter

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Nov. 12 (C. P.). — Mr. Justice Ainslie W. Greene said he agreed with a verdict of a Supreme Court of Ontario Assize jury, which yesterday acquitted Hugh J. Willard, 47-year-old Prescott, Ont., ferryboat captain, of a charge of manslaughter.

Mr. Justice Greene made his statement shortly after the jury returned its verdict after 30 minutes' deliberation. Captain Willard, who went on trial yesterday, was charged in connection with the death last September 29 of George A. Long of Merrickville, Ont.

Willard, taking the stand in his own defence to-day, said he "cuffed" Long with his open hand after the man had yelled abusive language at him. The captain said Long was "pretty drunk" at the time and was coming at him "as though he was looking for a fight."

Willard said he struck Long's fist, being too far away to touch his face or any other part if his body. The Merrickville man staggered back after the "cuff" and fell against the Prescott customs building. He died the following day from head injuries.

It was after the last trip of the ferry from Ogdensburg, N.Y., to Prescott when the incident occurred.

impossible. Would that the rulers of the Reich could realize that such excesses of hatred and malice put upon the friendship which we are ready to offer them an almost intolerable strain.

"I trust that in our churches on Sunday and thereafter remembrance may be made in our prayer of those who has suffered this fresh onset of persecution and whose future seems to be so dark and hopeless."

Threats In America

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP)—Outbreak of anti-Semitism in Germany brought strong protests today from former Governor Alfred Smith and District Attorney Thomas Dewey of New York—and anonymous threats of bombing to German consulates here and at Boston.

Dewey and Smith delivered broadcast addresses last night in a program sponsored by the non-sectarian anti-Nazi league.

Declaring he wanted to "appeal to world opinion to rebuke a dictatorship gone mad," Dewey said: "we stand appalled by the sight of what has happened in Nazi Germany."

Dewey criticized the violence as "an organized plot to crush the Jewish people," and added, "no amount of lame explanation by the German minister of propaganda can make the picture any different."

Smith said the German people had proved themselves incapable of living under a democratic form of government.

Police placed a 24-hour guard over the home of the German consul general, Hans Borchers, after he reported anonymous telephone threats that the consulate office would be blown up.

A spokesman for the consulate said, however, such threats had been frequent in recent months and there was "nothing to be alarmed over."

A guard also was placed over the German consulate in Boston. Acting consul Kurt Bohme said he had received two warnings by telephone that the building would be blown up today. Bohme said he was "not afraid" and the consulate would be "open as usual."

Collection Plate Paying Dividends

WALTON, N.Y., Nov. 12 (AP)—The collection plate of the First Methodist Church, which its pastor, the Rev. Grand Robinson recently "passed in reverse," has already started to pay dividends, he reported today.

His idea, which he carried out on Oct. 30, was to give each member of the congregation $1 with the stipulation that it be invested and the profits, with the original sum, to be returned to the church.

While members of the congregation used the dollars to buy nuts and vegetables which they sold to town people at a profit, offers from people in widely scattered sections of the nation, all anxious to aid the church, were received.

R. Robinson said that an Oregon stamp collector suggested that Walton merchants take commemorative stamps from letters and sell them to him at a small profit which would go to the church.

WEEKLY GRAIN REVIEW

WINNIPEG, Nov. 12—(CP).—Revival of export demand and more stability in overseas export markets had a steadying influence on world wheat futures this week. Winnipeg prices recovered from five-year lows to close the five sessions Thursday one cent higher to unchanged.

Trading frequently increased to a much broader scale than in recent weeks, but price ranges were generally narrow. November, with the largest gain, went to 58½, December 58, May 61, and July 61⅞ cents.

Improved absorption of unsold wheat afloat at Liverpool relieved the demoralized export mart of early November, when wheat prices sagged steadily. Canadian export sales jumped to 2,500,000 bushels compared to insignificant amounts the previous week.

Much of the business, estimated at 12 cargoes, was of a distress character and sold below replacement costs. Traders, however, believe distress shipments have been nearly all cleaned up, bringing a healthier tone and prospective import demand.

Seldom has Canadian wheat reached Liverpool or other overseas points unsold. Brokers say it is a product of the September warscare. Exporters then feared a scarcity of ocean tonnage and, anticipating broad demand for wheats, booked large ocean freight in advance.

Fears of war over the Czechoslovak issue changed overnight with the Munich Four-Power agreement. Import buyers became scarce. At the same time European wheat surpluses were pressing.

Thus Canadian and United States exporters found themselves with liberal freight bookings and poor wheat demand. In many cases, vessels were loaded and shipped on prospect sales could be negotiated while the grain was in transit.

Robust Health For Young People

What a common sight it is to see a young person whose bloodless face and feeble frame are evidence of poor circulation and weakness where bounding health and rosy cheeks should reign.

Young people in such a condition are generally of an anæmic nature and require a preparation containing iron to help improve the blood content.

Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills meet this requirement, as they contain three concentrated forms of iron of an easily assimilated nature together with other valuable ingredients indicated for building up the system, strengthening the nerves, and adding to your physical attraction.

Biblical Thoughts For the Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James, Toronto

THE FIRST CHRISTIAN CONVERT

A certain woman named Lydia, which worshipped God, heard us, whose heart the Lord opened that she attended to things which were spoken by Paul. Acts 16;14.

As an European Christian you ought to be deeply interested in this story. It is the record, very brief but very vivid, of the conversion of Lydia, the first European convert.

This chapter also contains the famous story of the conversion of the Phillippian jailer, who came from the darkness of paganism to the light of the Christian religion with an extra ordinary suddeness. Perhaps like many Christians you have heard much emphasis laid upon the conversion of the jailer, but little attention paid to the conversion of Lydia, whose heart the Lord opened.

The one is the example of sudden conversion and the other of a slow, gradual development into the wider life of the Christian religion. Birth into this physical world is an unconscious act. May not the birth into the spiritual world be also very generally an unconscious act?

It seems that Lydia was a Jewess, or a convert to Judaism, attracted by the truth of the one living God. Think of the emphasis laid upon the fact that "she worshipped God". Her heart and mind were attracted to the truth that there is the one living God. "Hear, O Israel, the Lord thy God is one Lord". The synagogue, in spite of its dryness, produced from time to time splendid characters who were ready to pass into the wider faith of the Christian religion. They passed from one school to another.

In the case of Lydia there was no sudden conversion. Sabbath after Sabbath she came to that place of prayer by the river side and listened earnestly to the things which were spoken by Paul. There was no violence done to her religious life. It was the natural, gradual development of spiritual life under the warm rays of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. She was no emotional woman, easily carried away by excited preaching. She was a business woman of ability, "a seller of purple", an aristocratic trade, and her customers were of the first rank in society.

After due instruction she was baptised. Baptism meant to her and to all Christians separation from the old life and introduction into a fellowship, a brotherhood, a sisterhood. The outstanding mark of the Primitive Church was its brotherhood. It was a breaking down of race and class distinctions. In Christ Jesus "there is neither Jew nor Gentile, bond nor free". This was the startling, outward and visible distinction of Christianity in those early days. It should be today. "One Lord, one faith and one Baptism".

But it mean more than that. It meant devotion to a Person, the Person of Jesus Christ, Who is truly God and truly man. This is the rock upon which Jewish teaching in every age stumbles. It is the revelation of the Father in Christ Jesus. "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father". Jesus Christ is truly the Son of God. For a Jew this was no easy truth to accept. A great modern Lord in the days of His ministry unscholar says that the Apostles of Our consciously came to give Him "the value of God". Do you look upon Him as such? He is more than Teacher, He is the God-man.

In Christ now meet both East and West
In Him meet South and North.
All Christly souls are one in Him
Throughout the whole wide earth.
—John Oxenham.

The Sacredness of Human Life

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

("The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Nov. 13 is Exodus 20:13; Matthew 5: 21-26, 38-42, the Golden Text being Exodus 20: 13, Thou shalt not kill. 1 John 3: 15, Whosoever hateth his brother, is a murderer.)

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

THE LAST FIVE Sundays we have been studying the Commandments which God gave to Moses on tablets of stone. We have talked of our relations to God—that we should not take His name in vain by swearing; that we should honor the day set aside for His worship. Then we have considered our fathers and mothers, and what honor is due to them. And now we are to talk about our relations to others in the family and those outside the family.

The old Jewish law said: "Thou shalt not kill." If a man killed another in defiance of this law, he was slain. In some parts of the world that is still the law; in others, it is thought that human life should not be taken by the government no matter what he does, but that he should have a chance to expiate his crime in prison. As the world progresses, this is coming to be more and more the idea back of punishing for even so terrible a sin as murder.

The sad thing is that so many murders are committed in the world not only by those who hate others but by those who would rob them. Wars still go on, killing men, women and innocent little children. What can we do to help put a stop to war? In the first book of the Bible, Genesis, it is said, "For in the image of God made He man," so sacred?
should we not hold human life

Jesus went further than the Old Testament command in His teachings. He said it is not only wicked to kill another; it is a sin to hold hatred in your heart. Hatred leads to murder, and uncontrolled tempers may lead to dreadful insults.

When I was a child I read a story of a man who, in his youth, had crippled another boy in a burst of anger. All his life this thing that he had done haunted him. He did what he could to make restitution, but he never was quite happy because of this awful thing that he had done when angry.

Dr. R. Newton tells another sad story of a boy who had a terrible temper. When he was persistently teased by another boy, this lad seized a pair of compasses which were lying near by, threw them at his tormentor, killing him.

These stories about boys don't mean that girls do not lose their tempers, too. Possibly you remember the story in the newspapers a few months ago of the young woman of college age who killed a little child who, she said, teased and angered her.

Not only did Jesus teach that we should cast hatred and ill-will out of our hearts, but He went much further. We may not always find His counsel practical in this world, but if we would try to do as He says, wouldn't the world be a much happier place for everyone?

"Ye have heard it said, an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth." This was the old Mosaic law.

"But I say unto you that ye resist not evil."

"Ye have heard it said, thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thine enemy. But I say unto you, love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them that despitefully use you."

Warsaw Ladies Welcome Others

WARSAW, Nov. 12.—The Women's Institute meting on Tuesday in the United church basement was a delightful affair. Lakefield and Buckhorn branches were guests of Warsaw branch, and disregarding the inclement weather turned out well. Tables were set daintily with pretty cloths, covers laid and each table had a bouquet.

For the meeting Mrs. Miller took the chair. The Institute ode was sung and Lord's Prayer repeated.

It was decided to buy a wreath for the Cenotaph. Roll call was "What I can do to promote peace." Mrs. Thomas Cooper was appointed delegate to the convention. Mrs. Weller is going. The two visiting presidents, Mrs. Higgins of Lakefield and Mrs. Pearsons of Hall-Bridge, were asked to join the chair. Mrs. Miller, in well chosen words, welcomed the presidents and the two visiting branches. Mrs. Shearer of Hall's Bridge spoke of the pleasure of visiting the branch. Miss Ballantyne gave a reading on Remembrance Day. Miss Minnie Charlton played a piano selection, "The Bells of St. Mary's." Mrs. Chapman gave a spleidid paper on Peace Education. Mrs. Shearer and Mrs. Galvin Dunford sang "In the Beautiful Valley of Peace." Mrs. Wellie Pearson read a most interesting letter from a Japanese gentleman to his American friend. Mrs. Kingdon with her delightful Scotch accent, read a Scottish poem on Friendship during which she several times shook hands with a lady standing on either side.

Cathedral Musings

Shakespeare was not wholly right when he wrote: "The evil that men do lives after them, the good is oft interred in their graves", for there is no reason why the results of good should not endure equally or more so than the consequences of evil. The "law of consequence" offers a wide field for speculation. A chance encounter on the street, a casual remark, or even a vagrant thought stealing into ones mind, and lo, as a result, the course of one's whole life is changed. Is it accident, or is it destiny that causes us to do this or that trivial thing, which results, in the end, in such far-reaching consequences. Is life a series of disconnected accidents, or "is there a destiny that shapes our ends, rough hew them how we will?" No thinking man of mature years, looking back over his life, but must acknowledge that it has been a logical sequence of cause and effect, but that, in addition, he has been impelled, often against his inclination, to the course to which his life has been shaped. On the face of it, he may think that his life has been preordained, destined to take a certain path and when he remembers how this or that circumstance cropped up unexpectedly, to aid or impede him, he may well be excused for so believing. But thinking a little deeper, we see that no man is actually compelled to act in a certain way, for under identical circumstances no two men will act alike. So that the circumstances are not the cause of our acts, the cause is our own reaction to them. On the other hand, once we have reacted, or refrained from reaction, we set into motion a sequence of effects which lead to other circumstances arising, calling for futher action on our part and so on, in endless repetition. In this way we create ou rown destiny. We are today what we made of ourselves yesterday and according to what we make of ourselves today, so shall we be tomorrow. The law of compensation determines our whole future. To put it into religious terms: "God is not mocked, for as we sow, so also shall we reap", but apart from any religious thought, there is the hard fact that none of us can escape we are exactly what we have made ourselves and we get exactly, what in the past we have earned.

A National Message

It is frequently forgotten that each generation in succession is born into the world without knowledge of truth or faith or national ideals. To each succeeding generation, by instruction and example, these things must be taught.

In the mad commercial, industrial, and political scramble and especially social, the past generation has failed to transmit the heritage of knowledge, faith and ideals which they received from their fathers to their children. The duties of such instruction they have delegated to the teacher in the secular school, the preacher in the pulpit, the editor of the daily press and magazines, and the producers of plays and films for the theatres. Time and trouble have not been taken to see that those delegated to fulfil the task of instructing the rising generation have been furnished with truth and verity therefore.

The result has been that the evil influences from outside have edited the material which has gone into the text-books of the schools. This has been taught as literature, history, etc., and the most careless examination shows such material to be designedly the reverse of truth. For instance, the glorious Celtic period of British history, commencing centuries before Our Lord, which shows these islands to have been the home of culture, achievement—both spiritual, mental and physical—and a civilization second to none on earth at that period, has been entirely withheld, and the absurd myth of a Britain inhabited by skin-clad and painted savages has been taught instead.

The wonderful history of the Saxons, which sweeps from Asia, through Europe, into Britain, covering a period of over a thousand years, is entirely withheld.

The great fact that the ancient British colony, and the later arriving Saxon people, are the development of God's chosen nation Israel, established as it is upon history and prophecy in the sacred writings and history, ethnology, archaeology and general literature in the secular writings of the ages, is not only not taught, but it is absolutely denied.

Long and skillfully the enemy has labored to bury out of sight the true facts of our history, and to replace them with fiction which should support the utterly false claims of Rome to dominance in matters of faith and rule. So well has it succeeded that the true facts of the case are foreign to the mind of even the scholar of today.

John Rose Reaches 88th Year Is Oldest Warsaw Resident

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Nov. 12—Warsaw Town Hall was taxed to accommodate comfortably the guests who gathered to congratulate Mr. John Rose, Warsaw's oldest resident and one who has lived his life in the vicinity, on his 88th birthday. The majority of homesin Warsaw and surrounding county were requested. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rose, Miss Anderson and others were from Peterborough and a large number from Lakefield were on hand.

Mr. Rose greeted his guests warmly and as ever had a pleasant word for each. Many spent the time in happy converse. Sixteen tables of euchre were played by those who wished. There was community singing led by Rev. J. W. Wilkinson and short speeches, but interesting and amusing by Messrs Garfield Crowe, Wallace Anderson, Fred Crowe and Mr. Rose. Mr. Rose thanked his friends for coming and hoped all had enjoyed the evening. Supper was served about 11 o'clock, and everyone had a piece of birthday cake.

Mr. Rose's daughters and granddaughters were delightful hostesses. Dr. Munro who had been called out appeared before the party broke up and spoke of the friendship of the grand old man. As Mr. Rose had welcomed his guests so he was not too tired to say good-bye.

Mr. Rose's many friends look forward to many more such gatherings. He is beloved and honored by all who know him.

The Sacredness of Human Life — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 20:13; Matthew 5:21-26, 38-42.

"Thou shalt not kill," said the commandment. "And whoever shall kill shall be in danger of the judgment."

There eis no use praying, Jesus said, if you are angry with your brother. First be reconciled to him, then seek God's altar.

Uncontrolled anger may even put a person in prison, for one may injure or kill another in a burst of wrath.

We are commanded not to turn away from those poorer than ourselves. "Give to him that asketh thee," said Jesus. TEXT: Exodous 20:13; I John 3:15.)

The Thing Is Confusing

There are times when the lay mind must be puzzled by law and some of the things which are done under its auspices. Perhaps from lack of training there is much which the average man does not understand.

At the moment there are several cases pending in court at London, Ont., where a serious effort has been made to break up an organized lottery which appears to have been doing a large business. The serious view which officials take of the situation can perhaps be judged by the fact that bail of $6,000 has been demanded and posted for the freedom of one of the principals. A similar amount is necessary to release a younger man on a similar charge; it has not been forthcoming and he remains locked up.

In this case our courts and all the force which the law possesses is being pitted directly against those who tinker with the lottery business.

Against that there is now record of other proceedings coming out of lottery tickets. Two suits are pending because it is claimed lucky tickets were not entirely the property of those who drew the winnings, and action has been taken to stop the payment. This appeal of course was made to Ireland from which place the tickets were obtained, and it might be urged that there was no parallel between such a case and the one in London. But one of those who is appealing in the Irish case when asked if she had anything to say replied: "I have nothing to say—anything you get will have to come from my lawyer."

The Irish sweepstakes are not recognized as being legal in Canada and any person dealing in tickets here is liable to prosecution. So that puts the selling and dealing in Irish tickets on the same illegal basis as the case at London. And yet we have one of the claimants stating that her Canadian lawyer is acting for her to see that she receives a just share of one of the winning tickets. And this is taking place while a man remains in jail at London because he cannot find $6,000 bail, and he's there because he has been dealing in lottery tickets. The thing does not seem to add up right.

He Seeks a Conference

Premier John Bracken of Manitoba has an idea and he is trying to make the thing take shape and do what he desires it to do. He is satisfied that selling wheat as we are doing is something which cannot be continued indefinitely. He wants wheat-growing countries to hold a conference in Winnipeg. He has been in Ottawa talking it over and from there he went on to Washington. He is ready to welcome as many interested delegates as he can gather.

At the moment the world wheat demand has dropped 200 million bushels this year, and while that has been taking place the world has been producing more wheat than ever. By paying an 80-cent price for the best western wheat the government according to the estimate of Mr. Bracken, is going to lose about $40,000,000, and after taking such a loss it means that the Western farmer has been getting an average of about 55 cents for his finest wheat. So while the system is hitting the public treasury hard it is not bringing much reward to the grain grower. Premier Bracken lives in the West where all this is taking place and he knows well enough the pegged price is not the answer.

There are three courses open, according to the Premier of Manitoba: (1) Wider markets, (2) continuation of the guaranteed price, or (3) abandon the guaranteed price and let the Western farmers take a chance in the world market.

This latter course, Mr. Bracken says, would result in a demoralized agriculture in the West, and it would mean abandoned lands and greater railway deficits and greater appeals for relief.

If representatives of various countries are brought together it would be found they would all desire somewhat the same things. They would all hold up their hands for wider markets, but talking of wider markets in a world which shows a decreased demand to the extent of 200 million bushels is not so good.

When our Canadian West was opened and made available for settlement growing wheat was the easiest way to make a start, and nearly every settler who went in there did the same thing. There was a time when our West was proudly referred to as the "Granary of the Empire" and it is that today, the trouble being that the Empire does not want the grain in sufficient quantities or prefers to buy much of the supply elsewhere.

If Premier Bracken can gather together a number of representatives from grain-growing nations perhaps they can reveal something which has so far been hidden, but at the moment it does look as though there are too many people in too many nations growing too much wheat. We wish Premier Bracken well but he is tackling a stiff and a stubborn question.

Sent 8,000 Home

The Packard Motor Car of Detroit was forced to send 8,000 workers home. Not on account of lack of orders, but because there were not sufficient car doors being made.

The Packard people buy car doors from a firm where a strike has been in progress and a sharp reduction in output has been one result. Another is 8,000 people out of work at the Packard plant.

Detroit is a great automobile city and a strong city but it cannot stand a succession of strikes. Strike after strike reduced Akron, Ohio, from a thriving industrial centre to a weakened and hard-up community.

The new form of unionism which invaded Detroit looks upon the strike as something which should be used to settle any kind of a dispute, and apparently they think nothing of forcing 8,000 to go home and miss their pay, and 8,000 workers is more than we have in Peterborough, male and female combined.

The handwriting is on the wall in the shape of what has happened in other communities and workers in Detroit must be blind if they can't see it, or worse than blind if they refuse to recognize it.

Advice In a Police Cell

A young boy whose name need not be mentioned simply because he is young ran away from home for the third time. He went from Toronto as far as Windsor and was apparently considering jungle life and the ways of the hobo as being the future for him. He applied at a house in Windsor for something to eat and the lady there took him in and fed him, after which she took him to the police station because he looked so young she feared something might happen to him.

And there he got a night's lodgings and had opportunity to talk to others who were "on the road." Police could hear the conversation and they say there was nothing in it to make the boy desire to follow the business of being a hobo. The others who were older and more or less tired of it themselves all joined in advising the boy of 15 that he should get back home just as soon as possible, attend to his schooling and then set out to lead a normal existence. They succeeded in convincing the boy that he was all wrong and the result is he got in touch with his father and has gone home and is today back at school.

It strikes us those three tramps in the police station had pretty sound sense, and we dare say the boy would take advice from them where he might resent it from others. It was his third attempt to make a hobo of himself and he was apparently taken with the prospects. One does not often look to the cells of a police station for sound counsel about anything, but there it is—the boy of 15 got exactly what he needed in the cells of a police station, and the boy, his parents and society in general are all indebted to the trio in Windsor police station for doing the very thing which needed doing.

They Can't Help It

"It is time something was done about the double parking on our business streets. The offenders to whom I refer as being the worst are the people who drive those big express and delivery trucks. Time after time they are seen double parked while the driver is not in the rig at all, but out delivering parcels. It is time these people were told to move on."

It might be well to consider this just for a minute or so. We have seen these express trucks on the road and they are often enough double parked, so that part of the statement is correct enough. But what are these delivery trucks doing? They are taking boxes and parcels in at the front door of many of our stores because there is no other way delivery can be made. Our city is not planned so that there is a lane in the rear of all our blocks from which delivery can be made so there is no other way in which the goods can be taken to those who want them. The drivers of trucks would undoubtedly park in the regular way if they could find space, but too often it is a case of cars being parked along business streets for hours at a time. The drivers of express trucks have no other course open but to park where they can even if it is double parking.

Lost In The Bush

A report sent by the Examiner's correspondent at Tweed tells of two men being lost in the bush for two days. Father and son they were, but the father was 78, and a man of that age does not as a rule possess the strength to stand spending a cold night in the open. They had gone hunting deer, and reported they could not find their way after having been in the dense woods for a while.

Actually it does not take much wandering to become lost in the woods especially where there is dense growth. We recall going with an Indian guide and trapper, and walking not more than three miles through bush in order to get a look at some new beaver dams. It was dense bush all right, much of it sapling growth and scrub stuff; it was not possible at any time to see very far and there was no path and not even a trail.

The Indian walked on ahead, and he said he had never been through there before. But as he walked he stopped now and then to bend over the top of some small growth, and two or three times when he came to a birth tree he looked for and found a black or charred bit of wood which he placed in the lower limbs of the tree. When it came to the return trip the Indian went on ahead as before and he had not the least trouble. It was noticed we arrived at the birch trees he had marked, and also passed the spots where he had broken off the tops of the small growth. We came out exactly at the spot where entrance had been made to the woods.

The guide took occasion to explain how he would find his way in the woods. If the sun were shining it would be easy enough, but if it were a dull or cloudy day he would depend on the way in which moss had grown at the bottom of trees. He explained it was likely that those unaccustomed to the bush might well walk in a circle, and when they found they were doing that they grew excited and afraid. We know well enough it would not have been possible to make that trip of three miles through the bush and then return without the assistance of the guide, so when we read of father of 78 and his son getting lost in the bush it is easy to understand how readily it could have happened.

Turkey raisers in Michigan plan to start a campaign to make eating turkey a habit instead of an occasion on a few days in the year. We doubt if the plan will work because turkey is a dish of which one can grow weary if served too often.

Maryland has made it compulsory for those wishing to get married to wait 48 hours after securing a license. There were spots there where the knot could be tied at once and ministers were doing business at the rate of 2,000 per month. Now that they must think it over for 48 hours the figures are likely to drop.

Gross receipts from those who paid to go through Casa Loma in Toronto amounted to $26,884 this year, out of which the city treasury received $6,721. The castle came into possession of the city for back taxes and as long as the city had it all officials did was call it a white elephant and make faces at it. It remained for a service club to show how to exploit the property as a show place and make money out of it.

CHANGED

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When Joseph String was twenty-one, he danced a jig when work was done, and he was hard as nails; he'd work a full twelve hours a day, and he earned well each cent of pay, when he was splitting rails.

¶ And any job there was to do, Joe String would see the thing clean through, he was no quitter then; and people used to envy him, he was so tall and straight and thin, a leader with strong men.

¶ Joe's appetite was great back there, just what he got he didn't care, he'd take it fine or rough; the only thing that bothered him, was wondering each time he'd begin, if he would get enough.

¶ Joe String made money after while, and raked together quite a pile, and he got lazy then; the wolf no longer at the door, he didn't stretch himself much more, got fat like lots of men.

¶ He started eating fancy things, and scoffed at old bologna rings, he laughed at cheese and bread; his dinner was a heavy score, and late at night he'd eat some more, before he went to bed.

¶ And now Joe String has got the gout, they don't know just when he'll get out, his frisky days are done; and all he does is sit and brood, and talk of how he liked plain food—when he was twenty-one.

WIPE OUT CHURCHES.

(Simple Simon in Chatham News)

IF WE GOT OUT OF our beds next Monday morning and found that by some unknown act all Church Buildings had been spirited away, how would you feel and what would you do as a Christian? Would you think that your Religion had run away from you? I don't see that it would make any difference to my Christian life. It would make all the difference to those things in my life which I regard as Christian but have nothing to do with it. There would certainly be little left for me to bluff with. Now in many parts of the World today the outward evidences of Christianity have been removed. Removed by War, and Revolution. Can that destroy Christianity? Can that kill Christ in a man' slife? Can that prevent the Spirit of God operating in a redeemed Sinner's Soul? Of course not.

• The Indigent Old— MRS. A. F. CALDER

When weary and worn with the toils of the way,
And fast fall the shadows round life's closing day,
With loved ones departed, no home and no friend,
With nothing to hope for on earth but the end—
O Father in heaven their sorrows behold,
And pity, and comfort the indigent old.

Though destitute now, is it to their disgrace,
If they fell through misfortune, behind in life's race?
Doubtless when once prospects beamed brightly and fair,
Like others they built splendid castles in air,
Now reduced in frail age to grim charity doled,
O God, help and comfort the indigent old.

When lonely, or racked by disease, care and pain,
While sad memory marshals her torturing train,
In the long silent when no kind friend is near,
Through the dark, dreary valley their pathway to cheer,
O God to Thy bosom, neath soft wings enfold,
In tenderest pity, the indigent old.

And O when life's tide is fast ebbing away,
May Thy smile be their light and Thy arm, their sure stay,
The cords of their tent at length gently release,
Through the swelling of Jordan, then bear them in peace,
To the land afar off with its City of Gold,
And the mansions, prepared, for the indigent old.

• Chamberlain Had To Face It

MR. HORE-BELISHA'S amazingly frank speech in the House of Commons, says the Montreal Star, may possibly serve to moderate somewhat the blustering belligerency of those who a short few weeks ago were trying with all their might to prod and sting Premier Chamberlain into war. They employed every provocative and enraging epithet and device of which they could think to stab through to the core of Chamberlain's proud sensitiveness and so stampede him into an irreconcilable attitude toward the berserk Hitler. They sought to rouse the old British spirit by stirring references to the great deeds of earlier—and wholly different—days, and so force the Chamberlain Ministers to act in the same fashion today or confess themselves lesser men.

Mr. Hore-Belisha gives the answer—or, at any rate, one of the answers. The British defences were not ready. The anti-aircraft guns were not ready. Even where the equipment was ready, the organization was so chaotic that guns were mounted without supplies and supplies were furnished where other factors were absent. Some of the special defence guns on which they are relying will only be supplied next summer, while others will go into production next June. As the Minister of War put it, Great Britain has been rearming for only three years—whereas Germany has been driving full speed ahead for nearly twice that time, and with all the intensity of a totalitarian State.

The searching criticisms of the Opposition leaders as to the unreadiness of the Government—for which no one was more to blame than the ex-leader of the Labor party—uncovered other weaknesses in the British defences. Sir Samuel Hoare replied for the Government, not by denying the accusations but by outlining what his Government was going to do in the future to cure these deficiencies. This is the only proper reply. The Government has done what it could to make up for lost time, but it has not yet plugged all the holes or armoured the British Isles against a sudden and devastating attack.

Thus, to put it bluntly, Mr. Chamberlain sat in at a deadly dangerous poker game at Berchtesgaden, Godesberg and Munich in which he was "bluffing" on an empty hand. He may have believed, as most of us did, that Hitler was "bluffing" too; but with his intimate official knowledge of the dismaying facts that are just now becoming public, he did not dare risk the lives of countless British civilians, the exposed wealth of British cities and possibly the very existence of the British Empire on the chance that the fanatical Fuehrer would back down.

• When Critics Tackle Teachers.

(Margaret Culkin Banning, in Cosmopolitan Magazine)

I AM an ordinary teacher. My case may have value because there are so many like me. Teachers are not individually publicized; we are trained not to attract attention. We know that we have the sharp, watchful eye of the taxpayer on us if we light a cigarette, take a cocktail in public, express an unpopular political opinion or, for once, wear a "high" fashion.

When Senta Wales went to Europe four years ago, she found on her return that complaints had been filed against her with the school board, saying that teachers must be overpaid if they were rich enough to go to Europe while the wives of taxpayers spent the summer canning in hot kitchens!

Senta had gone third class. She lived in two knitted suits all that summer. She was interested in politics and history and had studied her way over Europe. She wasn't on a junket. No wonder she was furious at that criticism. Or that now she is leading the left wing teachers' group that has set her city by the ears.

Teachers are supposed to follow a conventional pattern of living. But they are not robots; they are individuals, competent, suffering, failing, ambitious, and a great many of them are wondering about their place in the social system.

PREMIER PRESIDES.

(Toronto Star)

PRESIDENT of the King's privy council for Canada, over a meeting of which his majesty will likely preside during his visit next summer, is usually the prime minister. Mr. Mackenzie King holds the post now, as well as the secretaryship of state for external affairs, which also by custom goes with the premiership. But, when Mr. Rowell entered the Union government during the war, Sir Robert Borden relinquished the presidency of the privy council to him, thus at once honoring a distinguished man and symbolizing the coalition. Sir William Mulock ranks first in the privy council, having been sworn in on the 12th of July, 1896. The cabinet is technically only a committee of the privy council, but in practice is the real government of the country.

CONTEMPTIBLE

(Vancouver Sun)

SURELY the lowest form of life in Vancouver today is the subhuman being that is poisoning dogs in Kerrisdale. The loss of a fine St. Bernard, playmate of all the children in his neighborhood, is but one of a number of similar crimes.

Dogs, state the S.P.C.A., are being poisoned at the rate of three or four a week.

Three or four times a week some cruel, sneaking man or woman of warped mentality wipes out the happiness of some unoffending child. Under no circumstances is dog-poisoning anything but deliberate, and in these cases it is not the possibly vicious type of dog, but the home pets that are attacked.

The worst crime of this dog-poisoner is not the death of his victims, but the fact that he reduces humanity to a level below that of the brute he destroys.

THE PEDESTRIAN.

(Brantford Expositor)

IF THE EXPERIENCE in Detroit can be taken as a criterion, more stringent regulations in regard to jay-walkers will be necessary. Of 15 such persons killed in Detroit since October 1 in only one death was the driver of the car responsible for the accident. On the other hand, only two persons riding in automobiles were killed during the same period. Of the 140 persons killed so far this year 102 were pedestrians. If the campaign to secure safety on the streets and highways is to be successful, those who walk must cooperate with drivers. Perhaps if the law were amended, placing upon them certain responsibilities in the case of accidents, the danger might be lessened.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AND in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth, to a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary....

And the angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favour with God. And, behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David: and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end.

Then said Mary unto the angel, How shall this be, seeing I know not a man? And the angel answered and said unto her, The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee, therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God.—Luke 1, 26, 27, 30-35.

BE OURSELVES.

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

TWO PEOPLES living as close to each other as the Canadians and the Americans and having so many contacts almost unconsciously absorb each other's customs, habits and even tastes and culture. This is not altogether a bad thing when worthy things are borrowed one from the other, but when it comes to unworthy and sordid things the reverse is the case.

We can profit much more, we believe, from retaining our distinctive Canadian characteristics than from endeavoring to become a pale imitation of our neighbors, and certainly Canada will hold much more of interest to tourists if she follows this course than if she tries to turn herself into a second United States of America.

Yugoslavia Lives Constantly In Memory Or Murdered King

By Dewitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer.)

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Nov. 12. —(AP).—While waiting for 15 year old King Peter to reach 18 and assume the crown, Yugoslavia lives constantly in the burning memory of his father, Alexander, who was assassinated in Marseille, France, in 1934 while on a visit of good fellowship.

So potent is this remembrance that one might say the late king still occupies the throne, for his people continue to think his thoughts and carry out his plans.

Indeed it is so strong that it was responsible, so am informed by the best possible source, for a weakening during the last two years of the bonds of friendship between France and Yugoslavia long before the Czechoslovak crisis came along to do vast damage to French prestige. Folk in this part of the world don't forget.

The people will tell you quietly but with cold precision which speaks of deep bitterness that Alexander lost his life because of insufficient protection.

Uniform Preserved

If you want to get the full force of this feeling go with me across the great public park on the heights above the winding Danube to the ruins of the grim old fortress which still frowns out across the valley as though it really thinks its ancient bones have a fight left in them. There in the military museum we shall see an exhibit of stark realism as to bring one up with a jolt.

Carefully preserved is every shred of the bullet-torn, blood stained clothing which his majesty wore when he was shot down. Laid out at full length in a glass case is his uniform, even to the once white collar with its terrible tale of violence. There is the scarred motorcar in which he was riding. The discolored cushions repeat the tragedy.

Throughout the day crowds linger about this exhibit. I saw one woman moaning in a state of collapse, near the glass case.

From the museum we motor some 60 miles through a lovely rugged countryside to Oplenac. Here is the white marble church of Saint George. Under the church in the royal crypt is the body of the late Alexander. Ever since the assassination his people, including hundreds of thousands of peasants from all parts of the country, have been making pilgrimages to pray by his tomb.

Marriage School Is To Be Conducted By Chicago Minister

Chicago, Nov. 12 (AP).

A "marriage school" will be conducted at the Drexel Park Presbyterian Church by Rev. Clinton Cox for young people who want to know how to get married, stay married, and be hpapy, too.

Mr. Cox said today in announcing the six-weeks course representatives of young peoples' groups of marriageable ages in his church had asked that "marriage be brought out in the open for discussion."

Some of the subjects on the curriculum included:

"Meeting of the prospects."
"The danger of flirtation."
"Where to go — how much to spend."
"The hide and seek attitude."
"The engagement period."
"Limits and liberties."
"Wedding service."
"Elopements."

Official Rules for Kiwanis Spelling Bee

Open to all pupils in the seventh and eighth grades, the bee will seek to determine the best speller in those two classes in the entire county.

Prizes include a Spelling Bee cup, which goes to the school winning the Grand Championship, to be held by them for one year. A pennant will be awarded to the school winning the group championship. Prizes of $5, $3, $2, will go to contestants winning first, second and third titles in each group on Friday evening, December 9. The Grand Champions will collect a prize of $10 and $5, to be decided on Saturday, December 10.

Organization

The first step in the contest will be to determine the champion in each rural school in Peterborough district. Then the school districts meet to decide the champion for the district. These preliminaries are already run off and three separate sections in the Spelling Bee have been formed.

(1) The rural schools, making up 10 school fair district. The champion of each school fair district has been declared.

(2) The village schools or rural-urban districts, of which nine are in the contest, the champions of which have not all been declared.

(3) The public and the separate schools in the city of Peterborough comprising 10 schools, the champions of which have not all been declared.

NOTE—The champion of each school entering the contest must be declared not later than November 12, in order to give the sponsors time to publicize their school. On Friday, December 9, at 8.00 p.m., the preliminary contests will be run off in the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School Auditorium. Three prizes will be given. One to the champion of the Rural Schools; one to the champion of the Rural Urban Schools or Village Schools and one to the champion of the City of Peterborough Schools. On Saturday, December 10th, at 8.00 p.m. the Final Contest will be run off to decide the Grand Champion of the Peterborough District. The Grand Champions to receive a prize valued at $10.00, $5.00, $3.00 for first, second and third in Final Contest.

Special Rules.

Authority—In all contests, absolute authority within these rules and in all matters not covered by these rules shall rest with the official or officials designated to conduct the contest. This authority shall run from the moment the first word is pronounced and the decisions of the officials in charge shall be final.

Alternates—Should a champion be prevented, for any reason, from entering the final contests, the individual ranking second in the contest last won by the champion shall take his or her place.

Pronouncing—All words should be crisply, clearly and correctly ennunciated. Contestants may pronounce words before or after spelling them, or not at all. Contestants may request that words be repronounced, defined or used in a sentence. Each contestant will first write the word and then spell it in front of the microphone.

Spelling—Any contestant failing to spell a word correctly will be given another chance before he shall drop out of the contest, and a word once misspelled must not be given to any other contestant during the first night of the contest. Having started to spell a word, the contestant shall be given no opportunity to change letters once pronounced or written. But for a speller to pause and retrace his steps in spelling a word, without change, does not eliminate him. Hesitancy on the part of the speller for an unreasonable length of time will count a miss. Pupils once leaving the line cannot re-enter the Bee at any stage unless a protest, immediately made, is sustained, or unless the breaking of a tie becomes necessary.

Teachers should coach pupils in self-possession, so that they will not plunge into errors that they might, by caution, avoid. Recesses in prolonged contests will be permitted.

No Ties—There can be no ties for any championship. When the contestants have been reduced to two, words missed by both consecutively, will permit both to re-enter the contest.

Optional Spellings—The spelling used in the Canadian Speller Book 11 and 7th Grade Reader Life and Literature—Book I, shall be considered the correct spelling.

Extra Word List—Should the word lists employed from the Canadian Speller Book II and 7th Grade Reader Book I be exhausted, Webster's Standard Dictionary will be resorted to for additional words to be selected by the superintendent or his representative. These words will be used only to terminate an unduly protracted contest.

Note—Each school in the contest will be sponsored by some organization or person in the city of Peterborough, the names of whom will be published later. When the contestants are notified who their sponsor will be they may communicate with their sponsor with regard to publicity and further information.

Conduct of Contest

The nights of the contest, the sponsor or his representative will be on the stage with his contestants. The sponsor will draw from a container a slip of paper bearing a number, which he will announce and then hand to the pronouncer who in turn will look up the word corresponding to the number in the lists of words. The pronouncer will announce the word and the contestant will walk to the front of the stage, sit down at a table and write the word opposite the number on the slip of paper and then spell orally in front of a microphone as clearly as possible, so that the audience and officials may clearly understand what letters were used. If the contestant misses the word a record will be kept and after two errors occur he or she is out of the contest.

For any further information, write or telephone the Kiwanis Spelling Bee Chairman, 232 McDonnel street, Peterborough. Tel. 2858-F.

These are the official rules of the contest. Keep them. They will not be published again.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

Knarf and Hanid, the shadow-children, and the little drop of water called Freshet made their way up the steep passage in the rocks. A little stream of water, clear, cool spring water, went trickling past them.

"So you don't know where the water in the spring comes from, eh?" Freshet said in a merry voice.

"I always thought it came right from the rocks," said Knarf. "But water really can't come from rocks, can it? It's got to come from somewhere else."

Flows Through Rocks.

"That's right. It does come from somewhere else. It just flows through the cracks in the rocks. You'll see where it comes from in a little while. Here—we've come to the end of this passage. Now follow me. I'm going to take you to Snowflake Cavern.

"Snowflake Cavern!" the two shadows exclaimed. "What's that?"

But Freshet only laughed as he splashed over the last turn in the narrow passageway. "Here we are!" he cried. "This is Snowflake Cavern!"

Knarf and Hanid found themselves looking into a large cave. The walls and the roof were all rock. But the bottom of the cave was all filled with water.

"It's like a lake!" Knarf said in surprise.

"And look!" said Hanid, pointing to the walls. "The water is coming down there!"

"Br-r-r! It's good and cold in here," Knarf said the next moment. "But I don't see any snow. Why is it called Snowflake Cavern when there isn't any snow?"

Freshet, who had sat himself down on the edge of the cave with his feet dangling in the water, chuckled. "It's called Snowflake Cavern because all this water you see here comes from the snowflakes that fall on top of the hill every winter. You see, we're just under the top of the hill now—I mean, we're inside the hill, right near the top. Well, when the snowflakes melt, they sink into the ground until they reach this cave."

"And when they reach this cave, all melted like this, do they become the spring water which flows out of the rocks at the bottom of the hill?" Hanid asked.

"Oh!" said Knarf, thinking himself very smart to think of this. "So the spring water that people drink is really melted snowflakes?"

He expected Freshet to say, "Yes, of course!" But Freshet answered, "No, that isn't exactly right. Melted snowflakes aren't really good to drink just as they are. They have to be flavored first."

"Flavored first!" the two shadows exclaimed. "What do you mean?"

"TIRED" ALL THE TIME

She felt miserable—draggy—low in vitality—lower in spirits. She hadn't thought of her kidneys, until a friend suggested Dodd's Kidney Pills. At once she took Dodd's. The "washed out" feeling was soon replaced by clear headed energy and restful sleep. Headache, backache, lassitude and other signs of faulty kidneys disappeared. 112

CHAPTER 46

JUDY GAVE herself to merry-making the night of Marjorie's marriage to Bob. When she tumbled into bed at 4 o'clock, she was too sleepy to think. She fell asleep immediately.

She did not set the alarm clock. The next day was Saturday so the studio would not need her.

She slept until early afternoon, completely exhausted by the emotional tension of the last few weeks. She dreamed she was walking down a long road and Ronald was somewhere far ahead. She called, but the could not hear her. She ran, but she could not reach him. She wakened, then, wondering why she felt so bewildered and lost.

It was raining a furious lashing rain, that melted the snow and hurled its wet streamers through the windows, soaking the draperies. Cold air rushed through the windows too. The living room looked tired and gray and cheerless.

She closed the windows, turned up the heat, lighted a lamp or two to add a touch of warmth and cheer. Then she went into the bathroom and relaxed in a hot bath. A cool showed followed. By the time she was dressed she felt vital, awake again.

She decided to put on her raincoat and brave the storm. It was not far to the cafeteria. There would be lights and people, and she didn't want to be alone.

She bought a paper and a new magazine at a news counter that she passed. The wind whipped her skirts around her legs. The white raincoat billowed and swooped in the drenched air. She clutched her hat.

She lowered her umbrella. It was too fragile to combat such a storm. She herself could, though. She gloried in it. There was something tangible to fight.

She sat down to orange juice, hot rolls and coffee at a white-topped table in a corner of the big cafeteria. She spread out the paper and scanned its news as she sipped the fruit juice. Suddenly the glass wobbled in her hand, and the stream of orange liquid made a thin line across the smooth table.

Ronald's name was jumping up at her.

She put down the glass and gave her whole attention to the news.

"Birrell Exonerated in Jury Bribing Charge."

He was free! He would not go away! His resignation would not be accepted!

But when had the miracle happened? Who had done it?

She scanned the brief paragraphs. Ronald had been the victim of a crank. The man who gave the bribes had been identified by the guilty jurors. Another who had refused the bribe spotted him, too. The man—the man was Gregg Stirling!

So Sterling had been the guilty party, just as she and Ronald had dared to believe. She wondered how his cruel attempt to injure had been uncovered. She would not know until she saw Ronald.

Another note struck its key, clear and sharp in the medley of thoughts that played together in her curious mind. Ronald had kept his promise to Abbey. He had not let any hit of her part in this scandal creep into the news. Ronald was a gentleman. He would protect any woman, of course, she reminded herself. But Abbey had been recalled to her mind and she saw the cynical smile on the girl's lips, heard her brittle, mocking laughter.

Judy finished the rolls and coffee and went home scarcely noticing the storm this time. The rooms were warmer now. She had an afternoon with nothing to do. Tonight she was to be a dinner guest at some old friends. She would bake a pie!

So when her doorbell rang, an hour later, she was watching the oven, waiting for the pie to turn the proper golden brown.

One eye on the open oven door, she answered the buzzer and spoke through the tube. Since the night of the mysterious call of the bootlegger—mysterious no longer, she realized—she had done that.

"Are you busy Judy?" That was Ronald. "May I come up for a little while?"

She was in the hall to greet him, both hands extended. His face was so young and eager and glad that she felt years older, like a sister or mother who drew from deeper, wiser understanding. She knew that it was a ridiculous attitude. There were moments when she felt like a school girl around him.

The story Ronald told was simple and direct.

"The blackmailer by profession had a bad enough grudge against Sterling at the beginning. Then, when he discovered it was the connection with the letters Abbey had written that led to his discovery on the other charges, he was like an animal. So he talked.

"He knew that Sterling was bitter against me. The man had dropped a few hints that he knew something about the blackmailing. He said too much. When the police heard about it they rounded up Sterling and the man confessed. Owned up to it all."

"And are you cleared!"

"Cleared!"

She wanted to say something shining, glorious, worthy. Instead she caught her breath, "My pie!"

They raced to the kitchen. The edges were beginning to turn a dark brown. Judy swept the pie from the oven and put it in an open window to cool.

Ronald looked at it, then at her. "You baked it?"

"Of course, nut! How else would it get in the oven?"

Judy sat down on a high stool and laughed.

"Didn't you know I could cook?"

"Hardly! Where did you learn useful things?" Still he didn't believe her.

"At school. I can sew, too, and knit, and dust and play the piano —" She wiped her eyes and tried to stop laughing.

"Judy, that's glorious," Ronald was saying, almost reverently.

In the end Judy did not go to her dinner party. She telephoned and made her excuses. It was a small party, so it made no particular difference. The table was not set for an even number of men and women.

She and Ronald had the pie for dinner. They had a steak with mushrooms, great, fluffy baked potatoes, a salad and a soup and coffee. They sat at the gate-legged table in front of the fire. Ronald had braved the storm for some more wood.

It was warm and intimate and happy. They were safe against the night, the rain, all threats. Life could not harm two people who shared a roof, Judy was thinking.

When Ronald stood up to leave, she started. For a moment she had almost forgotten this was a borrowed hour, nothing more.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, November 13.

Sunday's horoscope is a harbinger of very lively and happy conditions, with much stirring to give joy and gratification. All pertaining to intellectual and cultural vocations or avocations is due to flourish, and the social and emotional relationships are also under auspicious incitements.

Those whose birthday it is have the promise of a very active year, particularly if their interests lie in the direction of writing, publishing, publicity or trading. Also, all pertaining to the home and social advancement and enhancement is under active stimuli.

A child born on this day may be particularly intellectual and have pronounced social, artistic, and humanitarian urges, probably placing it in some public service in this direction. It may be gracious, kindly and have much appeal for youth.

For Monday, November 14.

Monday's astrological forecast is a rather conflicting one. There are signs of advancement, recognition, and splendid openings for the fruition of great hopes and wishes. At the same time, there are symbols of disturbance, distress, setbacks and postponements of such ambitions. This may be due to an unexpected and unwelcome change, or to the intervention of an elder who is kindly disposed but who upsets cherished objectives.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of conflicting interests. There is promise of fulfilled goals and wishes within happy grasp, but there may be happenings to delay, disappoint, or smother such ideas, possibly a mishap to an old person, who has friendly intentions but who is an upsetting factor.

A child born on this day may be high minded, aspiring, efficient and deep, steadfast, and enterprising, winning the support of the public spirited. At the same time, it may have rather fluctuating fortunes.

Armistice Dinner Huge Success St. James' Church

Another anniversary occasion was marked in St. James United church last night by the splendid Armistice dinner and concert given under the auspices of the Woman's Association when over 400 people were gathered.

The dining hall and tables were suitably decorated with streamers of red, white and blue, making an appropriate setting for the banquet so efficiently catered by the women of St. James congregation, under the general direction of Mrs. M. H. Drysdale, president of the Women's Association.

Among the men who assisted were E. R. Frost and B. Pitchford as treasurer and Harold Fife and Harold Brumwell who received tickets. During the intermission between the banquet, which began at 5.30 o'clock and the program, a delightful musical treat was afforded by the St. James Orchestra, with Mrs. R. C. Searles at the piano.

Rev. F. C. Craik, the pastor, as chairman, welcomed the guests to his church and announced the numbers on the varied and interesting program.

Especial Thanksgiving

In his opening remarks, Mr. Craik referred to this Armistice Day, as one of special thanksgiving. "God has given us peace, he said, and all over Canada Christian hearts are filled with gratitude." He spoke too of our responsibility for the coming generation, to whom peace will mean much.

The numbers on the program were all either sacred in character or appropriate to the day, and included an opening selection by the orchestra. A pleasing variation was the stirring music in cornet duet contributed in two groups by Harold and David Wilson accompanied by E. Doleman. Rudyard Kipling's Recessional with its timely message was sung in fine bass solo by Mr. M. Gordon, who chose for his second number a Scotch favorite, "I Love A Lassie."

Young Artist Pleases

A more youthful artist was Ernest Lee who delighted the audience with his songs, "Daddy" and "The Lilac Tree" with Mrs. E. Kitney, A.T.C.M., at the piano.

Piano solos of various types were the charming offerings of Mrs. E. A. Rowe and Miss Elsie Chambers. This fine musical program was interspersed with readings also fitting into the Armistice scheme by Mrs. Henry Turner. Her numbers included "In the Shadow Of His Wings" and "Guilty Or Not Guilty."

Mr. Craik voiced the thanks of the gathering for the splendid dinner and program which was concluded with the National Anthem.

Personality a Woman's Unfailing Charm

Is it a line? No, it's just part of the personality she's developed. Her charm captivates. She's discovered men are at their best when encouraged to talk about themselves and what they are doing. So she shows responsiveness in her animated expression and an occasional, "That's really remarkable," or, "How absorbing your work must be."

She never forgets that in romance the woman must draw the man toward her, but always remain just outside his reach.

Younger women sometimes drive a man away by showing off, trying to prove that they know more than he does. Our 32-page booklet tells how to avoid such mistakes. How to cultivate a personality that wins and holds men.

DOROTHY DIX

Unless Necessity Compels, It Is Better For a Woman To Give Up Her Work And Devote Her Entire Time To Being a Wife And Mother After She Is Married

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—My fiance and I have been having an argument about my keeping on with my job after we are married. He is opposed to it. He says that the woman who works outside of her home cannot be as good a wife and mother as the one who devotes all of her time and energies to her family. Is this true? And, if it is true, why is it the case?

FLORENCE.

ANSWER:

It is true because it is one of the immutable laws of nature that nobody can be in two places at the same time. Hence it is impossible for even the most versatile woman to be simultaneously looking after the affairs of her home and seeing to the welfare of her husband and children, and running a business office, or conducting a political campaign a thousand miles away.

Every woman has just so much intelligence, health, energy and enthusiasm, and if she expects it on one thing she hasn't got it to give to other things, any more than she would have money to buy potatoes if she had blown in her last cent on a fur coat. That is why the women who try to combine careers and domesticity generally fail at both.

Every woman who is worth her wage to her employer and who does the kind of work that will get her anywhere has to give the very best that is in her to her job. She has to bring every ounce of intelligence that she has to bear on it. She has to concentrate on it. For the time being it has to be the most important thing in the world to her. And she cannot do this if her mind is detracted by home affairs and she is wondering if the children got off to school all right; if little Johnny's cough is better. She has to charge her memory with the things she has to buy at the delicatessen store for dinner as she goes home.

Nor can the woman who has worked all day in a store or office and who comes home tired and exhausted and nervefrazzled at night be the sweet, serene, patient wife and mother she should be. She can't even give her family the kind of food they should have to eat if she has to cook it herself. She would be more than human if she didn't snap at her husband and spank the baby and vent on her family the irritations that she had been bottling up in herself all day and that she dares not expend on the boss or customers.

The eternal ideal of a home does not change. It is a place where life circles around a woman who stays put, who keeps the fire burning on the hearth and the light in the window and the dinner hot and savory waiting for husband and children to come home to at night. It is not a sloppy place run by hirelings while Mother is off on a lecture tour, or has telephoned she would be late because she had been detained at the office by a customer from Oshkosh, or where the family eat out of tin cans and paperbags because Mother has no time to cook.

Of course, it may be said that if a woman earns enough money outside of the home she can pay for servants to do the work inside of it. That is true enough, though most of us think that Mother threw some magic into the making of her home that no interior decorator ever dreamed of, and that no chef ever gave the flavor to food that Mother did. But no substitute can be found for a real mother.

You can't hire anybody to pinch-hit for her. No baby specialist, no nursery governess—however scientific and well trained and conscientious—can take her place. None of them can give the children what they need more than anything else on earth: Love and tenderness and understanding.

More than that, it is the mother's hand that forms the child's character. Little by little, precept upon precept, steadying little straying feet, holding up ideals before it, encouraging, restraining, saying do and don't a thousand times a day, and this cannot be done by a mother who only sees her children for an hour or so a day when she is hurrying to work or coming back from work. She is a stranger to them. Their familiarity is with the nurses who are rearing them.

Of course, it is sadly true that many women are compelled by economic necessity to work outside of their homes. This is a misfortune to them and to their families, for it is not possible for them to be as good wives and mothers as the woman whose career is in her home.

DEAR MISS DIX—What part of a man's income is it fair for a wife to have? My husband earns $10,000 a year and my allowance is $200 a month, which he complains is too darn much. Out of my allowance I have to pay for all the food, running the house, my clothes, club dues, doctors' and dentists' bills, as well as anything I spend for pleasure. I resent very much his feeling that he gives me too much, because when we were married thirty years ago he made only $20 a week and I gladly slaved to help him get a start. He wanted to take a commercial course. I encouraged him to do it, and while he was doing it he and the baby and I lived on $10 a week because I pinched every penny, made our clothes and kept out of debt. I wish he would remember that and show that he feels that I had some part in making his fortune, instead of just being somebody he has to support. We are in our sixties now and I would like to play a little and not feel that my husband begrudges me even my food. What about it? MILLIE.

ANSWER:

When a woman has been the kind of a wife that you have been, Millie there isn't any amount of money that her husband could give her that would pay for her services. She has earned half of whatever he has by her labor, by her sacrifices, by her keeping him comfortable and well and happy so that he could do the work he was engaged in, by her bolstering up his morale when he was discouraged and fainthearted and tempted to turn quitter.

Whatever your husband's income, you should share fifty-fifty with him in it, and he is certainly singularly lacking in gratitude and a sense of justice when he begrudges you even a pittance of the money you have worked so hard for. Why, even if he had paid you only the wages of a servant you would have a tidy fortune of your own now.

Branch Notes

ALL SAINTS' BRANCH

A most successful worship night was held on last Monday evening. The short business meeting was held by the president and the remainder of the program was left in the hands of the minister of worship, Leslie Cavalier. Allan Worsencroft conducted a very interesting discussion group on "Religious matters of common interest."

We had as our guest the Rev. Mr. Robinson.

The branch is celebrating their 25th anniversary on Monday, November 21. A good program has been arranged and refreshments will be served. All members of the district are very cordially invited. Programs are on sale by branch members for a very small sum.

All members please keep in mind the district council meeting on Monday, at 8 o'clock.

ST. JOHN'S BRANCH

On Wednesday night the members went on an adventurous treasure hunt and many learned of streets and places which they never knew of before. The treasure seekers were guided by clues and passwords from place to place, and all in all covered about five miles. Donald Howell was the lucky one who discovered the fabulous prize and for his exercise he received a box of chocolates and had his membership fees paid for the season. Final plans were announced by Canon Robertson for the presentation of the play, "The Importance of Being Ernest," to be staged Tuesday and Wednesday nights, December 6 and 7. Aileen Sisson's team continued the program of the evening with games, discussions and some dancing. Next Wednesday will be Musical Night, to be presented by Fred Hooper's team.

ST. GEORGE'S BRANCH.

On Thursday evening the meeting was opened with prayer, with the president, T. Alcock, presiding.

The evening was taken over by the literary committee, with Mrs. T. Dorrell in charge.

Mrs. Dorrell gave her report on the conference, after which an all-round discussion took place on fellowship and facts coming out of the conference.

A talk on Miss Young's address of a few weeks ago was given by Mrs. O. Laderach, and a short discussion followed.

Let's have a good representation at the District Council meeting on Monday evening in All Saints' Parish Hall at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Dorrell brought the meeting to a close with prayer.

ST. LUKE'S BRANCH

The monthly business meeting of St. Luke's branch was held on Thursday evening with the president in the chair. The Women's Guild requested the A.Y.P.A. to give it their meeting night on November 24th which was granted. A nomination committee was appointed, consisting of W. Hill, Miss Daisy Bell and V. Sedgwick, to draw up a slate of officers for next year. It was also decided to purchase a book of games and contests.

After the business was closed Miss Jessie Bell and her group took charge of the program. It being the eve of Armistice Day a short address was given by V. Sedgwick followed by two minutes' silence in memory of the fallen and the remainder of the evening was spent in enjoyable games and contests.

Next week's meeting will be in charge of Ralph Mason's group. Members are reminded of the district annual meeting at All Saints, Monday, November 14. A large turnout from St. Luke's is looked for.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

One Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is above all and through all, and in you all.—New Testament.

Dear Friends:

This is the other part to the one I was telling you about Unions. Well, the man died, but it all set me thinking about the ways of men.

Solomon said there were three things he could not explain and amongst the three, were, "the ways of a man with a maid." He could also have said the ways of men with men, for that indeed is hard to explain.

Men want leaders, for not all men can lead. Get them in a union, and see the dissension which starts up right away. Each one wants his pet theory used, each seems to struggle against the other, so that instead of in union being strength, it seems to be in weakness.

Take a group of men and put them in the navy or the army, then you will see strength, for then they are disciplined. Yet how few can discipline themselves.

Even in the penitentiaries, where rigid discipline rules, men have developed where they would never have developed by themselves. How then you might ask can men who are neither in the "pen," nor the army or navy, unite so that they get the best out of life?

By uniting with God. And never forget that "one man united with God" is an army in himself. Yet how few will believe it or try it. They try the forlornest hope, but not that.

I wonder if they think it is "sissy" to combine with God? How can it be that when He is Lord over everything? You might say, "if He is Lord over everything, then why doesn't He make conditions better?"

Because He gave us freedom of thought. Does that convey anything to you? Freedom which all men crave, not serfs to be at His beck and call, not having goodness forced on us, but free to choose which way we will go in life.

And we either go up or down, you cannot straddle the fence. Because He tells us "he who is not with us is against us." And if only men would take all the humbug out of religion, all the "thou shalt nots," which men and men alone have imposed on us, then they would see that union with God is the grandest thing that ever was.

You know you cannot go it alone, any more than I can. There is a something unsatisfied within you as it is with me when you will not unite with Him.

And his yoke is not nearly as heavy as the one you wilfully put on yourself when you ignore Him, and give Him no place in your life. "With God, all things are possible." Which union of men can say the same thing?

All things mind you. Not just rules and ritual, not just dues where one man seems to have all the way, while the others can only agree or be kicked out, but all things are possible when we unite with Him.

And some of these "all things" are better jobs with more pay, better health for the sick, better living conditions, better pay, for remember, "the laborer is worthy of his hire."

You might say, "the good people that I know are not having such a heck of a good time, they are not getting full and plenty." Yet did you ever see those who were trying to better conditions for all concerner have a very good time? Neither have I.

It is because you will not unite with those others that they are having such a thin time. And your own is not much better is it? But when all man do unite, taking God as their great leader, what a difference there would be.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

FORECASTS OPEN WINTER

LUDINGTON, Mich., Nov. 12.—(CP)—Leander Brant, 79-year-old trapper forecast today an open winter for Michigan and Western Ontario, basing his forecast on discovery of a caterpillar with only a little fur on it and because "frogs are out hollering and singing like the summer time."

A Torpid Liver
Brings Many Ills

All down through the history of medical treatment there persists the idea that by keeping the liver healthy and active you escape many of the common ills of life and some of the most serious and most painful diseases as well.

A healthy liver filters poisons from the blood and converts them into bile which as Nature's cathartic is poured into the intestines or bowels to keep them regular and active.

It is only by keeping the liver active that you can really overcome constipation and relieve the most serious forms of indigestion.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are, above all else, regulators of the liver. They quickly arouse the torpid, sluggish liver to healthful activity, ensure action of the bowels and proper working of the kidneys. Put this time-proven medicine to the test when you are feeling out-of-sorts from constipation or indigestion, when you have headache, or backache or the tired feelings which come with sluggish action of the liver or kidneys. 35 cts. a box, at all druggists.

Cow Did Horse's Work

CHATHAM.—When Raymond Charron lost one horse of the only team he owned as he prepared to harvest his corn, he didn't take long to remedy the situation. Believing a cow should be able to do a horse's job as well as give milk, he experimented and now has a cow-horse team.

Tone Tempest Hits George Street Church

With the auditorium in darkness except the console lamp, Gatty Sellars, noted English organist, let loose the latent thunder of the splendid Casavant instrument in George Street United Church last night in a realistic and memorable performance of his own composition, "An Ocean Tempest," that stopped short of starting his audience in search of the lifebelts. Bourdon, bombardon, diapason, and other resources of the bass organ rumbled and roared in massive, pulsing sound depicting the tumult and fury of wind, pierced occasionally with the keening of probably the oboe coupler, and another vivid effect as of the wash of waves. It was a grand upheaval of the simuland elements of sound locked up in the solemn instrument of Sunday choral worship suddenly liberated, so it might have appeared, in an impressionistic overture to Dante's Inferno. A sharp flash of tone cutting through the reverberations strikingly suggested lighting, so thorough was Mr. Sellars in his conception of what an organ storm should and could be, and so convincing was he in his expert manipulation of the winds of his instrument far above the storm gods of even Hollywood.

That turbulent show piece carried a punch, or in even rougher terms, an emotional sock that will be remembered by some of his audience to who mthe Bach Toccato in D minor with its fugue was just a jumble of mild sounds. The latter was he opening number of the concert under the auspices of the Young People's Association of the church, a finely textured contrapuntal weaving of pleasing tonal figures, swiftly fluent and ingratiating, an introductory tribute to the classics of organ music before proceeding to more obvious entertainment.

A little pastoral theme in Mr. Sellars' composition, "Sunset at the Abbey," antithesis of the gales that were to rock the church later, deserved special mention because of its fine quality of inspiration. This is one of the organist's recent compositions, and apart from his other works it bears the stamp of original and authentic musical ideas. It haunted one's memory after nearly all the other phrases of the concert had vanished, especially the lovely melody of that pastoral theme which Mr. Sellars modestly informed his audience is being used in the film, "Golden California."

The attendance last night seemed to be less than four hundred, a disappointing reception to an artist of Mr. Sellars' reputation and attainments. Possibly the bedtime organ programs on the air around midnight and later may have tended to take the edge off interest in Mr. Sellars' concert in person, but it may be said that none of the lullaby organists can excel him even in their own atmosphere. He evoked beauties of tone from the George Street instrument that were exquisite, ethereal melodies as in his arrangement of Bizet's "Agnus Dei," and a mood from "The Church Triumphant," another number of his own authorship, to mention a few examples. Other numbers were the march "Crown Imperial" by William Walton, played at the Coronation in Westminster Abbey, and Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance," majestic tone, part of it with the full organ, which Mr. Sellars employs not only with sweep and power, but also with exceeding clarity.

Mrs. James Goldie, soprano, was a graceful assistant, and charming as usual. Her numbers were "None But the Lonely Heart," Schubert's "Serenade," "Spirit Flower," Campbell-Tipton, and "Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal." Her accompanist was Harry Northrop.

A SPEEDY TRIP

Louis Florence, 376 George street, made a quick automobile trip from New York city to Peterborough yesterday. Leaving New York at 8 o'clock in the morning he arrived in Peterborough at 9.30 o'clock, despite the fact that he was held up in several cities by Armistice Day celebrations. He crossed into Canada by the new Ivy Lea bridge.

SERGEANTS HOLD PARTY.

The Sergeants' Mess at the Armouries was the scene of a gay party last night, when the men held an Armistice Day banquet which was followed by a dance. An orchestra composed of band members provided lively music and the party was thoroughly enjoyed. Company Sgt. Major William Piercey was host and extended a warm welcome to visiting officers and the guests.

CAR RECOVERED

The automobile belonging to J. K. Hughes which was stolen last Saturday morning after it had been left in front of National Grocers premises by Wm. Noftall, was recovered yesterday in Lindsay and provincial Constable Adair of Lindsay arrested two men who claimed to be residents of Bolton, Ont. They are wanted also on several charges of breaking and entering in the Lindsay sector and will probably be tried there..

FIRST DEER WITH FIRST SHOT

A hunting story along main street this morning turned the spotlight on Chris. Hughes, manager of Grafton's. He went out to Richard Batten's camp north of Crowe's Landing and by 8.45 a.m. he had bagged his first deer at the very first shot. And that was his introduction to deer hunting. In fact his season was all over in less than an hour. The camp is situated on the Batten property of 1,200 acres in the neighborhood of the Crown game reserve. Mrs. H. S. Routley also got a deer there Friday, the day's visitors having practically all the luck, while the regulars are still hunting.

RARE AMMUNITION.

Major Clifton, M.C., had a little trouble getting ready for the Armistice Dinner held by the Officers' Association in the Armouries Friday night. He had not used his dress shirt studs for several weeks, and had remembered putting them away carefully in a little box. He searched everywhere for at least a half an hour, but failed to find them. His temper was frayed as he made a final round of members of the family asking all if they had seen his studs. Finally, his little curly-haired son, Terry, piped up, "Maybe Daddy, dey is what I shot out of my cannon," and so that settled the mystery of the missing studs. The Major obtained another set.

A BARGAIN HUNTER.

One buyer at the auction sale on George street this week, snapped up four large pictures very cheaply, but immediately was faced with the problem of getting them home safely. The wires on the frames were rather long, so he swung three under his arm with the wires around his neck and the fourth he manipulated to a position on his back like a haversack. He then climbed aboard his bicycle and headed north on George street. Misfortune overtook him at the first turn when the pictures swung out of position and the glass in the largest of the four tinkled to the street. He continued the journey on foot, balancing the pictures across the handlebars.

Spelling Bee Plans Outlined

Plans for the Kiwanis Spelling Bee to be held in the Collegiate Auditorium on Deccember 9 and 10 are shaping up well and interest is growing fast, so that when the actual test arrives it is expected the auditorium which seats 1000 people will be jammed to capacity. Spelling bees among adults and university students have found much favor from radio audiences but this is the first time locally that suc han educational entertainment has been attempted.

How Contest Conducted

When the contestants arrive with their sponsors the night of the contest, each contestant will draw a number which will determine the position he or she will take on the stage. If, for example, a pupil draws No. 1, then No. 1 contestant will sit to the right of the stage and will be given the first word to spell in the contest. No. 2 contestant will sit next to No. 1 on the stage and will be given the second word, etc., until all contestants have been given a word consecutively. The cycle will then start over again and continue until all have been spelled down but three. A few minutes intermission will be declared. Then the elimination will continue until only one remains.

In order that every contestant receives every possible consideration, the sponsor shall draw from a container a slip of paper which will bear a number. This number will determine the word that the pronouncer will give the contestant to spell. For example, suppose No. 10 is drawn. The pronouncer will look down the list of words until he comes to 10 and he will pronounce the word clearly and the contestant will write the word on the slip of paper bearing the No. 10, at a table out in front of the row of contestants. He or she will then spell the word orally so that all in the room may hear. The night of the contest a microphone and amplifiers will be provided. When the contestant has missed two words he or she shall withdraw from the contest.

May we suggest that each teacher try the lists of words which will appear in the Examiner from time to time to acquaint the pupil with th method to be adapted the nights of Dec. 9th and 10th.

The following is a list of words which were selected at random from the Canadian Speller Book II:

1 Worries, 2 agreeable, 3 approach, 4 behaviour, 5 satisfaction, 6 exchanged, 7 actual, 8 attraction, 9 luncheon, 10 institution, 11 vice, 12 enormous, 13 organization, 14 personality, 15 appointed, 16 performance, 17 household, 18 transportation, 19 provincial, 20 delicious.

Other lists of words will appear in this paper from time to time until the contest is over. Watch in the Examiner for further information, with regard to the Kiwanis Spelling Bee.

All Canada Open To Air Attack Millbrook Veterans Are Told

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Nov. 12. — Under blue skies, and with an Indian summer atmosphere prevailing, the ex-Service Men's Club of Millbrook conducted an impressive public service at the Cenotaph in the Town Hall Square on Remembrance Day morning.

The council had declared a public holiday for the occasion, and the schools also were dismissed for the day. The parade, made up of the veterans, under R.S.M. William Theobald, and the local Cadet Corps under Lieutenant B. B. Dawson, Captain Max Challice and Lieutenant W. Kerr, and headed by the Millbrook Citizens' Band, left the Armouries shortly after 10.30 a.m., marched directly to the square, and took up their respective positions about the soldiers' memorial for the service.

F. L. Edworthy, veteran of the World War, was chairman; others on the platform being Rev. H. R. Williams, who offered prayer; Rev. A. L. Sisco, who read the lesson; the guest speaker for the day, Lieutenant-Colonel F. P. Lloyd, V.D., O.C. 4th Field Brigade R.C.A., of Cobourg; and Reeve W. E. Ball.

The program opened with the singing of "Nearer My God to Thee," the band, under Mr. W. Stuart of Peterborough, leading, and the speaker of the day was introduced by the chairman, after the worship service had been concluded. The guest officer gave a very fine address, holding attention closely, and particularly emphasizing the fine record made by the Canadian soldiers in France; the need of preparedness in view of the present world situation, and pointing out that "any city or town in Canada is subject to attack by air, from coast to coast"; the defunct nature of the League of Nations; the ruthless determination of three great European powers to rule by force; "to-day mechanization has taken the place of trained men to a large degree, and equipment that of fighting units; and the democracies of the world are trembling on the brink of unreadiness for a great conflict; our soldiers paid the price of pesce—are we willing to let it fall?"

Sound Last Post.

Following the sounding of The Last Post by W. Stuart, during which the guard of honor about the cenotaph, Corporal Robert Theobald, Sergeant Owen McCarthy, Corporal C. Foster, and Private C. Guthrie, stood with arms reversed, the two minutes' silence was observed, and afterward Lieutenant E. H. Barnes read the poem, "In Flanders' Fields", and the stirring strains of the Reveille rang out.

The wreath in memory of their comrades who fell in the World War was placed on the cenotaph, on behalf of the veterans by Jas. Peers, and that for the mothers who gave their sons for King and Country, by Mrs. L. M. Bonneville. The singing of "Blest Be The Tie That Binds," and the Benediction by Rev. A. L. Sisco, brought the service to a fitting close. The parade was then re-formed, and proceeded to the west end of King street, and back again to the Armouries for dismissal.

Friday Night Club

At the regular weekly meeting of the Friday night Supper Club last evening the club had the pleasure of hearing C. A. Salmonsen of the C.G.E. give an informal and enlightening talk on the much seeked after, but elusive Personality. Mr. Salmonsen gave several interesting illustrations during his talk, and stressed the fact that personality is the most important factor anyone could have at their command. Bill Herd introduced the speaker, who is one of the past chairmen of the Friday Night Club. The retiring officers o the club were moved a vote of thanks by the members for their splendid work, and the officers for the coming year were introduced. Max Comstock succeeds Grant Gillespie as vice-chairman, Cliff Vincent takes over the duties of secretary-treaslurer, and committee chairmen are Bill Herd, Jack Sullivan, Don Diplock, Harry Marsh, and Marlow Banks. Preceding the speaker Bob Maybee rendered two much appreciated numbers on the piano.

Will Give Lecture On Cannibal Life

Rev. Walter R. Tristram, who will present his lecture, "Life Amongst Congo Cannibals" on Monday night under the auspices of the X.L. Mission Circle of St. James' United Church, which is celebrating its 20th anniversary, comes well equipped with pictures and stories containing first-hand information of life on the Congo. Rev. Mr. Tristram spent many years in Africa and speaks from the viewpoint of the business man, as well as a minister and missionary. He was one of the first white men to greet Albert Schweitzer upon his arrival in the French Congo. Has studied the natives under all kinds of conditions, travelled much in dugout canoes and spent most of his time amongst one of the most primitive tribes in Africa. Has lectured throughout Canada on this thrilling subject, and comes highly recommended.

NOVEMBER MAY FLOWERS.

T. P. Lancaster of Havelock, a flower lover in season and out, reports that he picked a hepatica (Mayflower) in full bloom in his garden last Monday. His comment in the Standard was "These charming spring flowers form their buds every fall in readiness for the first warm spring weather, but in this case the flower was evidently fooled by the weather man."

Tweed Man Kills Bear With Axe As It Sinks Teeth In Brother's Leg

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Nov. 12.—While travelling through the woods in the vicinity of the Lake of Islands, township of Lake, Bob Thompson and his brother had a narrow escape from serious injury when attacked by an enraged bear, who noticed her two cubs being taken away by the two men.

It appears that the two men, noticed the cubs in the fork of a tree, and not seeing the old bear around decided to remove the young ones. They had travelled a short distance with their quarry, when a rustling was noticed in the leaves, and on looking around, the two men noticed the old bear charging towards them.

Thompson's brother dropped his cub first, and the old bear seeing that Bob Thompson still held onto one of the cubs, charged towards him, and had just begun to sink her teeth into his leg when the brother sunk an axe into the bear's head, killing her. The two men later recovered the two cubs and took them home. However, Bob Thompson still carries the old bruin's teeth marks, where it nearly took part of his leg.

Rev. P. J. Kelly Lauds British Premier

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 12.—". . . They looked for peace and no peace came. Ever since the Great War when so many of our lads gave their lives in a 'war to end war' there has continued to be war and contention, or what we might speak of in China as slaughter. It is the disgrace of mankind that this war keeps up," said Captain Rev. P. J. Kelly of Peterborough, addressing a well-filled hall here at the Memorial Service held by the Lakefield veterans and citizens in honor of Lakefield's war dead.

"Recently we have had an experience of sacrifice similar in its way to the sacrifice of our boys in the Great War. The sacrifice was made by a very venerable politician—or rather a statesman; a man advanced in years, from a family of high tradition.

"In order to procure peace and save lives, this man took his political career into his own hands, and opposing his own counsellors, humiliated himself by crossing the British Channel into Germany.

Hitler Called Cad.

"Neville Chamberlain went to hold a conversation with what he would consider a "cad"; and when an Englishman calls a man a cad that man is indeed low."

"We feel now," Rev. Kelly continued, "the humiliation of being sacrificed for peace. A lot of the boys here would prefer to shoulder their arms and fight.

"But the day will come when the act of a man like Chamberlain will be considered in its proper light.

Mr. Thomas Simpson, president of the Lakefield Branch of the Canadian Legion, was chairman.

On the last stroke of eleven o'clock the buglers sounded the Last Post, and the veterans and citizens assembled, arose to pay two minutes silent tribute to the Lakefield lads who gave their lives in the war. Following the two minutes silence Bugler T. R. Jewell sounded the Reveille.

The assembly then joined in singing the hymn: "O God Our Help in Ages Past, and in repeating The Lords Prayer in unison.

School Children March At Keene

(Examiner Correspondence.)

KEENE, Nov. 12. — A short remembrance service was held on the grounds at the Cenotaph. The school children marched to the monument and opened the service with two songs, "O Canada" and "Lord of Love." Rev. Ferguson then led in prayer, after which he gave a short address. The children sang "Dear Canada, Dear Land o' Mine," and then Mr. Jack Moore, clerk of the township, placed the wreath at the monument. When the wreath had been placed the two minutes' silence was observed, followed by a recitation, "In Flanders Fields," by Lois Wright. The service closed with the singing of "Faith of Our Fathers" and the National Anthem.

Explosions Break Two-Minute Silence In Belfast

Belfast, North Ireland, Nov. 11.

THUNDEROUS explosions of dynamite today broke the customary two minutes of silence at Belfast's Armistice Day ceremonies.

No one was injured and the damage was confined to wrecking of the walls in which the dynamite was set off. The explosions were reported to be a Republican protest against the Armistice Day celebration.

Chicken Thieves Enrage Tweed Farmers

TWEED, Nov. 12.—Police are investigating to-day a series of chicken thefts that are enraging farmers in this district.

Chicken thieves, who have been active with more or less regularity during the past few months in the township of Thurlow, struck again on Wednesday night, when seventeen pure-bred Plymouth Rocks and White Leghorns, the property of Joe Scotie were stolen.

Out of a flock of fifty-two fowl, many of which were being fattened for forthcoming fowl season, seventeen of the largest and best birds were stolen. The matter was reported to the Provincial Police, and despite a thorough check-up authorities failed to apprehend the thieves. Poultry thieving has become somewhat of an aggravated menace throughout the township with the result that irritated farmers have threatened to take the matter of the protection of their flocks of prize poultry into their own hands and have assured the police authorities they intend to employ drastic measures upon the night marauders found trespassing upon their property.

Mr. Scotie assured the authorities that no unnecessary disturbances were noticed while the poultry were being stolen from his chicken coup. It is believed that the loot was quickly removed from the premises in automobiles, but apparently the vehicle was left far enough away from the farmer's home to insure no disturbance being heard.

Four Are Charged With Drunkenness

Four charges of drunkenness formed the after Remembrance day docket before Magistrate O. A. Langley in police court this morning. One of them was a third offence charge against a local man and on his plea of guilty he was sentenced to three months imprisonment. He had been previously convicted in February and April.

Another man charged as a second offender pleaded not guilty to being drunk and his case was enlarged until Monday.

Two others who pleaded guilty to being drunk were fined $10 and costs. One of them told the court that he had come into town for the war veterans parade yesterday, had run across some of his old comrades of overseas days and had had too much to drink.

WARDEN'S LAST WORD.

In the city Friday for the Remembrance Day celebration, Warden McDonald was asked his opinion of the outcome of Mrs. John Deremo's checking out from the House of Refuge. "Well," he said, "I hope John can keep her, because I think she'd have a hard time getting back there again. Of course, they may never even get near that stage, and I certainly hope they don't."

Hunter Bags White Deer In Haliburton

A century old Indian legend that sets forth if a hunter ever shoots a white deer, he will never shoot another was exploded this week by Mel Harrison, local pump man who downed a white deer with a single shot on a Haliburton runway and within the hour shot another beautiful six point buck.

The deer is almost a perfect albino. The neck, legs, flanks and hind quarters are white and the little bit of brown on the deer's back is mottled with white. One of the hunters in the party of seven said the deer went past him so fast he thought it was a ghost but the freak animal was killed 100 yards further along the trail. The party brought back six deer. The party brought Elephant Lake in a heavily wooded section of Haliburton.

White Deer Sacred.

For years the Indians had a great fear of shooting or injuring a white deer, and a story has been handed down through each generation that the white deer was sacred, and singled out by the gods as a chosen animal whose presence meant good luck for the particular tribe which saw the animal. They also believed that to shoot or harm such an animal would call down the wrath of the gods. In later years the white man put his own interpretation on the legend and said any hunter who shot a white deer would not shoot another because that would be the turning point in his luck and he would not see any other deer.

But like many other Indian legends which have been upset as the years pass, this particular one went by the boards with the marksmanship of Harrison.

This morning the six deer are being cut up in the pump shop building on Simcoe street, and the white one was said by the hunters to be two years old and although it was a buck it had no horns.

Those in the party were Ab Reynolds, Smith township; Lloyd Whittington, North Monaghan; Delbert Smith, Cavan; Garnet Burns, Peterborough; Carl Burns, Otonabee; Percy Succee, Otonabee and Mel Harrison, Peterborough.

Succee, who has been hunting deer for the past quarter of a century, said to-day, the deer are very plentiful in the northern part of Peterborough county and in the Haliburton Highlands. He added that during all the years he has hunted he has never seen a white deer.

OLD FRIENDS MEET.

There was many a warm handclasp at the dinner of the Officers' Association last night, but one in particular was very interesting and came when Major Gregg, V.C., M.C. with Bar, the guest of honor and the man who had commanded the Canadian Guard of Honor at the unveiling of the Vimy Memorial, recognized Captain E. C. Nicholls, M.C., D.C.M., of this city who was a member of the Guard, and the two spent several minutes renewing acquaintances.

AMATEUR UNION CALLS LOCAL MAN TO HELM AS SHIP FOUNDERS

Percy Bond Is New Prexy Amateur Branch

(By BOBBY ROSENFELD)

"We in the Amateur Union have no quarrel or axe to grind with the newly formed Ontario Sports Federation." This was the keynote of the address delivered by Percy Bond of Peterborough, who recently succeeded A. W. Steel as president of the Central Ontario Branch of the A.A.U. of C.

And that, too, was the general feeling of the working officers of the branch as they gatherd informally about the festive board at the Royal York Hotel last night to officially recognize the new president and to pledge assistance to this square-jawed battler for a new deal for amateur sport in Ontario.

This Lift-Lock City man, who has often been referred to as a person who wears no man's feed bag and who learned how to govern in hockey ranks, has been called in to help put the badly decrepit Central Branch back on its feet again. Percy realizes that the local amateur ship is listing badly, but by honest effort on his part and that of his capable and hard-working officers he hopes to have the good ship out of the dockyards soon and afloat again.

Realizes Conditions

"I realized the condition of amateur sport in Ontario, and likewise the position of the branch, when I allowed myself to become its president," said Mr. Bond. "I accepted the position with an open mind, and all I ask is a square deal all around and honest criticism.

"I feel that the Dominion body when they proceeded to split the Ontario Branch into Central and Southwestern units, can hold themselves responsible for a great deal of the chaos now existing in our ranks.

"As as result of it, we have become badly dismembered. The head and the torso is still there, but our legs and arms have been cut off. We have been left with track and field, boxing and wrestling to govern.

"I have no quarrel with the Sports Federation because of this. We have no time to quarrel, we have plenty of our own knitting to attend to, to keep us busy."

An effort will be made to learn the grievances of the various major sport bodies who pulled away from the Amateur Union to join the Federation, with the possibility of weaning them back to the fold.

Ontario Leads

Charles E. Higginbottom, chairman of the Boxing and Wrestling Committee, in pointing out the important role the Ontario branch has always played in sport endeavor, proudly made mention of the fact that 95 per cent of all records applied for came from this province. Probably as a warning to the Sports Federation, he asked the meeting to remember that should the question of Empire Games for Toronto come up, the Central branch will be asked to deal with it, and should Toronto enter into the Olympic Games picture, it will again be this organization which will be taken into conference, and no other. What the Sports Federation officials had to offer was likewise somewhat of a puzzle to him, as he said.

"The Sports Federation was an association thought up by former officers of the Amateur Union, whose chief cry was that the union had nothing to offer, never did have and never will have. But," he said, "what have the present officers of the Federation to offer any more than when they were associated with the Amateur Union?"

The small bank account of about $150, did not dampen the enthusiasm of A. W. Steel, R. G. Fry, Fred Nobert, William Chadwick, George Beedham and Art Flack and each in turn welcomed Percy Bond to the president's chair and promised him whole-hearted support in his job of bringing the Central branch back on sound footing again.

Mr. Bond will represent the Central branch at the annual meeting of the A.A.U. of C. in Fort William, Nov. 17.

PERCY BOND

Mr. J. Percy Bond of Peterborough has been elected president of the Central Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada. He is a past president of the Ontario Hockey Association.

Grid Grouping May Be Changed

(Baz O'Meara in Montreal Star)

James McCaffrey of Ottawa is a very smooth young fellow. He is generally regarded by the sport cognoscenti (wise guys to you) as a very astute bird in sportive manoeuvres.

He is quiet, soft spoken, a neat but not gaudy dresser. A logical Irishman who listens well, forms his own opinions, has sufficient humor to carry him through any difficult situation.

So when he says that there is now a strong move on foot to form a Big Six and that Argos have extended their blessing on the new development, you are forced to listen a little.

Because "Jeems" is not one to talk at random at any time. He is a dealer in hard facts. There are times when he may box the compass a bit in the backing and filling way of sport executives but when he makes a statement like this you can take a ticket on it that there is plenty of substance to his remarks.

It would not surprise us at all if "Jeems", who is noted for his diplomatic bent was an outrider tilting a lance at unyielding windmills for an idea which is bound to come to pass sooner or later.

Mooted Before

It could have happened last summer had not Sarnia vacilliated a bit while Argos stormed over the effect that would follow on their box office.

They have had a change of heart. Balmy Beach are good producers this year, have not bothered Argos to any great extent. So the wise guys with the divining rods are out taking sounds again.

McCaffrey, who works equally well in the open as behind closed doors, and who is strange among sport executives in believing you should let the public know which way the wind is blowing is a strong advocate of the idea.

Of course he finds there is a stumbling block here. The Nats for instance are doing right well by themselves. They are not interested in unification with Cubs thus resembling their associates of the C.N.R. in relation to the C.P.R.

They are sitting quite pretty indeed. The Cubs are less fortunate but still determined to win back their place in the rugby sun. Plans for next year, sensational in their boldness, are already sizzling in the fertile minds of Len Peto and Art Cayford. They are pocketing their losses uncomplainingly, waiting for the turning of the tide.

It is suggested that Fred Porter and the Cubs should get together and form a strong team for the proposed union. To which Fred who already has a strong team may turn a very deaf ear. Of course if Sarnia and Beaches are inclined towards amalgamation it might bring a change of opinion. In the meantime recurrence of the rumor, and the authority given it by McCaffrey indicates that there is something very much in the wind at the moment.

Vines Wants One More Season In Tennis Goes South To Be Ready To Meet Budge

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—(AP).—Ellsworth Vines, gangling star of the tennis world, headed for the tropics today with his professional playing partner Fred Perry but before leaving New York Vines paused over a trunkfull of hot weather haberdashery to pay his respects to the tennis trade and announce a contemplated retirement.

Vines is through, but not just yet. He gives himself one more year of competitive tennis.

On their tropical tour Ellsworth and Perry will continue their professional rivalry that has already extended through 163 matches with the score 90 to 73—Vines leading.

They have used up all the whistle stops in North America and England and they left yesterday to try Curacao, Caracas, Barranquilla and other sporting centres in Central America.

"We're getting a guarantee big enough to make it worth while, but the mai nidea is to get into shape for Don Budge," Vines said. "It's hot down there, and we'll play seven matches, all three out of five sets.

"When I get through I ought to be ready for Don. I'd like to have one more big year and then when I'm up on top, sign off."

Vines already has a big enough bank roll to quit and he figures this season, his sixth as a professional, should be his last as a big earner at raquet swinging.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

AS A YOUNG INNOCENT LAD—this was some years ago—we were taught when in trouble to turn to the Bible. And are we ever in trouble now! Right up to our bushy eyebrows. Since laughing right out loud when Orfuns nosed out a win here several weeks ago over Sarnia Imps, we must now cower back of the 8-ball whilst sundry scribes split an infinitive with their chortles. Ah, woe and woe! So we turn to the Bible for inspiration—and no disrespect meant. We could speak of the "seven lean years" but there were 10 touchdowns, not seven. We could mention the strength oozing out of Sampson, but then none of the Orfuns got a bad haircut before the game. Nor Daniel in the lions' den, since Daniel got out with all his hide. We couldn't even say that Goliath's twin brother popped up to wreak vengeance on David, since that is not according to the Good Book. So we will consider Noah and his ark.

* * * * *

CAME THE DELUGE—and if a 59-0 score isn't a deluge we'll swap our pants for the three-corner kind! Yeah, came the deluge. And we have a good mind right here to go out to lunch for several hours. It seems the flood lasted some 40 days—and isn't that about as long as the Orfuns did? All that was not good flesh was wrecked in the flood, and the Orfuns' flesh was a little under-weight. And then—say, that long lunch session sounds better and better. Well, anyway, everything was swept away by that torrential (Sarnia) outburst. Except the ark, and Orfuns haven't a shipbuilder in the crowd, do ya know? It just rained touchdowns and touchdowns, or something.

* * * * *

Noah Knew His Onions

'TIS SAID, and on good authority, that old Noah was a smart coach. He looked ahead and built up a real defence against things. He imported plenty, pairs of husky halfbacks like elephants, fast-breaking ends like deer, forward passers like monkeys, receivers like pelicans, tacklers like wildcats, plungers like the rhinos, and so on. He didn't fool. So what could a club, like our Orfuns, do against that sort of master-minding? That's right, just what they did in the Tunnel Town yesterday. And until the Orfuns take a whisker from old Noah's beard and import to some extent as he did, they'll be swept away before the flood again. It's as plain as the face your nose is on!

* * * * *

WELL, Noah rode out the flood. He sent out a dove and got a leaf back—and Manager Walter Jackson, who is no dove, ought to collect a few green leafs out of the O.R.F.U. playoffs, on account of the pooled-gate idea. Well the flood subsided (and we hope the flood of newspaper wisecracks will, too) and everyone got his feet back on firm terra once more. Took some time, we'll admit, but they did; and maybe the Orfuns will get over that pasting ere too long. After all, Argos beat Montreal by 45 points a week ago. And Montreal weren't short of regulars, with others playing when they should have been in bed. And Noah knows that no one who hasn't prepared for the deluge for a long time can expect anything but a watery grave — and that's what the Orfuns got. Probably we were lucky to have missed the trip, as water never did agree with us....

* * * * *

They Didn't Curl Up

THE TALE of the affair is in another column today. It was written by Scribe Wilson of Sarnia and thus cannot be said to be colored by a Peterborough pen. He states the crowd of 2,800 fans was cheering the grit of the Orfuns before the finish—as the luckless locals kept banging away without a thought of quitting right to the bitter end. You've got to mitt 'em for their fighting hearts. And the writer doesn't neglect to point out the big part Orfuns' injuries and fumbles caused in their downfall. Some "18 points presented to Sarnia on flukes' 'indicates that Orfuns at full strength, though no doubt beaten, would have made it something of a scrap. When a team like Peterborough—light, inexperienced and shy on reserve strength—loses stars like Mike Loucks, Capt. Harry Marsh and Don Crowe (with others like Mick Magee and Herb Hendrie trying to play despite injuries) you can expect the Sarnia steamroller to do its darndest. It did.

* * * * *

AND SO our Orfuns dropped out of the picture like grandpaw's upper teeth. They dropped with a resounding thud as the Imps breezed by in a blur. A mighty squad, the Oilers, and they weren't sparing their previous conquerors any either—they rubbed it in just as hard as they could. No one can say Orfuns were given anything this season—they were walloped by as big a count every game as their rivals could roll up. And they were banged around plenty in every tilt. But they didn't squawk or ease up—they fought right back. They punched as many noses as they could, too, in line scrimmages and they defeated the Imperials once in an upset, something no other club could do this year. Not even Ottawa Rough Riders. So their initial season in senior ranks has been more successful than anyone expected.

* * * * *

Imps Crush The Cripples

STARS in a losing cause yesterday were Coach Bill Irwin, Johnny Shields, Curly Krug, Joe McNulty and Herb Hendrie. With the rest of the crippled-up crew gamely giving all they had, too. Crowe was injured in the first play of the game, so Orfuns lost their best backfielder, a safety-man who seldom fumbled kicks, and their booter. A huge loss—with Loucks and Marsh absentees. Bill Flack was knocked out near the finish, too. The Imps were in top form and clicked like Spanish castanets. They used Hi Living, when advised not to b ythe O.R.F.U. — he got a touchdown — so Sarnia may be thrown out at an executive meeting in Toronto tomorrow. Which would put the Beaches in against Montreal in playoffs. But we hope the classy Imps aren't ousted on this technicality.

PERCY BOND of this city has been elected president of the Central Ontario branch of the A.A.U. of C. Since the Old Boys split up this province with their short-sighted policies and predicted outlaw sports bodies would perish (but they've flourished ever since) the Central Ontario branch has been in the deuce of a mess. So the amateur gents have called Percy to the helm in the hope of steering the foundering ship into less troubled waters. If anyone can do anything about it, Mr. Bond is the man. An experienced fellow in athletic government, he is no yes-man nor is he bullheaded. But a battler all the time. Mr. Bond is past president of the O.H.A., an officer of the C.A.H.A. and a former executive member of the A.A.U. of C. It will be interesting to see what he can do for the Union in Ontario.

DESE, DEM AND DOSE: Oshawa writer wonders how come Peterborough let young Lloyd Stanley return to Owen Sound Greys, where he was junior defence star last year....Well, ya can't always line up a good job for a player when ya want one....Several fine puckists slipped through local hands this autumn for that reason.... Capt. Harry Marsh has played his last season with Orfuns; we're sorry to see him hang up his cleats....That team will need a flock of rebuilding before next year—if they aren't squeezed out by the Big Six project....Belleville and Trenton Fliers are finished in O.R.F.U. intermediate this season, with Cobourg and Kingston continuing.... Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well Mac, it looks like about the only thing to talk about again this week is 2 rugby losses which is par with the dope last week. Last Sat. the Montreal Nats belew into town and took a fall out our Orfuns by the score 23 to 1. I aint arguing that the better team lost but Honest Injun that score hardly represents the margin between the 2 teams for the Orphs got none of the breaks especially from the officials, having 2 touchdowns called back and getting none the best of it on a few other technicalties.

Had More Punch

As a matter of fact Mister Irwin's lads played their best game of the season from an offensive standpoint, even if they did only score 1 point. They showed more punch than in any other battle of the campaign and I think a lotta credit for that should go to the forgotten man of local football Mister Curly Krug who having worn out his new oiled silk panties sitting on the bench all season went to town in a big way when he got his first real chance Sat. Mister Krug played a heck of a lot of football out there, hitting the line hard and finding the openings smartly, running around the ends and doing a big proportion of the down field tackling. It was a fine performance by a lad which up to that engagement had little chance to show what he could do.

He's good Mister Ferraro

The fans and fanettes enjoyed that game Mac and they had lots of reason to. They was plenty of fast, open football and this Mister Johnny Ferraro with the Montrealers, a 240-pounder what moves around like a stream-lined engine and hits the line with about as much gentleness as a pile-driver.

Sarnia's Revenge

The word has just drifted in as this is being wrote that the boys has took a awful beating this afternoon at Sarnia. The final returns read something like an election bulletin from Ennismore where they only vote one way and while I aint got no details I got a idea the Orfuns has been paying up today for the jibes they handed out to the Sarnia team here a month ago and for all the ribbing the Imps had to take from their home town fans. I never could exactly figger just how we won that game anyway and now it is more of a mystery than ever.

Collegiate Bumped

Last Sat. Mac, the P. C. I. seniors run into a unexpected triming at Bowmanville which makes 2 losses in a row for the Confederation Square lads and that hasn't happened in a long time. My scouts reported that the Rubbertown youngsters played smart football all the way and was full value for their 24 to 5 victory but the P. C. I. lads has been working hard this week and appeared quite cocky about turning the tables on the Bowmanville bunch this Sat. However 19 points is a lot especially when you aint got them and if P. C. I. overcome that lead it will be 1 of the season's upsets.

The pro hockey doings aint got nobody excited yet except the Ranger fans. The Patrick outfit aint played a game yet and the supporters of the New Yorkers is beginning to worry, they mebbe perhaps was left outa the schedule.

Well they aint time for no more so

Sportfully Yours
A. Wise Cracker.

Sarnia Heads Resent Charge

SARNIA, Ont., Nov. 12.—(CP).—Sarnia football officials Friday branded ineligibility charges against Henry Living, snapback of the Imperials and a former St. Michael's college player, as "far fetched, sensational and far removed from the truth."

Roy Brush, president of the Imperial A. A., Gordon Cole, the secretary; Jackie Baker, manager of the football team; and Art Massucci, coach, were one in denying the charges emanating from Toronto yesterday.

Born in Canada

Living, they said was born in Canada and lived in this country until he was nine years old. When he came to Sarnia in the spring of 1937, he was known to have been born in Canada. Baker was in touch with Harold Bailey, O.R.F.U. secretary, at that time and said he was assured by the Toronto official that Living was eligible.

The player took part in spring practice in 1937, but an appendicitis operation put him on the shelf that summer and he returned to Holly, Mich., for a winter of recuperation. Living was born in Hafford, Sask., and baptized in the Roman Catholic church at Prince Albert, Sask. The family crossed into the United States at the Minnesota border when Henry was nine. No protest has been laid with the O.R.F.U. and Sarnia officials said they are doing nothing until they are informed officially about the case.

Plant Bladders Trap Skeeters

VANCOUVER, Nov. 12 (CP)—Mortality rate of British Columbia mosquitoes would be increased if someone could find a way of injecting life into the bladderwort, a plant which thrives on the insects' larvae but has to wait for them to come to it.

The bladderwort, growing in stagnant waters, traps and devours mosquito "wrigglers' 'in little bladders which are strung on underwater stems. At the entrance of each bladder is a fringe of hairs which trap any insect life swimming inside.

The dissolving body of the catch is taken up by absorbent cells in the plant and provides the rootless bladderwort with nutriment other plants obtain from the earth.

Detroit, Nov. 11 (CP).

A DATE with charming Jessica Dragonette proved no prize for Robert Joselyn, handsome Wayne University football star here. Joselyn won the right to a tea engagement with the singer by selling the most tickets for a concert sponsored by the university starring Miss Dragonette, but he said afterwards it was his most embarrassing social experience.

Joselyn, despite advice on technique from half the boys in the university, was unable to do more than grin and blush because of the crowd of newspapermen and photographers covering the date for their papers.

The singer devoted most of the time of the date to giving him advice on the diet he should follow as a football player until, just at the end, she found out he was studying medicine.

Canadien Folk Are Looking For Big Things

(By the Canadian Press.)

Perhaps too much home life has been responsible for the failure of Montreal Canadiens to start right out and do everything that was expected of them from the drop of the National Hockey League barrier.

Canadiens went through their preschedule training at Lachine, just next door to Montreal. They beagn the schedule at home by losing games to Chicago and Toronto.

This was the Habitant club that had been stocked with five players from the defunct Montreal Maroons and Louis Trudel from Chicago. The home folks were looking for big things—a championship, no less.

After the second defeat the Flying Frenchmen must have thought the walls of Montreal Forum were closing in on them and the joys of St. Catherine Street cooking were wearing off. A renewed acquaintance with the outside world, where the pressure of trying to please the crowd isn't so great, might be the antidote for what ails them.

Club Takes the Road.

So the club takes to the road now for a two-night trip that might mean the start of the long-expected. Canadiens take another crack at the Maple Leafs in Toronto to-night, then move on to Chicago to meet the Black Hawks, who lead the league with three straight wins, tomorrow night.

They present a lightning-fast cast of forwards, with Herbert Cain and Bob Gracie of the old Maroons joining Johnny Gagnon on one particularly potent line. Acquisition of Stew Evans and Cy Wentworth for the defence has made them so strong all around that their slow start can only be wondered at.

New York Rangers, getting away from the post 10 days after the season's opening, will get their baptism of fire at Detroit. The Blueshirts, after defeating New York Americans in six straight Western Canada exhibitions, came East and drilled at Windsor. They've watched the Red Wings in their two defeats and should have an idea of what is needed to beat them.

New York's Madison Square Garden gets its first taste of the new seven-team, single-group set-up tomorrow night when the Americans entertain Boston Bruins. Boston has won both its starts, while Americans have divided two games.

Lady Driver Is Suspended Dufferin Meet

TORONTO, Nov. 12—(CP).—Miss Vivian Clark, petite harness-racing driver from Norval Station, Halton county, will not be allowed to drive Todd Britton today in the final heat of the lady drivers' championship of the Dufferin Driving Club. Miss Clark was suspended indefinitely for alleged disobedience at the post prior to the running of the third heat yesterday.

The suspension of Miss Clark, one of the foremost lady drivers in Ontario and winner of two championship races for women at the same meet last year, is believed to be first instance of a lady driver drawing a ban since women's events were inaugurated two seasons ago.

Plenty of Scoring

Officials, in announcing the indefinite suspension, said it was due to Miss Clark's refusal to keep back in her position relative to the police horse. At least a dozen starts were attempted before the field got away in the third heat.

Miss E. Slack, Stouffville, driver of Troxie R., is the present leader in the championship test, with two victories to her credit. Winner of the event will be awarded $350 and a gold watch, presentations of which will be made today.

Todd Britton won the first heat, was left at the post in the second heat and finished fifth in the field of seven, and took third place in the third heat. Troxie R. placed third in the first heat and won the final two.

Worth The Cost

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., Nov. 12 (C.P.). — Sacrifices made by Canadians in the Great War were "worth the tremendous cost," Brig.-General A. E. Ross of Kingston, Ont., declared at an Armistice Day dinner here last night, but added, "but now, looking at events of the past year, we wonder perhaps if this is still the British Empire."

SARNIA IMPERIALS SMOTHER ORFUNS 59-0 IN THE FINAL GAME

Don Crowe Is Carried Off Field After First Play Of Game; Petes' Backfielders Are Missing

(Special To The Examiner)

SARNIA, Ont., Nov. 12.—Bill Irwin's Peterborough Orfuns, with all their big backfield guns missing, were smothered by a vengeful Sarnia Imperial twelve here on Friday afternoon 59-0 before a crowd of 2,800 fans, a turnout that can be attributed to the 3-2 upset the champions ran into in Peterborough plus advance reports of the brilliant color scheme of the Lift Lock city uniforms.

There was nothing to it Friday. Sarnia rode into the lead on the second play of the game and kept piling point on point until the crowd was cheering for a game gang from down east who were beaten to the king's last but didnt' know enough to quit. Bill Irwin's team was still hammering away looking for openings when the final whistle blew.

Even had the Petes been at full strength it is doubtful if they would have made much of a dent in Sarnia armor Friday. But they were far from that glad state. Mike Loucks carried his crocked knee to the top of the grand stand and assisted in the radio broadcast of the game and Captain Harry Marsh was doing his usual Friday work at home. There were other loose parts rattling but Don Crowe, their punter, was there but only for a few seconds. Crowe was wiped out of the picture with Tony Golab on the kick off and Peterborough started with their only booter and ace safety man definitely out of circulation with either a serious sprain or a fractured ankle. Golab went out at the same time with a badly battered foot and ankle. He will, however, be back next week if the O.R.F.U. leaves the Imperials in the series.

Both Lines Played

Masucci sent both his regulars and Ponies Friday in alternate periods The first string piled up a 12-0 lead in the first quarter. In the second the subs bettered that mark with a 17-0 count. The majors, refusing to be outdone by their practice punching bags, roared through for a 19-0 bag in the third session and in the last quarter, when the winners started to play horse by injecting Lenmen into the back division the youthful half of the squad racked up an 11-0 count.

Peterborough's luck was all bad. They carried Crowe off the field on the first play of the game and Flack was knocked unconscious on the last bit of action when he missed Alex Hayes on a tackle and catapulted into a fence along the side of the field.

Sarnia Was Lucky.

Tough breaks aided Sarnia materially in piling up its cricket score. The first touchdown was fluky and good fortune more than good playing presented them with two other majors. That spotted the winners with 18 points, a helping hand they did not need.

Against a team that could do nothing wrong the Peterborough defence buckled. Sarnia hit the visitors around the end, through the line and along the airways. Cold figures give some idea of the brutal way the champions used the Orfuns. The Imperial machine moved the sticks 20 times. Only once, when Curly Krug and Bill Irwin hit the middle of the Sarnia line in succession in the second quarter, did the Petes register an advance. Sarnia piled up a 556 yards from scrimmage during the afternoon. Peterborough's yardage totalled 97. Sarnia completed ten forwards in 21 tried. The Petes completed one in four.

Joe Woodcock packed the Sarnia attack with three touchdowns and Jim Shanks counted 2 touchdowns and converted a pair. Bummer Stirling, with one touchdown, one single point and five converts, was third high for the afternoon. One pointe better than Jim Butler who snagged two majors. Hi Living, the storm centre of the O.R.F.U. and Fat Parsons both scored touches. Alex Hayes contributed a lone point to the cause when he counted the last point of the game with an end run to convert Woodcock's final touch.

Put Up Stubborn Fight

Peterborough's band put stubborn but futile hurdles along the path. Curly Krug, Bill Irwin, and Shields were the standout performers with the losers. Joe McNulty, who took over the booting duties, did a more than average chore and Hendrie was groggy before the game was over hauling down Sarnia plunges.

For Sarnia it was a parade. There were no weak spots. When they fumbled a pass or punt they steered it into the hands of team mates as a despairing Peterborough crowd made heroic stabs at bounding balls that squirted past them.

Bummer Stirling put Sarnia in the lead on the second play after the kickoff when he slashed through from seven yards out for a touchdown which he converted. Woodcock scored Sarnia's second touchdown on a 12-yard run and Stirling converted that.

Shanks scored two touchdowns in the second quarter, one on a squeeze from the one-yard line and the other when he raced down the field after his own 45-yard punt and fell on it when Creighton fumbled behind his own line. Shanks converted the touch as well as the third one of the period when Jim Buller fell on Krug's fumble of a Shanks' punt.

Krug was rouged on Stirling's kickoff in the third quarter and Living pounced on L. Deadey's fumble behind the line for another touch for Stirling to convert. Stirling set the stage for the next touchdown when he whipped a 50-yard forward pass to Withers and Woodcock went over from the five-yard line. Stirling converted that one too. Two Stirling-to-Jim Butler forward passes brought the ball from centre field for a touchdown and Stirling added another extra point.

They put Fat Parsons on the half line and sent Jack Wickware in to punt for Sarnia in the last quarter. Parsons crashed over for a touch from the one-yard line. Woodcock scored the final touchdown of the game in the last minute when he took a long lateral from Alex Hayes and raced ten yards for the touch. Alex Hayes ran the ball over the line for the convert. The teams:

Boston Basher a Holdout

Still a holdout from N.H.L. ranks is Eddie Shore, ABOVE, dynamic defenceman with Boston Bruins. According to Art Ross, Bruin boss, it's up to Eddie to confer with League President Frank Calder, in whose hands the case rests. The Boston idol, says the reports, is asking $10,000 for the season, just $3,000 above the league salary limit.

Regina Juniors Win Western Final 3-1

WINNIPEG, Nov. 12.—(CP).— In the words of Paul Dojack, youthful coach of Regina Dales, Clarence (Toar) Springstein lacks only "the killer instinct" to make him a great football player. "He's too big hearted for his own good," Dojak will have you believe.

To-day, as Winnipeg Young Men's Hebrew Association reflected yesterday's 3-1 defeat at the hands of Dojack's Dales in a sudden death game for the western junior football title, they were glad 250-pound Toar was an amicable young fellow. If Toar had performed yesterday with a killer instinct it is doubtful if the seats would be still standing at Osborne staduim.

Toar backed up a stern Dale line beautifully. He was in on every play whether it was an end run or a plunge through centre. Toar showed some neat blocking to a band of fleet Dale backfielders, and on top of it all, he booted a short field goal that won the game for Regina.

It was Dales' second consecutive western championship as they beat Y.M.H.A. 34-6 a year ago at Regina although they dropped the national final to Hamilton Italo-Canadians.

The game, witnessed by 2,000 spectators in crisp, cold weather, generally was dull and involved a duel between the rival lines, a duel decided midway through the third quarter when Springstein split the uprights cleanly with a 10-yard field goal. Winnipeg scored first and held a 1-0 advantage after a gruelling first half.

Sarnia Defies O.R.F.U. Uses Hi Living

(By The Canadian Press)

The longest weekend of Eastern Canada's senior football closes tomorrow when the Ontario Union and Sarnia Imperials study the status of Sarnia Imperials and, more particularly, of Henry Living, the Imps' big snapback.

The weekend started yesterday when the Imperials defeated Peterborough 59-0 at Sarnia, using Living in the face of an O.R.F.U. order that he was to remain on the bench. The victory ordinarily would have put Imperials in league finals with Montreal Nationals.

But O.R.F.U. officials said they had been given information that Living was born in Holly, Mich., and did not enter Canada until April 12, 1938, later than the deadline for importing a player by almost a year. President John DeGruchy said that "Imperials will have to answer for it at a meeting Sunday."

Living and the Imperials claimed he was born in Saskatchewan and baptized at Prince Albert, Sask. He lived in Canada until he was nine and crossed the line into Minnesota, they declared, but never has taken out United States citizenship papers.

Chance for Playoff Place

While Sarnia's position remained in doubt, Toronto Balmy Beach still held a chance for a playoff place. The Beaches determined to consolidate it today by handing Nationals their first defeat of the season at Toronto. They automatically would slide into second place if Sarnia were ruled out tomorrow.

The meeting of McGill and University of Western Ontario today at London still remained the weekend's big playing feature. McGill could capture the intercollegiate championship by winning, closing the schedule undefeated, while a Western win would force a playoff between the two schools for the title.

Queen's University, which edged out University of Toronto for the championship last year, sought to salvage something from this unfortunate season in its game today with the Blues at Toronto. Queen's, hit this time by graduations and examination failures, and Toronto, riddled by injuries, have been splitting the title between them for six years. Western last won it in 1931 and McGill 10 years ago.

The Big Four games were only tuneups for next week's playoffs, involving Toronto's champion Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders. Argos' opponents today at Hamilton were the Tigers who have won twice this season, and Ottawa met the winless Cubs at Montreal.

Mexican Jumpers Outclass Rest

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (A.P.). — Largely because their 27-year-old lieutenant, Ramiro Palafox, and his great jumping horse Azteca, have won two successive individual titles, the Mexican army officers got into the final event of the United States Horse Show to-night as the main favorites to win the international military team championship.

Not in recent years have followers of horse shows seen such an exhibition as turned in by Lieut. Palafox and Azteca last night to add the individual jumping trophy to the special challenge cup they won on Thursday. Thursday night the Mexican combination completely outclassed the officers and picked mounts of six nations, but last night they emerged victorious only after two jump-offs and giving two perfect performances in three times over the eight-obstacle course.

The team championship is decided on the score of three officers, so the United States and Chile are also favored. Of the six officers that tied the first time around the course last night, two represented the United States. Chile failed to get a man in the jump-off, but the South Americans showed plenty of strength, earlier in the week, in winning the Bowman Challenge Trophy and the three-day low-score competition.

Lieutenant Douglas Cleland of Troy, Ont., representing Canada, gave a brilliant exhibition aboard Roxana and managed to get into the first jump-off in the individual military competition before he was eliminated.

Convicted of "sheep-worrying" a dog was tried and executed at Colchester, England.

Oshawa Generals Defeat Greys 4-1

OWEN SOUND, Nov. 12. — The 1938 edition of the Owen Sound Greys were paraded before the public for the first time last night, and, while defeated by the Oshawa Generals, Memorial Cup finalists of last year, by 4 to 1, gave a grand account of themselves, and the local fans were delighted at the showing they made. Teddy Graham has a fine bunch of youngsters in his squad. The Generals played a smart game, and their margin of victory was well earned. They were in better condition than the Greys and showed more finish.

Owen Sound scored the only goal of first period, Forest netting from close in on a pass from Groom. The second period saw the Generals showing their class by scoring three goals without a reply. Neath, in the Greys' net, saved time and again, and was really the star of the game. Kinsella got the first Oshawa goal on a pass from J. McAtee, and then Billy Taylor went through all alone for their second one, and he scored again just before the period ended on a pass from Kinsella. The Generals scored their final goal in the third period, with Smith doing the trick.

NEALS.—In loving remembrance of James Neals, who passed away November 13, 1936, also Jack Neals, who passed away September 9, 1935, and Olive Neals, who passed away August 24, 1933.

When evening shades are falling
And I sit in quiet alone,
To my heart there comes a longing:
If they only could come home.
It 's not the tears at the moment shed
That tell how beloved are the souls that have fled,
But tears through many a long night wept,
And loving remembrance fondly kept.

—Lovingly remembered by Wife, Mother and Family.

HANSON.—In affectionate remembrance of a dear wife and mother, Minerva Hanson, who died November 13, 1933.

The passing years can never change
Our thoughts of her so dear,
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps her near.

—Sadly missed by her Husband, Son-in-law and Daughter, 212 Prince Street.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mary Collins wish to thank the sisters and nurses of St. Joseph's Hospital; also friends and relatives for their acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy received during their recent bereavement.

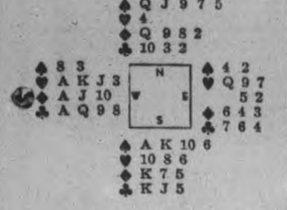
"The Authority on Authorities"

FAILURE TO REDOUBLE

YOU HAVE MADE an opening suit bid of one, the first opponent has doubled and your partner has jumped your suit to three. What does he mean? Is he showing a big hand? With most advanced players the answer is an emphatic no. If he had a big hand, he would redouble. The jump to three therefore manifests a fine trump fit, general weakness and hence a desire to shut out possibly powerful opponents by making a deliberate pre-emptive overbid.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

West doubled South's opening 1-Spade bid on this deal and North jumped to 3-Spades. East passed and South called 4-Spades, which West doubled.

West led the heart K and continued with the A, which South ruffed in dummy. Two rounds of trumps were drawn and a heart ruffed. Then the diamonds were tried. Declarer lost one heart, two diamonds and two clubs.

North criticized South severely for his bid of 4-Spades, pointing out that he would never have put in the bid had he expected South to proceed further with the bidding. His object was to prevent East from cutting in with a heart or possibly a club bid at a low level, which a bid of 2-Spades might have allowed. South argued that he had understood the jump to indicate strength, but the lesson he obtained from North will assure no repetition of such a mistake in future.

Armistice Day An Anniversary That's Well Worth Keeping Major Gregg, V.C., Tells Officers

Late in arriving after a busy day in Ottawa, Major M. F. Gregg, V.C., M.C. (bar), Sergeant at Arms in the House of Commons was preceded by a bagpiper as he entered the officers' mess of Prince of Wales Rangers last night.

As the distinguished guest of honor at a banquet held under auspices of the Officers' Association, made up of ex-service officers of all branches of the service, Major Gregg delivered a thoughtful Armistice message in which he sounded the note of optimism.

Declaring that Armistice was an anniversary well worth keeping, he asserted. "In our Canadian life I think the lesson of sacrifice and unselfishness is gradually working towards the building up of that united Canada we had during the war years and will have again."

Other Ottawa Guests.

On his visit to Peterborough the guest of honor was accompanied by Colonel C. B. Topp, D.S.O., M.C. (bar), 8th Infantry Brigde by whom he was recommended for the Victoria Cross over twenty years ago; Lieut.-Colonel W. G. Wurtell, M.C., V.D., O.C. Governor-General's Foot Guards, and Major R. B. Pritchard, E.D., staff captain 8th Infantry Brigade.

Highlights of Armistice anniversary observances in this city the function was attended by a large gathering of officers, and decorations and medals to be seen indicated most of the senior men had seen active service not only in France and Flanders and in other theatres of the Great War, but in campaigns that pre-dated the 1914 era.

Captain Matthews Presides.

Captain Gordon S. Matthews was in the chair as president of the Officers' Association, under whose auspices the dinner was held. On behalf of brother officers Lieut.-Colonel R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, M.C., in command of the Rangers, extended a warm welcome to those present, while Alderman Robert S. Cotton worthily represented Mayor James Hamilton who was unavoidably absent.

Other distinguished guests included Lieut.-Colonel R. S. McLaughlin, C.M.G., D.S.O., Bowmanville, former O.C. 2nd Battalion, whose immortal memory is perpetuated jointly by the Governor-General's Foot Guards and Prince of Wales Rangers; Lieut.-Colonel J. J. Duffus, M.P. and His Honor Judge Sheldon L. Smoke.

Militia Promotions.

Semi-official announcement concerning pending changes in the command of the Rangers was made by Colonel Topp when introducing Major Gregg. He expressed himself as being delighted, "that Colonel Dewart is to take command of the 9th Infantry Brigade and to say how fortunate you are in having such an officer as Lieut.-Colonel Hicks-Lyne to succeed him in command of the Rangers."

Colonel Topp related circumstances under which he recommended Major Gregg (then a young subaltern on active service in France) for the highest award of valour in the services and declared: "From my own personal knowledge I know of no work done by any individual in the Great War that was more unbelievable or courageous than that which merited Major Gregg's V.C."

Pays High Tribute.

He asserted that Major Gregg had carried with him in a civil capacity all the outstanding qualities that made him such a good soldier. "There is no man I think who has higher principles or who has done more in public service. He has been active on behalf of others ever since he came home from the War," Colonel Topp stated.

Modestly acknowledging the rousing ovation that greeted him and stating the introduction had been "overwhelming," Major Gregg spoke quite informally of the war years and the period that has followed the signing of the Armistice.

He said he was optimistic enough to believe the majority of Canadians were striving to bring about a united and peaceful Canada and were making great efforts to show the same spirit of unity and sacrifice as they did in the fateful days of the war.

Keep Torch Aflame.

He thought in spite of signs here and there to the contrary, that the spirit of sacrifice had survived the past twenty years, but he urged a constant vigilance must be maintained to see "that the torch that was handed down to us does not flicker and die out."

Major Gregg told of a touching true incident concerning a junior officer of his unit overseas. It concerned Steve Allen who had started out of the line on a long anticipated leave, and who returned to rejoin his company on hearing they were ordered into action. He paid the supreme sacrifice on the afternoon of the following day.

"It was not foolhardiness that prompted such sacrifice. It was just that Steve Allen knew we were going to be in a tight spot and he wanted to be with the men he loved and who loved him," Major Gregg said with simple directness.

Things That Count.

"After all," he asked, "doesn't that bring it down to the finer, simple things that count also in peace."

He said he had told the story as a means of making a comparison between Allen's sacrifice and the type of sacrifice that the members of the Non-Permanent Active Militia had been making in carrying on with little or no encouragement. Their's was the same spirit, he insisted.

Major Gregg encouraged the junior officers present to go forward in the good work they were doing, and said he was interested to learn of the fine co-operation between Militia and industry that was evident in Peterborough.

"Absent Comrades."

Rev. Canon J. Dougles Paterson proposed "Absent Comrades," and referring to the two minutes of silence that honored the toast, remarked, "May I suggest that this silence will be a valuable silence if we remember not only the awful price we have paid and are paying for the last war, but the price we may yet be called on to pay if peace is not maintained."

Following the silent honoring of the toast, which was ended with the sounding of the Last Post, Lieut.-Colonel M. H. Park, V.D., sang "Absence," and Jack Smith piped a lament.

Entertainment was provided by Colonel Park and Captain D. G. H. Melton, while the band of the Rangers played a selection of wartime ditties and other musical numbers during dinner.

Literary Society.

The first meeting of the Literary Society was held this week. It took the form of a mock trial and was staged by Forms IIIB, IVA, and VA.

It appeared that the scheming Miss Matilda Flutterbridges (Iris Fitzgerald), claimed her treasured lap dog, Fido, had died as a result of insanity caused by the singing of Miss Jesica Wagonette (Gwen Bond). The case was brought before Judge Paxton Clarke. The court crier (Allan Moldaver) opened the session and Court Clerk Bill Henry empanelled the jury. The first witness was the complainant, Miss Flutterbridges. She was represented by her attorney, Mike Rogow, and cross-examined by the defending attorney, Warren Gamble. Rogow's other witnesses included Joe Julip (Dave Rogers), and Doc Johnston (Ralph Johnston).

The case was heard, and the jury, under Foreman Lloyd Loft, went into conference and emerged with the verdict of guilty. Just as Judge Clarke was about to pronounce sentence he was interrupted by the noisy entrance of a neighbor of Miss Flutterbridges (Phil Turner), who brought in her lap dog. It proved to be a huge Newfoundland.

On seeing her game was up Miss Flutterbridges painted and Judge Clarke dismissed the case.

The play was under the direction of Miss D. E. F. Brisbin, Mr. Hale, and Mrs. C. S. Browne.

window and climb onto a telephone pole. From there I shouted for help and someone turned in the alarm."

Rescued From Roof

Once rescued, LeClerc joined others in arousing guests in the next-door Commercial Hotel and then ran to the roof where they were able to rescue a number of guests from Albert's Hotel.

Both buildings were three storeys high and stood out over the smaller buildings of the block which housed Regaudie garage, Basteins grocery, Solomon's drygoods, Ansala's clothing and a couple of residences.

Nearly 100 guests were believed to have been in Alberta's Hotel at the time of the fire which brought three fire brigades, from Rouyn, Noranda and Noranda Mines. Firemen responded to the call within a couple of minutes but so firmly had the fire taken a hold that it was impossible to stem the progress of the flames, eating rapidly through the frame and brick veneer structures.

From all over town people poured into the streets, many of them in the neighborhood of the fire carrying furniture and other household goods. Some, police said, piled their goods into cars and drove them to safety.

Lack of electric power added to the confusion, and for a time all telephone communications were disrupted by burned cables.

Control of the flames was gained about two hours after the outbreak but the fire still was burning fiercely within its restricted area.

HAVELOCK
Remembrance Service Led By Kiltie Band

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Nov. 12.—Remembrance Day services were observed yesterday morning by Havelock and the surrounding district, in memory of those from Havelock and Belmont who died for their country in the Great War. Assembling at the C.P.R. station square at 10.15 a.m., the parade moved off to the Memorial Gate at the village park, led by the Havelock Kiltie Band, and including the war veterans, reeve and council, representatives of the organizations, and the school children.

Service at the Memorial Gate was conducted by Reeve Ernest Seeney, wreaths being placed by the following representatives: Canadian veterans, Wm. Buchanan; Imperial veterans, R. W. Goheen; Province of Ontario, Mrs. W. Avery; L.O.B.A., Mrs. W. Varty; Eastern Star, Mrs. C. Price; Dorcas Rebekahs, Mrs. D. O. Post, Belmont Women's Institute, Mrs. George Smith; Havelock Women's Institute, Mrs. J. Armstrong; I.O.F., Mrs. Wm. Rice; Oddfellows, E. J. Leeson; school, W. D. Duncan; Albion Club, H. Ferguson; village of Havelock, E. Chiles; L.O.L., J. Seabrocke.

Rev. Andrew McLaughlin then led in prayer and at eleven o'clock two minutes' silence was observed.. The Last Post and Reveille were sounded by Trumpeter Grey Kemp, and following prayer by Rev. D. K. Perrie, of Hastings, the parade re-formed and marched to the town hall for the remainder of the program.

Service at the hall opened with prayer by Rev. D. K. Perrie and a hymn "O Lord Our Help in Ages Past," with Mrs. R. Campney as pianist.

Lancaster Speaks

Chairman T. P. Lancaster in his remarks expressed gratification upon seeing Havelock's citizens so loyally and reverently observing Remembrance Day. On too many occasions it is observed in a holiday sense rather tha nthat of a "holy day."

Rev. Canon J. D. Paterson of All Saints Anglican church, Peterborough, who was to have been guest speaker for the service was unexpectedly called to Toronto and was unable to be present. Rev. Andrew McLauchlin, of the Havelock United Church, however, called upon at the last moment, responded nobly and gave a most inspiring and interesting address.

The service concluded with the hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers," prayer by Rev. McLauchlin and "God Save the King."

Work Of Legion Is Praised By Major Gregg

"I believe the young fellows of today have just as good stuff as the fellows we knew twenty years ago. Give them something hard to overcome and an objective that demands respect and they will rally around," declared Major Milton F. Gregg, V.C., sergeant-at-arms of the House of Commons in addressing nearly 200 ex-servicemen at the Remembrance Day dinner of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion in the Legion Hall Friday night. It was one of the most successful functions of its kind in the history of the Legion and the veterans who more than taxed the available accommodation had a great night as they renewed old acquaintances, recalled the memorable days of the Great War and sang the old songs of the 1914-1918 era.

George Gimblett, president of the branch was chairman and ran off the program in excellent fashion, assisted by Dan Douglas and Frank Fell who with the Legion Minstrels led the community singing and contributed a number of enjoyable choruses, including "Marching on to Victory" the song featured at the last corps re-union.

At the head table were Capt. the Rev. George S. Easton, padre of the Legion, Mel Morrow, president of the Red Patch Club, J. J. Duffus, M.P., W. F. Huycke, K.C., and former Mayor George A. Macdonald, while other visitors who dropped in to listen to the address of Major Gregg were Gordon S. Matthews, Doug Loomis and R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne.

The catering for the dinner was admirably looked after by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Legion under the presidency of Mrs. Houghton.

Fallen Comrades Remembered

The toast to the King was loyally honored and then followed an impressive tribute to the memory of fallen comrades, introduced through a touching poem composed and read by Dan Douglas. The lights were then lowered and the veterans stood with bowed heads for two minutes of silence broken only by the note of the Last Post.

When Major Gregg arrived he was greeted by the enthusiastic singing of "Hail, Hail the Gang's All Here" followed by rounds of cheers. The distinguished visitor was introduced by J. J. Duffus, M. P., who declared that it was an honor and a privilege to have the duty of presenting Major Gregg.

"It is a very easy duty," he added, "for a man holding the decoration that is worn by Major Gregg needs no introduction to a gathering of this kind."

The guest of honor who is Dominion treasurer of the Canadian Legion began his address by describing the celebration of Remembrance Day at Ottawa Friday morning, declaring that the demonstration at the nation's capital had been the most successful held in the past twenty years. There were 30,000 people there he said and 1,200 ex-servicemen were on parade.

Legion's Fine Work

Referring to the work of the Legion Major Gregg said that he firmly believed that year in and year out that organization had in a quiet dignified fashion been able to carry out a service to Canada based on the same thing that marked the men who were being honored on Remembrance Day—sacrifice.

"We have not said that we are the only people who are loyal to Canada," declared the speaker "or that we are the only people who know how things should be done. Rather the Legion has been ready to co-operate with others and ready to do anything designed to make this country more near the kind of country the chaps who went west thought it was going to be."

It was a tribute to the buoyancy of human nature, the speaker asserted, that veterans had not been fed up to the teeth and disillusioned by what had happened since the Great War. As they looked back and thought of all the physical things they had been told then that must be overcome, they realized how small they really seemed now in the face of events that had transpired since.

"Were it not for one thing," said Major Gregg "Remembrance Day of 1938 would merely mean the anniversary of the day which marked the end of killing. It means more than that because you and I saw exemplified the personification of sacrifice and forgetting one's self. We should endeavor to transfer that thing to the action of peace."

After a tribute to the work that was being accomplished by the Dominion Command of the Legion and informing the gathering that membership in the organization was definitely on the increase the speaker remarked that the events of the last year had made ex-servicemen think a lot.

Seek New Service

"I would like to express the hope" he said, "that the various branches of the Legion as they go forward into another year will find it possible to work out, secondary to that thing which is primary, a new and stronger field of service within Canada and for this country."

Looking after comrades who were in need and caring for the dependents of those who made the supreme sacrifice would always be the first objective of the Legion—and 79 per cent of those who were helped by the Legion were not members of the organization—but after discharging that responsibility no opportunity should be overlooked of co-operating in a non-partisan fashion in every effort to make this a better country.

Major Gregg made a plea for Legion help for the militia of Canada. He was often startled, he said, by a realization of the fact that the youth of today looked upon returned men with a degree of respect and awe that made him shiver with the sense of his responsibility. It devoloved upon the veterans, he maintained, as he paid tribute to the qualities of the modern youth, to act as guides, philosophers and friends to the young men of this age.

Veteran Honored

Then followed an impressive ceremony when Harry Coit, one of the oldest members of the Legion and one who has done a great amount of work in relief, hospital visitation and in other ways for war veterans since the first returned soldiers' club was organized here was called to the front and Major Gregg pinned upon his breast the Honorary Officers' Medal of the Legion, awarded for meritorious service as a member of the local branch. The presentation was greeted with enthusiastic cheering.

The musical portion of the program included several songs by Walter Farr, one of which "When the Great Red Dawn is Shining," he devoted to the memory of the late James Abraham whose favorite song he said it was. During the community singing the veterans sang "Tipperary," "Pack Up Your Troubles," "Mademoiselle from Armentieres," "Keep the Home Fires Burning" and other old favorites of the war years and after the set program had been completed they were going strong on such military classics as "Old Soldiers Never Die."

The dinner was admirably planned and in point of enjoyment and attendance was a most appropriate feature of the city's celebration of the 20th anniversary of the end of the war.

Quintuplets Graduate To Semi-Solids Now As They Recover Nicely From Operation

CALLANDER, Ont., Nov. 12 (CP)—The Dionne quintuplets today gleefully ate semi-solid foods and custards, the first allowed them since their tonsils and adenoids were removed two days ago. Since then they have been given only orange juice and water.

Doctors decided to keep the five petite mademoiselles in bed for a week after the operation, just to forestall any chances of complications. The quints decided yesterday they wanted to get up, however. Today they still wanted to, and said so vigorously.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, the physician who ushered them into the world one chilly night 4½ years ago, says they are "just fine" and have not complained of soreness or other after-effects since immediately after the operation.

Dr. D .E. S. Wishart, Toronto surgeon who performed the operation, returned there last night. He stayed in Callander an extra day just in case anything happened. The operations were performed to eliminate the possibility of the tonsils infecting the children's systems.

Heroes As Great Live Now— Rev. R. C. Tait

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 12.—Characterizing the armistice of 1918 as only a temporary cessation of hostilities, Rev. R. C. Tait of Chesterville addressed one of the largest gatherings to attend a Remembrance Day service in any year since the war.

Beginning with an impressive parade headed by Salvation Army and Bugle Bands, Campbellford's Armistice Day services began shortly after 10.30 with the placing of wreaths on the Cenotaph by the Mayor and civic officials who marched with Legion members, school children, Boy Scouts and Girl Guides. The sounding of the Last Post by members of the bugle band heralded two minutes silence at the conclusion of which the band began playing that beautiful hymn "O God Our Help in Ages Past." Rev. T. H. Floyd gave the Scripture reading from Revelations 21: 1-7 "and I saw a new heaven and a new earth." Prayers were offered by Rev. Dr. C. S. Reddick and Rev. B. Simpson Black and as the Reveille was sounded the flags which flew at half staff during the service were raised.

In the evening members of the Legion held their annual banquet in the Parish Hall, Rear street. Captain George Free offered the toast to "Fallen Comrades" followed by two minutes' silence as nearly one hundred and fifty veterans bowed their heads. George Lucy gave a vocal solo after which the toast to the Dominion and provincial command was proposed by Messrs. George Ironside and N. Alex McColl. Replying to the toast to the visitors offered by President Charles Holmes Rev. R. C. Tait told veterans that heroism still lived as it had in 1914 when soldiers from the rank and file poured forth in their devotion to duty. Mr. H. N. Carr, M.L.A., referred in his address to the recent European crisis and the noble efforts of Neville Chamberlain in averting war. Others who replied to the toast to the visitors were Mayor F. F. Long, Reeve Robert Innes of Seymour Township, Mr. A. Rapport and Aeverend T. H. Floyd. Last on the program was the toast to Overseas Nurses by Mr. H. Matheson of Havelock and very ably replied to by Mrs. R. C. Ramsden of town. Others assisting on the program were Mr. Jack Storke, vocal solo and Mr. Roy Ramsden and Miss Florence Bertrand who each did a tap dance.

Masquerade Party Held By Social Club

YOUNG'S POINT, Nov. 12.—The Community Social Club of St. Aidan's church on Monday evening entertained their members and friends to a masquerade party, when a very happy evening was spent by all.

A warm welcome was given Mr. and Mrs. Bland, Miss Elsie Chatten, Mr. V. Graham and their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Moodie, who had journeyed from Toronto to be present at the party.

Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Robt. Johnston of Peterborough, as a Colonial Lady, Mrs. Rex Wilson as a Witch, Mr. Arthur Morris as a Squaw and Mr. Fred Young as a Flapper of 1938.

Dare Not Neglect Defences.

Governor - General Tweedsmuir mentioned defences in his speech at the Canadian Legion dinner in Ottawa. He warned that a country dare not neglect its defence or it may be taken at a disadvantage. He added it was possible to overdo the matter of defence and "thereby increase the very risk it was intended to prevent."

Democracies of the world must again "be ready and prepared against the wanton aggression of swashbuckling international gangsters," if they are "to preserve the ideals for which our immortal dead fought and died," Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Canada's defence minister told guests at a Canadian club armistice luncheon in New York.

"If our young comrades died to make the world 'safe for democracy' we of the aftermath have witnessed a terrible collapse," said Mr. Mackenzie. "We must not desert the cause that was theirs—or ideals for which they died."

Most Vital Problem

Ontario's attorney general, Gordon Conant, speaking at the Legion dinner in Ottawa, said that defending Canada against "enemies from without" is the Dominion's most vital problem and "we realize we must build up our defences against the menace which fronts us."

Prime Minister Mackenzie King in his message "The Voices of Silence," said "reason, patience and goodwill must be made to prevail in the council of nations, They are positive, not passive, forces. In this very year we have witnessed the power of all three. It remains for us to ensure their triumph throughout the years to come."

Eight thousand children of two nations watched 200 of their number exchange flags in a solemn ceremony around the international arch near Blaine, Wash. The joint armistice service marked more than 100 years of peace since hostile troops crossed the Canadian-United States boundary.

Manion Urges Electors To Use Franchise

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 12—(CP)—Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, national Conservative leader, labelled as untrue in an address last night any statement that he had, when Minister of Railways, approved amalgamation of the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Rilway.

Dr. Manion, addressing a reception at which he and Mrs. Manion were honored, criticized campaign statements of J. S. Woodsworth, leader of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, and other C.C.F. speakers in London and Galt. Dr. Manion is opposed in next Monday's federal by-election in London riding by E. O. Hall, C. C.F. candidate, on whose behalf Mr. Woodsworth spoke Tuesday night. He spoke last night at Galt.

"Go out and cast your ballot," Dr. Manion said. "The importance of that cannot be over-estimated. The extreme left fellows, the Communists, are supporting my opponent always. Therefore it is your duty to go out and vote. Let every sane man and woman cast a ballot."

Attacking the C.C.F. campaign, he said "Supporters of my opponent have said and they have plastered it up at his campaign headquarters, that I opposed the old age pensions.

Malicious Falsehood

"That is a falsehood of the most malicious sort. I hope they have the decency to take it down tomorrow."

He denied that he had approved railway amalgamation, declaring: "I have opposed amalgamation ever since it was proposed in 1934, and I am the only public man who has done so since last election.

"Another example of international misstatement by the C.C.F. leader is that he said I was injecting religion into this campaign by claiming the C.C.F. was out to overthrow religions. Of course, this whole statement is untrue. I made no reference to the C.C.F. on any religious ground, but I did say that the only country comparable to Canada in size or importance which is today socialistic is Russia, where they have wiped out freedoms of all kinds, where they have done away with the ownership of private property—where jails and exiles take a prominent part in their lives—and religion has been stamped out."

14 Lose Lives In Rouyn Tragedies

Car Goes Off Wharf Drowning Six, Hotel Fire Kills 7

ROUYN, Que., Nov. 14 —(CP)— Fourteen persons were counted dead from accidents today after the blackest week-end in the history of this young Northern Quebec mining district. A hotel fire took a toll of seven lives; six more perished when a car plunged into a river, and a gold-miner died at his work underground.

Five were known dead in the Saturday morning fire that wiped out Albert's hotel here and hope was abandoned for two others still missing after a two day search of the debris of the $300,000 structure. Only ten miles from this spot of tragedy, the six drowning victims met death when their automobile shot over the end of a ferry wharf and into the Kinojevis river.

In the 14th fatality, George Kradinovick, a 30-year-old Yugoslavian miner, was crushed beneath a mass of falling "muck" in the Noranda gold mine just outside this town.

A full block of downtown Rouyn was destroyed by the Albert's hotel fire, breaking out before dawn as the 50-odd guests slept. The adjoining commercial hotel, a garage and two stores were demolished in heat so intense that buildings were melted across the width of a street.

Trapped In Rooms.

The seven victims, most of them trapped in their bedrooms, all were guests of the Albert Hotel. Those in the Commercial Hotel, roused before the flames had time to make much progress through the neighboring building, escaped unharmed.

A. J. H. Stevenson, a Toronto salesman, made a daring bid for life, but lost. Climbing out the window of his room as the flames bit their way in, he hung from a metal sign outside the building. Finally, horribly burned, he was brought down and managed to walk to hospital in Noranda. But he died there yesterday.

The other four identified dead were W. H. Brownell, postoffice inspector from North Bay; Etienne Pelland, town engineer of Rouyn; I. Legare, provincial mines department employee of Val D'Or, Que., and Aime Letourneau of Lasarre, Que. Only part of the charred bodies of some of them were found in the debris of the hotel.

Romauld Coutu, cousin of Albert Coutu, the hotel owner, was missing with Jack Clenachan, Rouyn jeweller. But there was no hope they had escaped, and search was on today for their bodies.

Nazi Jew Baiting Angers Britons

LONDON, Nov. 14—(AP). — From the pulpit and speaker's platform Britons voiced indignation on Sunday at the treatment of Jews in Germany.

Churchmen and individuals high in official life joined in expressing condemnation while several thousand Communists demonstrated in Hyde Park. The demonstrators later left a protest at the German Embassy.

The Bishop of Salisbury, Dr. E. N Lovett, speaking in Weymouth, said "These outbreaks against the Jews in Germany—fierce, cruel—with fire and thunder and violence—are done on a miserable pretext....

"I take them as an indication of the way the mentality of mankind is sagging back into barbarism."

The Archdeacon of London, Venerable E. N. Sharpe, at St. Paul's Cathedral, offered special prayers for Jews and all refugees. He asked for "God's forgiveness for the injustice and brutality of man."

"Every nation to its shame breeds barbarians," the Bishop of Birmingham, Dr. E. W. Barnes, said at the same cathedral.

Believed Suicide, Ruled Dead, Wife Rewed Broker Found 14 Years After By Bad Cheque

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14 (AP)—A pseudo Enoch Arden, Davis Rowland Macdonald, 45, declared a legal suicide in February, 1935, but just brought back to life through his fingerprints, waited in the county jail to see what federal officials would do about his case.

The former Pittsburgh broker disappeared Feb. 14, 1924, leaving a note with his hat and coat on the bank of the Allegheny River telling his wife, Clara, he had "failed in business and as a man."

She divorced him and married William Brown. In 1935 a federal jury declared Macdonald legally dead and she collected on three insurance policies, including a war risk policy for $10,000 issued on the former Great War aviation lieutenant.

"I was a coward," John Hanson, local Federal Bureau of Investigation Chief, quoted him as explaining why he had not carried out his suicide plans.

"I went to New Orleans and started life all over again. I remarried late in 1924 and got into the office equipment business. We came to California 11 years ago."

Macdonald, under the name of John Edgard Davis, pleaded guilty to issuing a bad cheque for $141 in Pasadena and was awaiting sentence on Nov. 21 when his fingerprints, sent to Washington, disclosed his identity.

Hunter Opens Fire On Three Bears But Misses All

THE NEXT TIME Ellis Armstrong and Don Wood go hunting Wood will be the one to flush the game, because Armstrong is not sold on his partner's ability as a marksman after last week's happenings.

The two were deer hunting on the edge of a large swamp in the northern part of the county, when Armstrong volunteered to barge through the swamp and flush out any game that might be hidden in it. He sent a large black bear and her two cubs scampering out within 200 feet of Don who was on the alert. He immediately opened fire, not at one but at the trio. When the smoke of the barrage had cleared away, the bears had disappeared and evidently Don had failed to bring home the bear steaks. Armstrong remarked that if Don had been satisfied to concentrate on one, they might have enjoyed a meal, but the truth of the matter is, the gun he had was a borrowed one and was found to be shooting to the left, accounting for the poor shooting.

Less Than 10 p.c. London Vote Cast At Noon

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 14.—(CP)— First four hours of polling saw less than 10 per cent of the possible vote cast in the London Federal by-election, it was indicated in a tour of polling places at noon to-day. Candidates are Conservative Leader Manion and E. O. Hall, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation. Weather was blustry.

Light In Waterloo.

GALT, Ont., Nov. 14.—(CP). — Cold wintery weather with snow flurries to-day ushered in election day in South Waterloo. Workers for K. K. Homuth, Conservative, John Mitchell, C.C.F. and Mayor R. K. Serviss, Liberal, were out early with fleets of autos to bring out the votes. The vote this morning was very light, campaigners finding women refusing to leave their wash to exercise their franchise. However, greater activity is expected at the polls this afternoon.

The general prediction is that the vote will be a light one.

Madrid To Permit R.C. Church Services

By Edward Legris
(Copyright, 1938, The Havas News Agency.)

MADRID, Nov. 14 (C.P.-Havas).—Roman Catholic church services, banned here since early in the Civil War, will be resumed with official sanction within the month, this correspondent was told on Sunday by one of the priests who are holding regular Mass in private homes.

The first church to be thrown open to public worship in shell-torn Madrid will probably be that of San Antonio de Los Alemanes, the priest Father Elocado Lobo, predicted.

Father Lobo made this statement after celebrating Mass which I attended in a private home before an improvised altar. About 20 persons attended. The scene was one of simple fervor. The congregation, most of them with relatives at the front, was visibly moved when he said: "Each day in our prayers we ask that peace return to Spain." At the end of the ceremony, the priest baptized a child and named her after "Maria of the Miracles."

Five Protestant churches are open every Sunday in Madrid for religious services, Pastors Juan Fliedner of the Spanish Evangelical Church and Juan Cabrera of the Spanish Reformed Church, told this correspondent.

Extra Week Holiday

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 14.—(CP) —School funds are running so low in this city adjacent to Detroit that school children will get a two-week holiday at Christmas time, so the school term will extend into the warmer months, and cut heating costs. City officials said if the school is unable to keep open during its nine-month term, it will receive no state aid next year.

Italian Pact In Force Wednesday

Ends Chances Of War With Britain In Mediterranean

LONDON, Nov. 14 (CP-Havas)—The long-delayed Anglo-Italian accord will become effective Wednesday, Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today.

The accord was concluded April 16 with an exchange of notes between the Earl of Perth, British ambassador at Rome, and Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano but it was agreed it would not become effective until a "settlement" had been realized in respect to Spain.

Following the withdrawal of 10,000 Italian Legionnaires from the ranks of General Franco's insurgent army, the prime minister informed the House he felt the threat of war over the Spanish situation was ended and that he intended to make the accord effective. His stand was approved by the House when it was put to a vote Nov. 2.

The prime minister's statement today was made in a written reply to a question.

It was understood that Lord Perth and Count Ciano would sign a declaration in Rome placing the accord in effect and thereafter Lord Perth would present new credentials to the King of Italy recognizing him also as emperor of Ethiopia.

The agreement was designed to compose British and Italian differences in Africa and the Mediterranean. In effect, Great Britain and Italy promised to take no military measures against each other and to engage in no propaganda against each other.

Believe Carol Seeking Loan

LONDON, Nov. 14 (AP)—King Carol of Rumania is expected to seek British financial aid to develop his country's natural resources when he comes here tomorrow on a three-day visit of state.

Political circles predicted the visit might have a vital influence on the future of Rumania, endeavoring to assure her political and economic independence in the face of the German drive for economic dominance and political influence in the Balkans.

Financiers here predicted assistance to Rumania probably would take the form of a credit to be used for the purchase of British machinery and manufactured goods. (Rumania thus far has kept clear of strong links with Germany who, German sources have said, would like to obtain control of Rumania's rich oil deposits).

King Carol with his son, Crown Prince Michael, left Bucharest by special train last night. The Duke of Kent is to meet them at Boulogne, France, where they are to board the British destroyer Sikh shortly before noon tomorrow and be escorted across the English channel by British destroyers and Royal Air Force seaplanes.

The park would cost about $10,000 and be financed with a works progress administration grant. Work on the park may start next spring.

Ontario Mishaps Take 6 Lives Over Weekend

TORONTO, Nov. 14. — (CP). — Violent deaths in Ontario during the week-end totalled six, three resulting from highway accidents. There was a suicide at Hamilton, in which district four of the six died.

Roy Gordon, 18-year-old Toronto youth, was killed Saturday near Hamilton and five others were injured, one critically, when the automobile in which they were riding collided head-on with another machine driven by H. S. Brunton of Toronto.

Patrick Jordon, 18, of Toronto, suffered a fractured pelvis, while Mrs. Brunton, only passenger in her husband's car, was removed to hospital at Toronto with concussion and other injuries.

At Delhi, 34-year-old John Batari was killed when his bicycle was struck last night by an automobile driven by Edward Heyndrisk of LaSalette district, who said headlights of approaching cars blinded him.

Gets Head Caught

Joseph Fleming, 45-year-old Troy, Ont., farm hand, was killed yesterday in the yards of the Hamilton Pure Milk Dairies when his head was caught between an iron support and the rear compartment of a motor truck. Fleming looked out his side of the cab as the truck was about to pass a heavy vertical girder and his head was trapped. He almost was decapitated.

Sam Semsei, 53, shot himself Saturday night after police and citizens chased him through downtown Hamilton streets after he had thrown a brick through a window. Sensei threatened Constable Reginald Hudson with a revolver, then placed the gun against his own forehead and pulled the trigger.

John Todd, 52-year-old father of 12 children, was killed Saturday at Brantford when crushed under a heavy piece of flywheel at the plant of Hawley Products, Limited. Noted Highland Chief, Friend Of Kings Mackintosh, Dies

Inverness, Scotland, Nov. 14. (CP-Havas)

THE MACKINTOSH of Mackintosh—Alfred Donald Mackintosh—noted Highland chieftain and friend of the late King George V and King Edward VII, died today at Moy Hall, his residence here. He was 87.

Mackintosh of Mackintosh played a prominent role in Highland affairs for more than 50 years. He retired a few years ago from the chairmanship of Inverness County Council. A Freeman of the Burgh of Inverness, Mackintosh was a colonel of the Third Cameron Highlanders during the Great War and performed valuable military service at Invergordon.

He is survived by his widow, a daughter of the late Edward Priest Richards of Plas Newydd, Glamorganshire. Their only son died in Canada.

Known as "Mac-an-troi ich" in Gaelic, Mackintosh was chief of the Clan Chattan, an old Highland confederation dating back to 1609 and embracing eight separate clans.

Winter's First Blizzard Blankets Prairies With Blanket Of Snow

Believed Only Child Woman Finds Family Of 8 Alive

Hart, Mich., Nov. 14 (CP)

MRS. VIVIAN DILLINGHAM who had believed herself an only child all her life, found out this week-end she has two sisters, two brothers, a half-sister and two half-brothers, and most important of all a mother who is living.

She was adopted as an infant and not told about her family. An older sister wrote recently to the Children's Home from which Mrs. Dillingham was adopted and got her sister's address.

Until this week-end, Mrs. Dillingham thought her foster-parents, now both dead, were her parents. They plan a family reunion soon.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 14 (CP).—Snow settled over Western Canada during the weekend as winter blustered across the plains.

A blizzard piled five inches of snow in Southern Manitoba. An eastbound trans-Canada Airlines plane which left Winnipeg early on Sunday encountered a heavy snowstorm east of the city and was forced to turn back. The run was cancelled but the westbound T.C.A. plane left on schedule last night.

Southern Saskatchewan was blizzard-swept but little snow fell and highway traffic was not affected.

Southern Alberta, hit by a severe snowstorm last Thursday, was warmed by a chinook wind last night and temperatures climbed at Calgary from a minimum of 12 degrees during the day to 36. Road crews rested after battling giant drifts along the main highways following Thursday's storm which took the life of a transient believed named Macdonald from Viceroy, Sask. Norman Alm of Viceroy was in hospital with frozen feet and hands.

Intermitten snow over the week-end at Edmonton totalled 1.9 inches. Edmonton and Battleford, Sask., were the coldest spots reporting in the Canadian provinces with minimum temperatures of zero.

The snow stretched to the Pacific coast, a light blanket of wet snow covering Vancouver Saturday but melting yesterday with warm winds and rain.

Snow In Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Nov. 14 (CP)—Ottawa's first snowfall of the season descended on the city today. The snow was light and melted as it hit the pavement. The temperature was 36 above.

Toronto Shivers.

TORONTO, Nov. 14 (CP).—Chill westerly winds blew over Toronto today and crowds hurrying to work feared recent weeks of mild weather were over and that winter definitely had arrived. If any doubt remained, it was dispelled by a flurry of snow in the morning. The flakes melted as they fell.

The lowest temperature was recorded at White River, while in North Bay the reading was 28 degrees. Toronto reported 31 degrees, London 28, and Ottawa 30. Snow fell in noticeable quantity in Northern Ontario.

Officials of the Dominion Meteorological Bureau predicted increasingly cold weather for the next several days in Ontario and the rest of Canada.

Hepburn Sees Canada's Moral Cut To U.K. Level If Jobs Not Found

TORONTO, Nov. 14 (CP)—Unless concrete action is taken soon to put Canada's unemployed back to work, Canada will deteriorate to the United Kingdom's position "where morale has been shattered by the dole," Premier Mitchell Hepburn declared Saturday night.

"This is a time for national thought and national action," the premier told the Twentieth Century Liberal Association. "When morale goes, that is irreparable. We may be able to pay our debts but we can't retrieve morale once it is completely shattered."

Ontario's premier took occasion, also, to charge the federal government with lack of co-operation in the Long Lac diversion, in the Niagara Falls bridge question. He charged the "bonusing of wheat was a political act to satisfy the West."

"To those federal members who are here tonight I want to say this: Have some regard for our problems here in Ontario," he said. "When we ask for co-operation from the Dominion, we want action."

He noted there had been some talk of secession in Saskatchewan but the same time recalled Ontario had "stood by without protest" when the Dominion government assumed all relief costs in Saskatchewan, which meant Ontario paid half the cost there. In addition $137,000,000 had been loaned to the West, most to Saskatchewan, which, he said, would never be repaid.

Over Expansion Victims

"And yet in the next breath they talk of secession. They threaten to go into the dairy industry and ruin our dairy business unless they are given a fixed price for their wheat," he said. While he sympathized, the West were victims of over-expansion.

He claimed the railway problem "had not been tackled," although it was costing the country $50,000,000 a year, because of politics.

"We are going backward," he asserted. "And that is the fate of every nation which refuses to meet its problems in a courageous and truly national manner."

"I am opposed to dictatorships but they have put their people to work. We in the democracies haven't. The morale of the people in Great Britain is shattered. I had confirmation of this today from a friend who spoke of the difficulties being experienced in starting an armament campaign. He told me the people of Great Britain had been living too long on the dole."

He added that "we might as well recognize that there is nothing to this belief of the British Empire's invincibility at the present time and there won't be unless this problem is solved."

Great Britain Resents Attacks By Nazi Press And Protests To Berlin

Damages To Britishers In Anti-Jew Raids Also Included In Note; Horror Is Stressed By Chamberlain

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Nov. 14 (CP Cable).—The British Government has protested to Germany over Nazi press attacks on British political leaders following the assassination of a German official in Paris, Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today.

(Der Angriff, organ of Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels, said on Friday "it is no coincidence" that the 17-year-old Polish-German Jew who killed Ernst Von Rath in Paris "took the same line" as Winston Churchill, Anthony Eden and Alfred Duff-Cooper, who have criticized the British Government's attitude toward Germany).

A second protest was made over damages done British subjects in the recent anti-Jewish riots. The British Government reserved the right to claim property damages.

During supplementary questions on the anti-Jewish riots, George Lansbury, Labor, asked if the British Government would consult the high commissioners of the Dominions on the possibility of finding territory for Jewish refugees.

The Prime Minister said the government was considering every means of rehabilitating German refugees but the Dominions could not be bound to any scheme without their consent.

No Defence of Killing

Mr. Chamberlain said no one in Britain would seek to defend the Paris killing, "but there will be deep and widespread sympathy here for those who are being made to suffer so severely for it."

He added the charge d'affaires had been instructed to make a strong protest "to the German government in regard to recent press articles in the German press associating former British ministers and members of this House with the recent murder of Herr Von Rath."

Asked whether the "deep feeling of horror" aroused in Britain by the anti-Jewish campaign would be made known to the German government, Mr. Chamberlain said:

"I think there are many means by which that is being made known. I do not think there is any doubt about it."

The Archbishop of Canterbury, addressing a church assembly called for prayer for those suffering under what he described as "the renewed and fierce persecution of Jews in Germany."

At the same assembly the Bishop of London, Rt. Rev. Arthur Winnington-Ingram, declared: "We clearly cannot in justice to our people be flooded by Jews or the unemployed of any other nation."

Mr. Chamberlain declined to answer without notice a question by A. V. Alexander, Labor, as to whether he was considering having consultations with President Roosevelt with a view to joint representations to Germany on the anti-Jewish campaign.

Yangtse Closing Protests Ignored By Japs

TOKYO, Nov. 14 — (AP). — The Japanese Government to-day rejected the protests of Great Britain, the United States and France against the closing of the Yangtse River to all but Japanese vessels.

In separate notes handed to ambassadors of the three powers, the government declared military operations still made navigation of the Yangtse dangerous and for that reason foreign vessels must be barred.

A Foreign Office statement summarizing the notes said:

"Although Japan has no intention of deliberately hampering commerce and navigation of third powers in the Yangtse, the Japanese Government holds the view that the time has not yet arrived to warrant a general opening."

The summary listed five reasons for Japan's refusal to open the river:—

1. The blockade at Kiangyin, 80 miles up the Yangtse from Shanghai, is still in effect.
2. Large-scale military operations are in progress in the Hankow area.
3. Continued presence of Chinese guerillas along the river.
4. Continued mining of the river by the Chinese.
5. Some time will be required before the river is cleared of mines.

Japan still has not answered the United States note of October 6 demanding continuation of the "open door" in China.

Meanwhile, Japan and Germany were preparing to conclude a cultural pact designed to bring the peoples of the two nations closer together.

Training Begins For 50 Specials

TORONTO, Nov. 14.—(CP).— The Ontario Government is determined to maintain law and order in the province "under all circumstances and at all costs," Hon. G. D. Conant, Attorney-General, told 50 constables of the provincial police reserve force undergoing two weeks' special training, here to-day.

"We are determined to maintain law and order in this province," said Mr. Conant. "We will not stand for mob rule or rowdyism or anything subversive of good order. It is in pursuance of this policy that you men have been called up."

The 50 men were drawn from the reserve force recruited in 1937 at the time of the Oshawa strike and which now numbers 240 men. They were called up for special training last week. The two-week training period, opened to-day, may be extended if necessary.

The chief purpose in calling up the squad of reserves was to prepare for any emergency "if we are so unfortunate as to have disturbances threatening law and order," said the Attorney-General.

Janetville Marsh Nearly Gets Toronto Hunter As Rabbit Leads Him Into Quicksand

JANETVILLE, Ont., Nov. 14 (CP)—Leon Badet, elderly broker, was recovering at his Toronto home today from the rigors of hours wandering through treacherous quicksand marsh. Badet stumbled, in a state of near collapse, to a district farmhouse early Sunday.

With his wife and Miss Alma Nicholls of Vancouver, Badet visited James Thornton of Janetville, 10 miles south of Lindsay, for the week-end. At dusk Saturday he borrowed his host's shotgun and entered a nearby marsh until past midnight, the broker fought sucking quicksand which once pulled him down to his waist.

"I saw a rabbit go into the marsh and suddenly I realized I was lost. I had no light, not even a match.

"All I had was the gun which I used as a sounder to try to find solid ground to walk on. I fell over rough ground and legs and body are a mass of bruises. I walked through shallow mud and wet sand and I walked into quicksand beds."

Badet told how he walked into one bed of quicksand in which he sank until he was waist deep. He was barely able to pull himself free and lie exhausted on firm ground.

The broker said that after walking in the dark for hours he finally reached solid ground, the boundary road of the township. He reached the farm home of Ivan Wright in a state of near-collapse. After being given hot food, Badet was taken to Thornton's home and he returned to Toronto Sunday.

While the lost man struggled to reach safety, a posse of 30 men searched until nearly midnight for him. Various marshes in the district were combed. Beacon lights were burned at various points but Badet failed to see them.

King To Dock At Quebec Next May 15

Tour Coast To Coast See U.S. Capital Sail Home June 10

OTTAWA, Nov. 14 (C.P.). — The King and Queen plan to spend 26 days on North American soil during their late-spring visit to Canada and the United States.

It was announced simultaneously in Ottawa and London last night that Their Majesties will land at Quebec City next May 15 from the battle cruiser Repulse, which will bring the Royal couple from England.

After a coast-to-coast tour of the Dominion and a trip to Washington, they will return to Canada and sail for home from Halifax, approximately June 10.

Entire responsibility for formulation of plans for the Royal reception in Canada rests with the Federal Government and efforts will be made to complete arrangements by the New Year. They will be submitted to the King and Queen for approval. Prime Minister Mackenzie King is head of the Cabinet Committee of senior members which will have the most authority.

Drafting Plans Now.

A second committee of deputy ministers is also working on plans for the tour and will provide detailed arrangements for the Cabinet Committee. Provincial committees also will be formed.

Interest in preparations for the regal visit transcends other Government business in the Capital at present. Several ministers took part in the three Federal by-elections which will be decided to-day and will return to Ottawa in time for to-morrow's regular weekly Cabinet meeting. Other ministers have been travelling in Canada and the United States, but the full Cabinet likely will return here shortly to prepare for the next parliamentary session expected to open early in January.

The pending Canada - United States Trade Treaty revision is expected to be signed shortly and Parliament will likely consider it following the initial debate on the Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

With a Federal election seen as a possibility for next fall, a heavy legislative program is anticipated, and if work is not completed by the time Their Majesties arrive Parliament will adjourn to meet after they have sailed for home.

Several appointments to vacancies in the Diplomatic Corps, the Senate, and the Judiciary might be made before the New Year.

Young Hunter Comes Close To Kissing Deer Waiting For

PERCY KILLINGBECK, foreman in the Refrigerator Cabinet Department of the Canadian General Electric Company came closer perhaps to rubbing noses with a wild deer than any hunter who ever went into the north country.

He went deer hunting last week with Adam Sands, Cecil Gertley and Harry Sickler all from the C.G.E. Killingbeck was stationed on a runway in a section that was heavily wooded with cedar. He backed into a cedar bush, and had only been there a short time when he heard a deer coming along the runway. He decided to stick out his head for a quick glimpse to determine where the animal would pass. Just as he stepped forward the deer sauntered by, and Killingbeck found himself looking straight into the astonished face of a good sized deer less than three feet away from him. The deer recovered from the surprise first, and was out of sight in a few bounds. Gertley was over the next in line on the path and blazed away twice but missed the deer both times.

Legion Honors Rev. T. H. Floyd

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 14. — Members of the Canadian Legion attended in a body the farewell service in the Anglican Church here on Sunday night when Rev. T. H. Floyd who leaves during the coming week for Peterborough addressed the congregation. In his opening remarks to the Legion, Mr. Floyd thanked them for what he regarded as a personal tribute to him when they attended this, his last, service in Campbellford. Referring to the time he had spent at Camp Barriefield during the summer he declared that the fine physique gained by these boys during a ten-day stay indicated that a two-month period of training would be of still greater advantage to many of these boys who had nothing but an idle life to which to return.

Closing in a more personal strain, the speaker claimed he had learned to appreciate and sympathize with those who must struggle to earn their daily bread. "We have come through difficult times since I came here in 1931, and I appeal to you all to lend your earnest support to the church in the future."

Remand Is Granted In Fraud Charge

Arrested in Toronto and brought back to Peterborough Sunday night by Officers Wm. Piercey and W. A. Clark, James Ross Woff, of Toronto, was charged before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning with having obtained a cheque for $300 and a credit note of $350 from Ivan T. Lillico by false pretences.

Woff, who was represented by R. J. Chandler, did not plead and after electing to be tried by the magistrate asked for a remand. The case was enlarged until Thursday, with no application being made for bail.

It was alleged in the charge that Woof obtained the cheque and credit note by representing to Lillico that he was the owner of an automobile free of encumbrances.

Grain Shipments May Set Record

DETROIT, Nov. 14.—(CP.)—Grain shipments on the Great Lakes this month probably will set a record for November grain shipments, boat owners said here to-day.

Stocks in elevators at Fort William, Port Arthur, Duluth and South Chicago are large, chartering of vessel space is brisk, and plenty of tonnage is available to move the grain to lower lake ports.

Vessels at the Canadian lakehead loaded 6,259,752 bushels of wheat in the week ended Nov. 5, but receipts exceeded shipments by 5,500,000 bushels. At the end of the week the Canadian elevators held 41,162,654 bushels of wheat, compared with only 19,667,807 bushels at the same time last year.

Coal shipments have been heavy with recent cold weather and shipping men hope the movement will reach a seasonal total of 34,000,000 tons.

Several of the major United States lake fleets plan to tie up their boats by the end of the week, but several Canadian and some independent owners plan to continue activities as long as weather conditions permit.

Hens Autograph Eggs

SYDNEY, N.S.W. (CP).—Hens will autograph their eggs if the Health Department here approves the "henometer," a device whose inventor claims will prevent preserved eggs being sold as fresh. The "henometer" is strapped behind each hen and, as the eggs are laid, they pass through it. Each egg is automatically stamped with the breed of the hen and the date.

MORE ABOUT— Nazi Jew Baiting

tary Secretary to the Admiralty, said in a speech at Norwich: "I sincerely hope the German nation realizes appeasement with this country is not helped forward by exhibitions of unrestrained mob law and the persecution of people whose only fault is their race."

Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist organization, speaking at a political session of the Zionist General Council, said:

"The stream of Jewish blood now flowing in darkened Europe can never wash away our hopes and our determination to rebuild our home in our ancient homeland, Palestine.

"We Jews are not crushed yet," he cried defiantly in speaking of Jewish persecution in Central Europe.

A letter registering the protest of every political and religious organization at Oxford University against Nazi treatment of Jews was sent to Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, who is Chancellor of the University.

At Oldham, Clement Attlee, Labor Leader in the House of Commons, called the treatment of German Jews "an appalling outrage of barbarism."

Turning to the colonial problem, he said: "I do not believe in handing over groups of people from one imperial power to another as if they were counters in some bargain."

WINNIPEG, Nov. 14 — (CP). — Sale of a few loads of Canadian wheat to exporters and virtually no selling late to-day brought Winnipeg wheat futures back from ¾-cent losses. The close was ⅝ to ¼ cent higher, November 59⅝, December 59b, May 61½ to ⅝, and July 62⅜b.

The trade lapsed into one of the dullest sessions in weeks shortly after the weak opening. Listlessness followed Saturdays large export sales estimated at 1,000,000 bushels.

Late firmness at Liverpool and reports of rains which would delay Argentine wheat harvesting were factors in the strong undertone at the close.

Cash wheat demand was slow. Mills purchased small amount of top grades at unchanged spreads. Coarse grain futures held steady.

We Noticed

. . . At a fall tea, someone wearing a charming frock of soft, black, dull-finished crepe. The bodice and long sleeves were entirely accordion pleated, and the gored skirt fitted to a high bodice line. Rhinestone hooks and eyes provided attractive fastenings on the front. A tiny black tricorne sprouting Mercury wings of pink feathers provided the final touch of chic and sophistication.

The simple little black dress, that maid-of-all work, achieves sensationalism this year by being so simple, so short, so schoolgirlish, that its alliance with the make-up, the piquante coiffure, the new wit and sophistication of its wearer is another provocative contradiction in trims, and in terms of the new mode.

Y.W.C.A. Holds Week of Prayer

Each year the third week of November stands out on the Young Women's Christian Association program all over the world. This week, through services and programs, has already been a strong link in binding together the associations in the fifty-six countries where the Y.W.C.A. is established. It has been known through all the years as the Week of Prayer and World Fellowship, and the special thought emphasized this year is "The Christian Community in the Modern World."

A feature of this week in the Peterborough Y.W.C.A. will be a service on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock when Rev. G. S. Easton will be the speaker. Rev. Easton always has a most helpful and constructive message. In view of the world questions of today every opportunity to study and understand other nations and to strengthen the bonds of Christian friendship is a small share each one can assume.

The program for Wednesday has been arranged by the educational committee of the Y.W.C.A. A cordial invitation is extended to all friends of the Y.W.C.A. to meet Wednesday evening with members of the Board of Directors, committee, staff and girls in this evening of World Fellowship.

The Fact That 11,000,000 Women Are Holding Down Jobs Is An Economic Asset Rather Than a Liability, For They Keep The Home Fires Burning.

MR. JOHN D. BIGGERS, who was the director of the Federal Unemployment Census, has informed the President that the main reason why men can't get work is because women have glutted the labor market. He says that there are 11,000,000 women in the United States engaged in gainful pursuits outside of their homes and that automatically deprives that many men of work that they might, could, would or should have.

So what? So nothing. For what are you going to do about it? Neither Mr. Biggers nor any one else has any remedy to suggest for this social headache. Not even Uncle Sam has money enough to support 11,000,000 daughters in idleness, buy them pink silk lingerie and pay for their beauty treatments. You can't corral 11,000,000 women, who have committed no offense except in being born of the wrong sex, into a nice lethal chamber and put them painlessly to death. You can't expect 11,000,000 women to be altruistic enough to give up their jobs just because men would like to have them.

Besides which, women feel that they are just as much human beings as men are. That they are just as much citizens of their country as are men. That they have just as good a right to life, liberty and the pursuit of a pay envelope as have men. And, if we wait for a logical answer to these arguments, there is no immediate prospect of women being driven out of industry.

Of course, those who most loudly object to a woman taking what they call a man's place in the labor market always represent her as a selfish fiend who starves some poor lad to gratify her mania for luxuries. She is never supposed to work because she needs the money she earns. On the contrary, it is assumed that she is a child of wealth with an indulgent and generous father or husband who gives her all that any reasonable person could ask, but she goes into business because she wants a few more pearls, or can't be happy without Paris confections. She never has any responsibility. Never any one dependent upon her. No wolf ever howls at her door.

Now I've been a working woman for many, many years. I've known intimately thousands of other working women and among this vast number of toilers I have not known a hundred women who have forsaken lives of ease and comfort to punch time clocks, stand behind counters, pound typewriters or bend over looms or sewing machines just for the fun of it.

On the contrary, virtually every one of them have been driven by necessity into the business world. They had to make their own bread and butter, or starve. They had to stand on their own feet, or else be crushing burdens on some one else. And I cannot think now of any work woman I have ever known who did not have some one else clinging to her skirts. There were always old parents, or little brothers and sisters who had to be educated and given a start in life, or a sick husband or a no-account one, or children of their own.

Whatever else you may say about women, you must admit that they are more loyal to family ties than men are. It is the girls in the family who stand by and help far oftener than the boys. It wouldn't help Father and Mother as much for John to have a job as it does for Mary to have one.

It is often said that the working woman is responsible for the decline in matrimony, and that the reason men don't marry is because they have no jobs. The girls have taken them away from them. There is no truth in this assertion, because every young woman who is self-supporting has set her brothers free to marry. This they could not do in the old days when a youth with a lot of sisters dependent upon him could not even think of taking a wife until he had passed his family burden on to some other man.

As a matter of fact the working girl promotes marriage instead of hinders it. She helps make the living. That enables many a poor couple to marry while they are still young and ardent and the bloom is on their romance, instead of having to wait until they are old, tired and disillusioned and their wedding cake has grown so stale with long waiting that it is dust and ashes in their mouths.

But there is small use in blaming the working woman for the lack of employment of men. She feels that she has just as much right to go out and get what she wants as a man has. Who can gainsay her? Moreover, she is here to stay. And it does look as if the only answer to the problem is for men to find avenues of employment that are not suitable for women, even in shorts.

Bride Wears Heirloom Locket

A charming late autumn wedding took place at two-thirty on Saturday afternoon when (Jennie) Mary Jane Butcher, daughter of Mrs. Florence butcher and the late J. W. Butcher, became the bride of Donald Robert Hayes of Millbrook, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Hayes of Omemee. Rev. E. W. Rowland officiated. Ferns, palms, and arches of pink and white decorated the church, and organ music throughout the ceremony was played by Mrs. E. W. Rowland. During the signing of the register Miss Loretta McDougall sang "Calm is the Night."

The bride was given away by her eldest brother, Mr. Watson Butcher, and was gowned in white faille taffeta with bouffant skirt and short bolero jacket trimmed with white velvet ruching. Her only jewellery was a gold locket fifty years old, given to her by her great-aunt, and she carried a lace handkerchief which her great-aunt had carried at her wedding fifty years before. Her cloud-like veil of white tulle fell softly to her waist, and was caught with orange blossoms. She carried Bettertime roses, and wore long white lace mittens and sandals of white kid.

Miss Gertie Butcher attended her sister, wearing cerise faille taffeta made with a very full, graceful skirt. Little buttons trimmed the back of the dress from the waist to the sweetheart neckline, from which long velvet ribbons fell softly. Her hat was a large rose of cerise velvet, and she wore long lace mittens and carried a bouquet of Sunbeam roses.

Mr. Robert Hayes, brother of the groom was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Dougal Hayes, brother of the groom, and Mr. Bernard Butcher of Springville, brother of the bride.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, 85 Wolsley Street, where the wedding dinner was served at a table decorated in pink and white and centered with a three-tiered wdding cak.

For travelling the bride chose a frock of Royal blue with deep cream lace collar and cuffs, black boucle coat with black fox fur, and black accessories. After a trip to Toronto and points west, the young couple will live in Millbrook.

Caledonian Club Plans Programs

The Caledonian Club met in the Paragon Hall on Friday evening for the regular meeting which took the form of a business session and card party. R. Veitch, president, was chairman. As the club only meets for two meetings a month a program was drawn up for the rest of the year. November 25 a concert and dance will be held. The December meetings will include a Christmas tree for the children and a Hogmanay dance on New Year's eve. Mrs. K. Shadgett and Mrs. O. Sugden were appointed as general conveners of the Christmas entertainment, with Mrs. J. Wyllie looking after the program. Members are urged to come to the next business meeting on December 2, as important items have to be dealt with. After the business meeting closed an enjoyable card party and a service of refreshments were enjoyed. R. Veitch presented prizes to the lucky winners at cards as follows: Ladies' first, Mrs. R. French, second Mrs. J. Pooley; gentlemen's first, Mr. A. Milne, second Mrs. R. Hendry (playing as a gentleman). Consolation prizes went to Mrs. Jordan and Mrs. W. Petrie.

Most stains, including fly marks, will come off if rubbed with a duster just moistened with ammonia? A dry duster will then give a brilliant polish.

When glass gets broken you should be particularly careful about picking up the pieces? A damp cloth will take them up, or on linoleum or wood a cloth well moistened with floor polish. Use an old cloth that can be immediately destroyed.

Quilting Is Ancient Art

Reading a short time ago of a Lindsay woman who had made fifty quilts in one year, we were amazed at such an achievement. In this age of hurry, when the calming, satisfying peace brought by the needlework accomplished by our grandmothers is practically forgotten, it is gratifying indeed to learn that an old art is still being carried on by a faithful few.

Quilting was brought to America in the early Colonial days by the English and the Dutch. The French, although their settlements were equally exposed to the rigors of the new world climate, preferred the furs that their hunters and trappers obtained.

Long before the exodus to the new world, quilting appeared in the annals of history, It brought warmth to both kings and peasants in the middle ages, and we may read that Katherine Howard, afterward one of the many wives of Henry VIII, received twenty-three quilts of "sarsanet closely quilted" from the royal wardrobe in 1540.

We find that quilting was one of the few forms of self-expression that the wives of colonists were allowed. Tears and smiles were stitched into the intricate patterns that the pioneer women evolved from discarded clothing and worn household linen. Scraps of material were combined with consummate artistry in the old pieced quilts that we treasure today. Stitches of meticulous daintiness weave in and out in designs of pictures that Prudence migh have painted or music that Priscilla longed to write.

For the woman who finds greatest enjoyment in the fruits of her own handiwork, but who cannot give the same amount of time that went into the creation of the fascinating old patchwork quilts, an interesting solution is now being offered in the shops. This is an assortment of the "makings" of a quilt, which may be put together in leisure moments. In the old days, the cutting of the patches to form certain prized patterns was a great part of the labor. Today one may buy the pieces, cut from quaint oil-prints, all ready to put together.

When the thermometer starts dropping—Beware! It's a signal to don warm clothing, for health's sake! Have you a winter's supply?

German Hatred Goes Mad

If there was slow torture for Jews in Germany before it has now been speeded up until it is maddened hatred. Ernst Von Rath, a German diplomat in Paris, was fatally shot by a Polish Jew. As a rule in civilized countries—and it holds good in our land—a man who does such a thing is brought to trial, and if he is found guilty he forfeits his life.

It was different in this case. The punishment fell on all the Jewish people who could be reached in German centres. Their homes and their places of business were wrecked or burned, and many of the Jewish folk were beaten.

The last announcement from official Germany is so stunning in its intensity that it becomes difficult to attach belief to it. The Jews in Germany have been fined $400,000,000 for the offence committed by one man in Paris. Apart from that the Jews must at once commence the rebuilding and repairing of all their property which was damaged or destroyed during the riots, and they must pay for it.

They must also cease from engaging in business; they cannot attend meetings; they must not go to theatres or picture shows.

It is apparent that Berlin was waiting for something which would provide cause for touching off another series of prosecutions against Jewry. The ferocity of the scheme becomes apparent with even little study. The fine of $400,000,000 will have to be paid, and the repairing of Jewish properties and homes will have to be attended to and paid for—by the Jews. That will call for an exhaustive drawing from whatever they may possess in the way of wealth. While that is going on their income has been stopped and their power to earn has been cancelled. And then what?

It looks as though the days ahead for the Jews in Germany are going to be darker than the days which have passed. This paper has previously referred to these people being caught like rats in a trap: they are neither killed nor liberated but perpetually poked at and tortured.

The Only Chance

Since the signing of the Munich agreement the world powers appear to have settled down to the serious business of seeing how rapidly they can secure more armaments. Britain has come to the conclusion that she was caught napping that time; her high-ranking officials have made open confession that defences were not in condition and were indeed bungled.

United States has the ocean in between but that seems to have lost its power to protect and Washington is going ahead with programs for more planes, more guns and more sea-going fighters.

In our own land we have heard it repeated that we must at once do what we can to set our own house in order, and it is suggested that if we became busy enough at that it might possibly end much of our employment.

While all this has been going on David Lloyd George, war-time premier of Britain, and also an outspoken critic of the Munich pact, has been making a broadcast to North America, and his opinion is that the one chance for securing peace is to call together all the great powers, and there "without reference to past experiments or present ideologies" he would have the powers say plainly what they have in mind. They might even be sufficiently frank to state the reason for their desire for excessive armament; they might tell what they fear is going to happen.

It may be argued that past world conferences have failed, and that nations will not regard the sanctity of signed contracts; it may be argued that the League of Nations fell apart when pressure was placed upon it, and no doubt it will be recalled that the Kellogg pact signed in Paris by which war was outlawed as an instrument of national policy turned out to be as ineffective as it promised to be triumphant.

Lloyd George would know of all these objections; no man would be more historically aware of each and every one of them, and yet he calls for another world conference, and his reason is in his own statement that he sees it as the only chance for a just and durable peace. It would be worth the expenditure of some millions of dollars if necessary in order to bring it to pass. The world can afford to spend its money lavishly in an effort to secure peace because it spends it without stint or measure on war.

The Men Liked Him

A report from London, Ont., says 200 employees of the Canadian National Railways gathered at the station in that city to attend a memorial service for the late Sir Henry Thornton. In the list of organizations represented we find there were delegates from the following unions:

Federated Crafts
Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers
Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen
Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees
Shop Electrians
Brotherhood of Railway Carmen
Brotherhood of Maintenance of Ways
Machinists, Blacksmiths, Tinsmiths.

There was probably never a railroad man in the Dominion of Canada who was so thoroughly denounced in parliament and so thoroughly loved and respected by the employees of the road as Sir Henry Thornton. That was the situation when he was alive and the regard the men have for his memory remains.

Whether the things which Sir Henry did were the wisest may be open to question particularly in view of what has happened since his time, but when he took charge of the C.N.R. it was a man-sized job to try and do anything with it, but Sir Henry went ahead as few men could have done, and it is we believe correct to say that he had the entire personnel of the C.N.R. behind him. He was physically a big man and he radiated the feeling that he was going places and was bent upon doing things. He was for instance in favor of increasing the issuing of passes to those who worked for the railway and that was popular. It could not well have been otherwise. Whether it is or ever was fully justified is another matter.

We recall when the railway association in Stratford had secured and completed a splendid recreation field and a name was sought, the greatest number of votes was in favor of the name "Thornton Field," but it was found to be against the rules of the company to allow the name of any official, past or present, to be used for such a purpose. Yet the feeling was there and it was present again when 200 railway workers gathered in the station at London for a memorial service.

They Knew Not How

Some of the stories which people of advanced years relate on occasions when another birthday is being celebrated are really very good. Mrs. Rachel B. Pace of Vienna, Ont., is 98 years of age. When a reporter went to see her on her birthday Mrs. Pace volunteered the information that the secret of old age was hard work and a plain honest life. There may be much truth in that, but we will pass it for the moment. Continued or extended reference to hard work might be a trifle vexatious to a few readers. It was when Mrs. Pace started relating the days when they were first building St. Luke's Anglican Church in the community that she revealed some of the troubles of days when architects were not in attendance and when plans and specifications were not thoroughly measured and discussed before building operations were commenced. But we will let Mrs. Pace tell her own story:

"The Anglican Church was at first just a small building, but they had secured a bell for it, but when they tried to install the bell they found the belfry they had built was much too small to house the bell. The workers started to enlarge the belfry and during a thunderstorm one of the workers was struck by lightning and killed. After they had made the belfry large enough to contain the bell and had put the bell in it they found the belfry was too large for the church. It looked as though it was all belfry and they found too it was not safe. So they started again to rebuild the church and make it large enough so the belfry would not only look right but have enough below to sustain it."

Those were in pioneer days when people were handy at erecting their homes and barns at times out of logs or whatever material was to be had, but building a church and arranging for a belfry was not the developed art it is today. So there is something to be said for the coming of the architect, the skilled contractor and the building engineer who can safely map out all such things in advance.

The Desire For Security

A few days ago J. Sartor, described as an elderly man, was found dead in a shack which he called home in the east end district of Vancouver. He died in bed and he lived alone. When police went to investigate they found that instead of using a blanket or quilt he had coal sacks for bedding. It is also related that the man's clothing was made of old potato sacks. There was a pocket fashioned in this strange attire and there were four cents and a cheap watch in it.

And something else — a bank book which showed he had to his credit in a Vancouver branch bank no less than $14,275. That case was reported several days ago, and since then the Examiner has secured the opinion of a gentleman who is well enough qualified to speak about such an affair. This paper asked if there was any known reason for a man living in that condition while possessing enough money to live comfortably. It might be added that the last deposit in the account was made only two weeks before the man's death. The answer received was this:

"Such cases always attract attention because they are widely reported. The one in Vancouver was not exceptional because there have been many quite similar. A few years ago there were columns in New York papers about a woman who lived in an old home, the last of an old family. She had one woman in the home with her and a dog and never were there any callers. It was supposed she was poor, but her death revealed amazing riches.

"The desire of the old man in Vancouver would be to secure a feeling of security. I say that because the same incentive prompts many people to try and pile up their wealth. They are sometimes and wrongly referred to as misers who love money. Back of it all is that feeling that in money there is security.

"The man to whom you refer, regardless of age, would not admit he was old. He would still see ahead of him years for which he wanted to make provision, and he would have kept on doing the same thing if he had lived for another ten or fifteen years. Such people never come to the point where they relax and say, 'I have only a few years left and I have sufficient to see me through.' The reason for that? Plain as can be. When they start to spend the money they feel at once that they are attacking the very foundation of the basis of security which they themselves have created. If they spend $10 instead of depositing that amount they are certain they are defeating themselves. Such a case as that to which you referred is not uncommon. I do not consider it an exaggeration to say there are many people in the world today who are operating under a similar motive even if they do not live in shacks. Sift it to the bottom and you find the same things always—the desire for security which people feel comes from the possession of money."

No comment is offered. That statement is the opinion of one who is qualified to give it. Finding people living in destitute places who are possessed of money is not uncommon. One who follows the day's news regularly knows that.

They Are Still Out

A strike which had lasted for ten weeks was settled a short time ago in Windsor, and by terms of settlement the men who had been on strike are to be placed on a preferred list and they will be taken on as business conditions warrant.

That is part of the report, but at the end it is stated that "less than 100 men were involved in the strike and the company has continued operations through the strike. All the men who went out were replaced."

There may have been what can be called an official declaration that the strike had been concluded, and there was apparently some form of settlement. But what of it? It is stated the men who went on strike had been replaced which means that unless business becomes very brisk they will not be taken back.

It would be nearer the fact to have stated the men who went on strike were out for ten weeks—and are still in the same position.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Burglars took $150 worth of fountain pens from a drug store in West Lorne. Ambitious fellows perhaps who intend to make their mark in the world.

Tobacco growers in Western Ontario are following the general trend of the times. When they believe they are not getting sufficient money for their crops they appeal to the Government.

It is estimated there are 41,500,000 cars in operation in the world. Holiday drivers and pedestrians in general will agree that the estimate is probably a trifle on the low side.

Three Michigan thieves thumbed a ride in a car containing three Michigan policemen in plain clothes. Yes—your first guess was right. They drew up in front of the police station.

Ernest Balk of Detroit appeared in court and it was found he had in recent years 56 traffic offences chalked up against him. Common-sense would suggest it was high time he was taken out of circulation as far as traffic is concerned.

Detroit man left the scene of an accident and explained in court he had to get home as his wife was always sore when he was late for dinner. How much soreness will develop in waiting for her man to come will develop in the next six months is something we do not know how to compute.

Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose will have to stay home when their parents the King and Queen visit Canada. Surely there would be room to tuck them away in a battleship on the way over and they need not worry about being able to secure a place to stay after they get here.

UNCLE EBEN

¶ My Uncle Eben feels the cold, perhaps that comes from getting old, nor moving much about; so when the cold days turn to rough, 'tis then that Eben piles on stuff, so he can keep it out.

¶ He lays on winter underwear, first days the weather is not fair, then does some little chore; if weather gets some colder then, he starts the process once again, and he puts on some more.

¶ Great woollen socks surround his feet, he says they help to hold the heat, his winter coat he finds; his wristbands come out after that, and then he gets his fuzzy cap, around his ears it binds.

¶ When then we get a spell of snow, and winter winds begin to blow, then uncle goes on deck; he has a lot of armor then, but adds somewhat to it again, a quilt about his neck.

¶ He has a heavy woollen vest, that buttons snug across his chest, has leggings to the knees; it takes a half an hour or so, before my uncle's fixed to go, so he won't start to wheeze.

The White Collar Job In Demand

EVERY PARENT wants his child to have a "white collar job," said a welfare speaker in Montreal the other day. He's right. But isn't the government more responsible than the parent? asks the Chatham News. It has made education compulsory. What educated men, then, B.A., B.S.A., D.D., or M.D., seventy-five per cent of them the product of the farm, are going to do hard toilsome work, even with electrical conveniences, if they can get something easy and congenial. They would not do menial work on the roads or ditches or sewers, work at trades that involves risk of accident or calloused hands, or untidy clothes. It wouldn't be becoming, can't you see?

So why blame the poor parent, who has a laudable ambition to see his children better off than himself? He knew the hardships, too many of them experienced and saved, to keep his children from knowing them. He is consistent and logical in so doing.

Carry the idea further. The better the education the less inclination for any manual labor. The years of cloistered study unfit men for the common, daily mechanical grind. The parent is not to blame. The state, the government, which insists that youth must know more, must bear some of the burden of responsibility.

This, carried further, implies a worker class, who must know nothing of the higher ideals and aspirations, whose eyes are on the mundane things of the world, whose loves are that of the animal, whose methods those of the cave man.

Compulsory education, looked at thus, may be said to have its disadvantages, in that it makes us depend on a foreign labor class for much of the menial work in the world. It isn't a pleasant thought at all, but it is a fact, and a close analysis will force the conclusion that even with the agrarians initiated into the mysteries of learning they neither will, nor can, adapt themselves to the trades apprenticeships that culminate in master workmen. The remedy is to ennoble labor of all kinds. To dignify it into a profession, if the Canadian or Britisher, or any white man, in fact, is to be induced to take up the burden.

The state cannot take all its professional men from the farm and still have them. Labor will have to be made worthwhile, even though slavish-looking and menial, since it is vitally necessary to the well-being of society as any of the higher orders. Somebody must do it.

An additional reason for the shortage of skilled workmen may be found in the control by strong labor organizations, of apprentices, who refuse to allow so many as might affect their own standing when the period of apprenticeship is complete. This is as great a folly as can be imagined, since it is a boomerang that reacts on the living costs of the workers, in increased costs of building and the restriction of work except such as is absolutely necessary. It does more harm to unionism than it helps.

SOCIAL PROBLEM.

(San Francisco Argonaut)

VERY INDIGNANT is a certain hospitable San Franciscan who, with his attractive wife, frequently receives many friends in his home. The indignation comes from the fact that recently this sociable pair gave a cocktail party at which certain of the guests remained on and on and on, and were finally swept out of the house after midnight despite the fact that it was plain to be seen that they were not expected to stay on for supper.

The weary host and hostess kept brave and dignified faces up to the last minute, when they felt anything but that, and we hear that those who overstayed their welcome will not receive an invitation to that particular house again until some time has passed.

Of course on the one hand it speaks potently of the quality of hospitality, but on the other it speaks eloquently of the lack of perception and good manners of stayers on.

SAID IN COURT.

(From London People)

Man: The brakes on my bike are very fierce. The last time I applied them they threw me 30 yards down the road.

✧ ✧ ✧

Husband: I give my mother-in-law an allowance because she has all my sympathy; she is very wicked.

✧ ✧ ✧

Witness: I don't know how long he has been married, but his wife is calling him by his Christian name.

✧ ✧ ✧

Solicitor: What did you do when you looked at the clock, which showed it was 3 o'clock in the morning, and your wife was still out?

Man: I wound it up.

✧ ✧ ✧

Husband: My wife said I could have the evening off, and I was halfway up the road when she sent our eldest lad after me to say all leave was cancelled.

✧ ✧ ✧

Witness: The motor-car did not stop; it just stood still and kept quiet.

✧ ✧ ✧

Woman: Once my husband would always help me with the shopping, but now I even have to take the bottles back for him.

Husband: My wife told me that a P.C. had summoned her for a traffic offence. I don't know whether I was sorrier for her or the policeman.

WORKED ON LABOR DAY

(New York Times)

An industrious Rhode Island Red hen has become champion of the United States by laying 341 eggs in a year. With twenty Sundays devoted entirely to recreation and time out for Christmas, New Year's, Washington's Birthday and Fourth of July, this is exactly one egg a day. The poor hen, completely confused as to her legal rights, must ever have worked on Labor Day.

PROBABLY RIGHT

American lady (to troublesome rural policeman in England): "Say, guess I'm still a long way from London. I've heard their policemen are sure wonderful."

• German Efficiency Had Slipped!

(London Spectator)

ONE authentic detail of the proceedings at Munich has, I think, gone unrecorded hitherto.

When, on the Friday morning, the time came to sign the historic Chamberlain-Hitler declaration, Herr Hitler said to the Prime Minister, "Now you must sign with my pen," producing his fountain-pen from his pocket.

Unfortunately it turned out to be inkless.

"Ah," said the Fuehrer, turning to the inkstand on the table, "I must fill it."

Unfortunately the inkstand turned out to be inkless too. So the declaration was signed in the end with the Prime Minister's pen, and Mr. Chamberlain was left to reflect that the famous German efficiency could be found wanting on occasion.

• Young Man States His Case

(Letter in Kitchener Record)

TO THE EDITOR: Please grant me some space in your Point of View column. The plight of the single jobless is touching, to say the least.

I have a brother who is 20 years old and I am 26 years old. Neither of us are working. I have worked about two months in the past year.

My brother and I were in a certain firm a short time ago to apply for a job, and when the gentleman asked my brother his age, and was informed that he was 19 years old the gentleman looked at my brother and told him that he was too old, that they only wanted youngsters 15 and 16 years of age. What chance do I stand of getting a job at 26?

We young fellows of today are the men of tomorrow, so we are taught to believe. But we are not getting the chance to prove it.

Mr. Editor, I can honestly say that I am not proud of the fact that I was born in Canada. Where is the younger generation going to end up?

Why are the prisons being filled? Because the manufacturers think we are too old?

We do not want relief. All that we want is honest work, at least that is all I want.

If there are any manufacturers reading this, please try and put yourselves in our place, and ask yourselves what you would do.

If we young men of 26 are too old, I think they ought to give us the old age pension, there being nothing else for us to do.

I think that Premier Hepburn was right in saying that single men should work for their shelter.

If the single men can't find jobs, how in the name of heaven are we going to make good citizens? Try and figure it out, and I think you will get a headache. Well, being as we have no one who can help us, I will close now. Thanking you,

A SINGLE YOUNG MAN.

PIANOS COMING BACK.

(Cleveland Plain Dealer)

IN THE DAYS of its early successes radio put a deep crimp in the piano business because people were so absorbed in listening to the new magic of sound that they had no interest in making any of their own. The natural secondary acion was a restimulation of that interest.

New methods of teaching give the trade its best reason to hope for continued good business. It seems there is a growing school that tries to teach people to play the piano for the fun of doing it rather than for the purpose of imitating the masters. Sounds interesting and probably is no tougher on the neighbors than the old style.

On the whole, the neighbors have been showing a great deal of patience since about 1711, when Bartolommeo Cristefori of Padua designed and put together the first pianoforte.

TO CHECK UP.

(Lethbridge Herald)

NEWSPAPERS are beginning to catch up with the type of politician who denies next day that he said what press reports credit him with saying.

One American newspaper now has recording equipment which transcribes to a record every word a speaker says, direct from the hall to the newspaper office. The reporter writes his story in the usual way. When the angry politician denies next day the published version of his address, all the newspaper has to do is to dig up the record of the address, place it on a reproducing dial and broadcast to the world that the politician said exactly what the newspaper recorded him as saying.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

(Boot and Shoe Records)

DO YOU KNOW who Joseph Vissarionovich Djugashvili is?

Chances are you do not—under that name—

But you and the world know him under his nom de guerre—STALIN.

He knew that the world public could never get a strangle-hold on his real name—

So he chose the name STALIN—which means Steel.

Proving that a simple name, even if wrongly applied, can—with plenty of repetition—impress itself indelibly upon the public mind.

JAPAN IN CHINA.

(New York Sun)

JAPAN INTENDS to treat China as conquered territory. It takes the position that what happens there now is mainly Japan's business and that of no western country. There is no longer even a pretense of an Open Door. Treaties that guaranteed it are as obsolete as if they had been written in the lost language of the Etruscans. And unless Washington, Paris and London want to go to war over this—as they most emphatically do not—there doesn't seem much they can do about it.

THE WHEAT BONUS.

(Edmonton Journal)

THE DIFFICULTY of maintaining the minimum price has to be recognized. The Federal Government is in no position to go on providing $40 000,000 a year in doing so, and it is bound to give heed to the objections raised in the parts of the country where most of the voters live.

What is to be hoped for is that the world demand will improve to such an extent that the western growers will receive much more for their wheat through the ordinary channels of trade than they are now obtaining from the board. If however, this does not happen, obviously it will be necessary to consider other methods than that now in effect of safeguarding their interests.

It is a serious mistake for them to assume that the policy adopted by the Government last summer will be a permanent one.

EASY TO GET OUT.

(Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph)

IN VIEW of the crying abuses of parole against which we have been protesting for a number of years, we must insist that there is far more need of supervision to prevent undeserving cases from getting out of the penitentiary than there is of supervision to throw the prison doors open more widely and more easily than at present....

If it be held that the sentences prescribed by the existing law are too severe, then they should be amended. Or if the theory of moral re-generation through penal discipline be advanced—for what it is worth—then the proper remedy is to substitute the indeterminate for the fixed term. We are living in restless times and the more Society disarms, the more the forces of crime and violence become aggressive.

The sentimentality of Mr. Lapointe and other well-meaning penal reformers may be very amiable but it is law-abiding citizens who have to pay for it.—and pay dearly!

FISH FOR THE BABY.

(Australian Press Bureau)

THE sentimental attitude towards baby's diet of milk and pap is rapidly disappearing, according to the city council health officer.

"Baby is usually kept on a strict milk diet until eight or nine months of age and then perhaps allowed to have a little pap, nicely warmed to a gentle temperature," he said.

Quoting an English authority, he said a six-months-old baby could safely be fed on soup, stew, fruit, onions, carrots or fish as well as milk. Prepared cereal foods were detrimental.

"Many doctors will disagree with this, but it shows the way people are beginning to think," he added.

COSTLY CURE.

(Regina Leader-Post)

A SCIENTIST in the United States has discovered that if a hay fever victim is taken up in a plane 5,000 feet he passes out of the region where pollen is found and up there he gets away from his hay fever. It's a nice idea and the news will be of interest to hay fever victims. The only trouble appears to be that it is going to be an expensive business to stay 5,000 feet up in the air for the duration of the hay fever season.

LET NO MAN deceive himself. If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wise. For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. WOLVES IN NORTH.

(North Bay Nugget)

FROM SUDBURY comes reports of a mass wolf invasion of the Hanmer farm region, with the marauders venturing close to the farm houses. Burwash and Cartier districts say wolves are unusually numerous in those localities, while trappers of Manitoulin Island report advance notice of a big movement from the dense forest to inhabited regions.

No person has yet offered an explanation of this turnabout in wolf practices, but the fact that they are being heard or seen in practically all settled regions of the North leads to the belief that the weather and ability of their usual prey to keep well under cover is causing the destructive beasts to seek a livelihood by easy methods, but at the risk of their lives.

Thessalon came to the wire with the prize wolf yarn in a report of white wolves being seen in that district. Game Warden Wilfred St. Louis is reported as having spied a pack of nine wolves, four greys and five whites, the latter having long and fluffy fur.

• THAT HUGE DEBT.

(Charleston News and Courier)

NEVER A DAY should pass that citizens concerned about the future of their country should neglect to think upon the eight years of successive national deficits. This country is to have a deficit the ninth year. It will be in the neighborhood of four thousand million dollars. In 1940, when a new President is to be elected, the national debt will be $40,000,000,000, and of it $20,000,000,000 will be the Roosevelt debt. All this in piping times of peace. At the moment there is no other fact that should so much concern you citizens. No other is so ugly and menacing.

A Bit of Nonsense

GRACE

A woman about to entertain a duchess for the first time, gave careful instructions to the maid about the way the duchess was to be received.

"Now Mary," she said, "remember that whenever you address the Duchess you must say, 'Your Grace.'"

When the great day arrived, and the maid opened the door to the duchess, the latter inquired if the mistress was at home. The maid answered: "Yes, she is, and may the Lord make us truly thankful for what we are about to receive."

"Well, they needn't wait all those years," answered the landlord, "if you don't pay me by 11 o'clock they can say it tomorrow."

Socialists Out To Oust Daladier

PARIS, Nov. 14.—(AP).—The powerful Socialist and Communist parties declared war today on Finance Minister Paul Reynaud's financial and economic program, which they said favored capital at the expense of Labor.

The official newspapers of both parties called for a "fight to the finish" against Premier Daladier's government and declared the general confederation of labor, with 5,000,000 members, would join them.

Both the Socialist Le Populaire, edited by former premier Leon Blum, and the Communist L'Humanite said the leftist parties would seek immediate convocation of parliament where they would try to overthrow Premier Daladier.

Reynaud's program, embodied in 32 decree laws, was ordered promulgated to today's official journal. Among other things it abolished in effect the 40-hour work week and increased the price of sugar, tobacco, bus and subway fares, and increased income taxes.

The finance minister announced two additional decrees would be published Tuesday, one requiring foreign merchants doing business in France to obtain a special license and the other premitting groups of public employees and semi-public organizations to organize cooperatives for wholesale purchases of household necessities.

Political Exhibition

Blum, speaking at Lille yesterday, called the program "a simple political exhibition" and charged the decrees "seemed to have preserved only little" of the social legislation passed under his first populace front government in 1936.

Communist deputy Jacques Duclos told a Pontoise gathering the "measures are directed against the laboring population of France. We will fight them with all our force," he said.

Daladier, who intimated he expected to remain in power, called the program a "three year plan" and declared in effect that it marked the last chance under democratic methods to save the nation from collapse.

Reynaud hmiself painted a picture of financial and economic collapse, with the franc at 80 to the dollar, unless the program is supported by the entire nation.

The seriousness of France's financial problem is indicated by the fact that her national debt will be 570,000,000,000 francs (about $15,162,000,000) at the end of 1938.

Agonizing Eczema (Salt Rheum)

No rest, day or night, for those afflicted with that awful skin disease, eczema, or salt rheum as it is commonly called.

The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night, or when the affected part is exposed to strong heat, or hot water, are almost unbearable, and relief is gladly welcomed.

To get rid of eczema it is necessary to have the blood cleansed by the use of a thoroughly reliable blood medicine such as Burdock Blood Bitters which during the past 60 years has met with great success in relieving such diseases by its blood cleansing and purifying properties.

Hand-made Quilt Is Presented To Rector's Wife

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, Nov. 14.—A presentation of a beautiful handmade quilt by the members of St. John's Anglican Guild to Mrs. T. Floyd, formed an interesting part of the meeting of the Ladies' Guild which was held at the home of Mrs. Will Huycke on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. H. Brooks, the president, in a few well chosen words, expressed the regret which all felt in the removal of the beloved rector and his wife and daughter, Ruth, who have been in Warkworth for the past seven years.

"The regard all have had for you both and your willing service in the church and Guild makes our regret and sense of loss only the keener as you leave us. The cordial and friendly disposition of you both have won the love and respect in the hearts of not only your own congregation but a wide circle of friends. In leaving us you are accompanied by best wishes and may God prosper you both in your new field of labor," she said.

Mrs. Floyd thanked the ladies and expressed her deep gratitude for their gift which she would cherish and which would always bring back pleasant memories of her associations of St. John's Guild in which she always took such a keen interest.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in quilting and a social time together after which the hostess and her assistants served a dainty lunch and Rev. T. Floyd closed a pleasant afternoon with prayer.

Rev. T. Floyd expects to take up his new charge in St. George's church, Peterborough, after the 15th of November.

Goodnight Story

"I DIDN'T know that spring water came from melted snow," Knarf said.

"I didn't know that, either," Hanid added.

The little drop of spring water called Freshet (he was the one who was showing the two shadow-children around the spring inside the hill) laughed merrily. "Oh, yes! Spring water comes from melted snow. It comes from rain, too."

"From rain!"

"Of course. It falls on the ground and sinks through the ground into the hill. Then it finally comes trickling out at the bottom of the hill, long after the rain is over."

Good to Drink.

"So people drink snow and rain," said Knarf. "I didn't think that they were very good to drink."

"Oh! they don't drink them just as they are," Freseht explained. "They get flavored as they go through the hill."

"Flavored!" Hanid said in surprise.

"You mean with salt and pepper and sugar and things like that?" Knarf asked.

"Well, not exactly. I'll show you just what happens. Follow me."

The two shadows and Freshet left the cavern of the melted snowflakes. Freshet led them down a passageway until at last they came to a wall of white rock. There were a few little cracks in this white rock and the water from the Snowflake Cavern was flowing through these cracks to the other side.

Rock of Salt.

"Now do you know what this white rock is?" Freshet asked his two companions.

They shook their heads.

"You mean regular salt, like the kind you have at dinner time?"

"Yes, that's the kind. You see, when the melted snowflakes and the raindrops go through this rock of salt, they take a little bit of it with them—oh! just the smallest bit. You can hardly taste it but it's there just the same. And so it has the flavor of salt in it."

"And does the water get flavored with other things, too?" Hanid wanted to know.

"Oh, yes!" answered Freshet. "It gets flavored with lots of different kinds of minerals and salts. That's why it tastes so good when it finally comes out at the bottom of the hill."

Now aren't you glad to know that?

By HELEN WELSHIMER

CHAPTER 47

SUNDAY AFTERNOON Judy went to tea at her father's penthouse. Sarita had telephoned inviting her. Ordinary she would have given an excuse. Today she wanted to go.

Brushing her hair, Judy admitted to the candid eyes in her dressing table mirror that she had a reason. Somebody might have news of Ronald and the law firm.

In the excitement of seeing him the night before, she had forgotten to ask him the outcome of his resignation. He had not offered the information. But of course the resignation would be rejected.

And yet—the proud old legal firm hated publicity. It did not deal with sensationalism. Its clients were solid, reputable houses with a dislike for notoriety.

The long drawing room at the penthouse had not changed. The tea table with its silver stood near the white fireplace. Sarita, in a red dress, sat on a white leather chair as she poured tea. All that was part of yesterday.

Judy felt strange and formal. Six months ago this was home. Her own room had been down the hall. She wondered how it looked with her possessions removed from it. She slipped away to the room.

Sarita had refurnished it, copying her bookshelves, tables, lamps, chairs, even the bed, as closely as possible. If her own prints had been there Judy could have believed she had stepped over the threshold to yesterday.

"Your father did it." Judy did not know Sarita had followed her until her stepmother spoke at her shoulder.

"My father?"

"He still believes that some day you will come home. When you do, he wants everything waiting for you just as it was."

"No one uses it now?" Judy asked.

"No one, my darling! It's your room."

Judy went to the chest of drawers, opened the top one.

"Why, Sarita!" she exclaimed. There were piles of cobwebby underthings in it.

Sarita smiled. "I did that, Judy. You'll need things, you know!"

Judy laughed, half provoked. "You're a pair of darlings and I love you both for it, but don't you believe I can take care of myself? I'm doing it—I'm saving money every week."

Yet she was touched. Her father did want her. He had not banned her in his heart or he would not have made ready for her when she would choose to return. Sarita was kind, too.

When Sarita and Judy returned to the drawing room they found more guests. Mr. Heaton and Mrs. Heaton were there. They greeted Judy warmly.

At the first opportunity she spoke to Mr. Heaton. "Have you seen Ronald"

The man put down his tea cup. "No, I haven't, and I've been trying everywhere to reach him. Can you help me?"

"I saw him last night. If his apartment doesn't answer, I would not know where he is."

Around them voices rose, fell, punctuated with laughter. Life followed a casual pattern, gay and charming. It had returned to its former routine.

Yet Judy sat apart, having no interest in the scene except as the lawyer's words concerned Ronald.

"We didn't accept the boy's resignation," Hr. Heaton continued. "The young fool doesn't know it. Can't reach him to tell him so." The attorney chuckled. "I've sent him two telegrams—no reply to either of them. I think I'll have to send out a search warrant so I can apologize and congratulate him."

"Mr. Heaton, you're splendid!" Judy exclaimed, not knowing her eyes were starry, her voice tremulous.

The lawyer patted her hand as he rose to move away. "The lad's real stuff, Judy. Stick to him."

When the girl looked into the lawyer's face, startled wonder on her own, the man sat down again.

"Ronald is dependable, Judy. Especially as husband material. I never would have known that it was his his innate chivalry in helping Miss Boland that got him into this trouble of his own if I had depended on getting the reason from him. Mr. Boland explained to me. He's sorry about it all—but he thinks Ronald would be an asset as a son-in-law."

Judy nodded mutely.

"What do you think about Abbey and Ronald?" the man asked her almost sharply.

"I hope they'll be happy," Judy said, and wondered off to join the group by the tea table.

It was no use consoling herself with the erroneous idea that loyalty alone had held Ronald to Abbey. An engagement was an engagement, and while the glittering Abbey might not want Ronald as a husband, she would retain him as a fiance until she found another count, prince, duke, heir to a soap flakes fortune, or someone else with some kind or a publicity bid.

As for herself, she had her work. She would give her time to it, and become so successful that some day people would wear gowns by Judy Rogers. They would not be gowns designed merely for the debutantes and dowagers who wrote checks with careless hands. They would be simple, attractive, and in a price range low enough that Coralee and her friends could afford some of them.

She gave herself up to the dream, there in the firelight scarcely knowing when someone asked her a question, and she embroidered the edge of the conversation with an unimportant word in answer.

Mr. Heaton, hat in hand, strolled back from the library.

"I located the young scallawag. He's on his way into town. Been out at the Bolands! Abbey wanted to stage some kind of shindig in celebration of truth prevailing and I take it he walked out. But the party's still on the books. I'm going to his apartment to waylay him now."

Judy got her hat and coat and pocketbook, thanked her stepmother for the tea, and started home. She decided to walk for awhile. Fifth avenue was cold and bare and the clothes for the Florida resorts and cruises to Bermuda had been removed from the windows of the shops. Some were presenting the more sedate things for early spring. Other windows were covered with canvas or silken curtains while the artists prepared them. A raw wind was blowing. She hailed a taxicab and leaned against the slippery leather cushions while it raced down Fifth avenue, green lights with it.

Marjorie was gone. Craig had been gone a long time. Now Ronald was going. That was life.

She must remember that all that mattered was to build your own life securely, on a firm basis of accomplishment. Then winds might blow, waters rise, floods come, and lesser houses go to sea, but you would stand, strong as a citadel on a rocky hill.

Work—it stayed by you. But could it comfort you forever and forever?

She sat up and dabbed at her eyes with a scrap of lace.

"Judy Rogers, snap out of it! You don't want a man who doesn't want you! You don't want anyone! You've been so afraid of marriage. Don't be forgetting!"

She turned the radio low in her apartment, and piled wood on the fire while a swing band, far away, gathered its music and sent it over the world. She had discarded program after program until she found something as impersonal as swing. Today she would be gay. Why were Sunday programs so fraught with sentiment?

She slipped into some velet lounging pajamas that were the warm brown of her hair, and found their matching mules. She had not worn them for a long time. She turned on a lamp and sat down to read the Sunday papers.

At twelve o'clock Ronald had not called. She admitted to herself, then, that she had been waiting for his voice on the telephone or speaking through the tube above her doorbell ever since Mr. Heaton had telephoned the Boland estate and been told that Ronald was leaving.

She was an undated, simple fool!

She repeated the words with more vehemence when she saw the morning newspapers. Was she always to get her news of Ronald from the press—always to catch her breath at his name leaping out in scarry black letters?

Hastings Plans Girl Guide Club

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Nov. 14.—An interesting demonstration of girl guide work was given in Our Lady of Mount Carmel parish hall here Friday night by thirty members of No. Two company Girl Guides of Peterborough.

They were under the supervision of Mrs. Whalon, district captain, Lieutenant Mary A. Stewart and Captain Loretta Fitzgerald, all of Peterborough. The demonstration was largely attended by girls of the parish and a few adults.

It was under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League, Hastings division, who acted as hostesses to the visiting girls.

The Guides gave an illustrated guide meeting before the packed hall in the evening followed by a program. Those taking part were Joan Reid, recitation; Jeana DeCarlo, tap dance; Joan Reid, ballet dance; Anne Overland, Teresa McFadden, June Brewer, Helen Reilly, song quartet, all of Peterborough; Irene MacDonald, Hastings, a solo.

During the afternoon a joint meeting of the Catholic Women's League, the Girl Guides and local girls interested, took place with a view to starting a local company of girl guides. Nothing definite was settled at the meeting but it is understood a local company will be organized in the parish this fall. Mrs. J. A. MacDonald, president of the C.W.L., stated.

Beavers Found In Ouse River

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Nov. 14. — A family of beavers, now very uncommon in southern Ontario, has been recently discovered in the Ouse River. As far as can be learned this is the first colony of beavers to be found in this district in many years. Although the little animals have not actually been seen, there is much evidence to prove they are present, including their mud and stick house.

Frank Taylor of Birdsall's, on whose property they have settled, told a reported that he first noticed signs of beaver work last spring during the trapping season. He is endeavoring to protect them from hunter and trapper with the hope that their number will increase and provide a little game reserve which should prove of interest to tourists in the summer months. He believes there are four beavers in the colony —two parents and two young ones. They have gnawed several trees down along the banks of the little river, and some smaller limbs may be found with the bark chewed entirely off.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, November 15

A DAY of conflicting interests is read from the prevailing planetary configurations. While there may be a personal anxiety or a disappointment, at the same time there is excellent promise that matters will move from a static condition and make definite progress in the way of stability and solid growth. This may best be promoted by the use of tact or subtle agreement, in which new contracts may bring decided growth and expansion. These may relate to investments, real estate or other property interests.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves launched in a year in which there may be a definite change from stagnant and congested conditions to very promising opportunities for enhancing and stabilizing the fortunes. These may come through investments, real estate possessions or other solid propositions in which new contracts of great promise are assured. But matters must be managed by tact, suavity or even secret agreement. An elder or a woman may give concern.

A child born on this day may be versatile, ambitious, studious and industrious, as well as tactful, subtle and gracious.

Potatoes Hit Dollar Mark Supply Light

Potatoes appeared on Saturday to have shaken off the 80 and 90 cent price tags and to have established the dollar mark. Some of the growers were edging up to the $1.25 level as the next goal on the way to their expectations of $2 a bag. A few dealers were selling six quart basket quantities for 25 cents, others passed up the market entirely, having decided to hold off for a higher note than the market is sounding at present. So the price propaganda goes on with stories of blight cutting down the stock for the winter's needs. The supply was rather light Saturday, but was probably ample for the day's demand, and the varieties were Cobblers, White Stars, Green Mountains and Docleys.

With the exception of potatoes the commodities showed few price changes. Harold Doig wasn't generally announcing it, but he offered an armful of cabbage, all one could carry away, for thirty cents. One of the biggest heads weighed 17 pounds which you could have for a dime. Smaller specimens but big enough to crowd a small apartment were 5 cents; as to whether the plebian cabbage ever gets into the noses of some apartment dwellers is another aspect of the general domestic economy and the distribution of locally grown cabbages.

Fred McMahon's cauliflowers were just about the biggest and whitest that have ever been seen on the Peterboro market. They were special selects from the McMahon fields near Millbrook, the finest of their harvest, and they weren't for sale. They had been carefully picked out for inclusion in the display of vegetables the Peterboro Vegetable Growers' Association is exhibiting at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto this week.

The Baltimore cauliflower men were in with their third weekly load with the blanket price of five cents. And the Bowmanville cider youths were back again selling at 50 cents the gallon, but if you wanted only a beaker of it for a nickle they had tall waxed paper cups which they filled from the barrell. It was sweet and fresh, having been pressed towards the end of the week.

Apples Predominant.

Apple growers were numerous with a big offering of attractive fruit. Incidentally Norman Moncrief of North Monaghan is turning out apple juice and had some of the jars on hand selling at 50 cents the gallon. His cider was made from culled Spies after picking out the first grades for sale. He had a big display of apples from his own orchard.

Prices quoted were as follows:—Snows $3.75 a barrel, and Spies the same; Snows by the peck 40 cents, McIntosh Reds 40 and 45 cents; Baxters, the big cookers, 30 cents. Greenings $1.25 a hamper; Russets and Talmans 25 cents a six quart basket.

E. Morrison of Port Hope, one of the regulars from the apple country along the lake front, quoted $1.50 for a hamper of Spies, with a second quality at $1.00.

More Fresh Meat.

Cooler weather brought out more fresh meat. Alex Gordon had a fairly large supply of lamb at 15 and 20 cents; and at another counter the prices were 14 and 21 cents. Fresh pork was quoted at 13 and 15 cents. Live turkeys for as foundation stock were $4 and $6 each. Young Yorkshire pigs $6 each.

New tomatoes from Bowmanville greenhouses sold at 10 cents a pound. Other prices were vegetable marrow 5 and 10 cents each; cauliflowers 5 to 20 cents; carrots and beets 20 cents a basket; onions 25 cents, six quarts. Hubbard squash 10 cents; turnips 3 for 10 cents. Cabbages 10 cents.

Upstairs butter was 22 to 25 cents; eggs again ranged from 30 to 45 cents; chickens 17 to 20 cents; ducks 20 cents; turkeys 27 cents. Some woman passed out a hen for a chicken, and there is always just one result to that kind of practice, she lost a customer. And then there is another potential result casting consumer doubt on the market. You don't hear of many cases of what is really misrepresentation; but this was one instance that was authentic, and it isn't fair to the great majority of honest producers who have been building up the reputation of the Peterboro market by just dealing that required no supervision.

Chinese cabbage, broccoli, green onions, honey and other familiar staples were unchanged in price.

New Deal Receives Setback In U. S. Elections

The New Deal program of President Roosevelt received a severe jolt at the hands of U.S. electors in the recently concluded nation-wide election when at least eight states ousted Democrat congressmen and senators in favor of Republicans. One of the exceptions to the general trend of the election was the re-election of Governor Herbert H. Lehman in New York, who defeated racket-busting District Attorney Thomas A. Dewey for the governorship. Running on the Democratic and American Labor party tickets, Governor Lehman is shown, LEFT, with Mrs. Lehman as they cast their ballots in New York city, while District Attorney Dewey and Mrs. Dewey are shown, RIGHT, casting their vote for the governorship.

Warsaw Observes Armistice Day

WARSAW, Nov. 14.— The usual order of Armistice Day service was observed this year as the congregation gathered in the United church. About 1.45 the school children paraded and occupied the central seats which were reserved for them.

Rev. J. W. Wilkinson led the service and after prayer two minutes' silence was observed. Mrs. David Miller read the roll. Dr. Munro gave a short address in which he stressed peaceful living. We had thought the Great War was to end war, he said, but it now looks as though there might be even a greater war. Greed and selfishness are at the bottom of the trouble, therefore, he urged, especially the children, to avoid all greed and selfishness. That is a part each one can play.

After singing "O God Our Help in Ages Past," the children, followed by the older people, paraded to the Cenotaph, where Mr. Wilkinson called upon Mr. Vivian Jackson, a returned man to place the provincial wreath, and Mrs. Mary Thompson, whose son, Stanley Thompson, was killed, placed the Women's Institute wreath. The children stood at attention and led in singing the National Anthem.

Mrs. Eddie Payne is visiting her mother, Mrs. Mary Thompson.

Mr. Donald Yale and two friends were in Warsaw on Friday on their way to hunt.

Very few returned men are now in or near Warsaw. Several are dead and most of the living have moved away. Mrs. David Drain from South Dummer and Mrs. Mary Thompson were the only mothers, near enough, to attend the service at the Cenotaph.

Women's Work In The Church Is Described By Woman Minister

Womens work in the church was the subject on which Rev. Lydia E. Gruchy, B.A., first woman ordained as a minister in the United Church of Canada, spoke on at the evening services at George Street United Church last night.

Miss Gruchy was ordained in Moosejaw, Sask., and acted as associate pastor of St. Andrew's church in that western city for some time. She is now serving as executive secretary of the Committee of the Deaconess Order and Women Workers of the United Church. Her sermon not only explained the many avenues of endeavor now open to women in the church but also a challenge to the women with the necessary attributes to accept their responsibilities and begin training for the work.

Specific Task For Everyone

In the first remarks she explained St. Paul had believed that God had a specific task for each and everyone of us in every community, and that each person must use the special gifts with which they were endowed in order that the will of God might be done. "There are three ways in which everyone might do the work for which they are chosen," said Rev. Gruchy. "First one must live a Christian life and exemplify the teachings of Christ is our everday tasks. This is a fundamental thing and a responsibility all must accept regardless of their station in life or their ability. Secondly, others more specially gifted must accept position of leadership in the church activities because they are so fitted for such work, and thirdly those who have the qualifications to enter the professional field of church work must become ministers of the gospel, and it is imperative that every congregation provide its quota."

In dealing with the topic which she had chosen, namely women's work in the church, Rev. Gruchy explained that two years ago, the General Council had opened the doors of the ministry to women, so that now the highest realm of earthly service was now open to women, provided they have the training and personality for such a profession.

She explained also that there were two other fields of professional service in which women might serve, the Deaconess Order and the Women's Missionary work.

"Before Union the Deaconess Order was well established in the Methodist and other churches but differed in some respects. At Union these changes were merged into one office so that we have the Order as it is known today. There are 110 Deaconesses in the church now. At Union it was felt unwise to recruit any deaconesses at once because there was a surplus from the standpoint of staff but not from the standpoint of need. This period of readjustment has passed so that today there is a definite shortage in the field. Many people feel there should be a deaconness on the staff of every church, but such an arrangement is impossible at present." She said a campaign of active recruiting was being conducted at the present time to find young women suitable for this work.

Rev. Gruchy set forth that there are three different types of work for the deaconess. First, secretarial, and for which the greatest demand exists at the present. This work consists of keeping records, correspondence, interviewing, and not to do the work of the official board but that which hequires the attention of a professional church worker.

The second type of work is the Social Service worker. The requirements for this field is one year Social Service course at the University of Toronto, and the work itself consists of working in homes where maladjustments exists, organizing mother's clubs, kindergarten classes, open air camps, and work among underprivileged children, along with church work. The third type of endeavor as explained by the preacher was a specialized training in religious education, and the specific duties were training Sunday School teachers, assuming the leadership in Sunday schools. All three branches have much in common according to Rev. Gruchy as in all the Deaconess must be an assistant to the minister and do the jobs that require a woman's touch.

Qualifications High

"The qualifications for this work is high. The girl who goes into it must be a leader, and she must also be endowed with the character and personality which you look for in a leader."

"The General Council lays down the principles for entrance to the Order and it is preferable that one have an Arts Degree." If a girl enters with such a degree she takes a one-year course at either Toronto or Winnipeg training school, then after a year's trial she may apply for entrance to the Order, Rev. Gruchy said.

"Arts Degrees are not essential and if a girl who feels she is fitted for such a vocation has her senior matriculation and some professional training such as a Normal School course or a nursing training, she will be permitted to take a two-year training course, then one-year trial and she is ready to apply for entrance. This girl enters the Order on exactly the same footing as one with an Arts Degree."

"The Mission training is different only in the method in which the young women are appointed to their positions, the training is identical, except the W.M.S. candidate must train in Toronto, then takes over some phase of the work which is financed by the W.M.S.

"The Committee of the Deaconess Order has been charged with the building up of this branch, selecting, training and transferring so that it may be seen they act as an advisory body."

"The General Council has arranged so that the financing comes from all women's organizations in the church because it is something the women are directly interested in. All women's organizations are banded together to support the Deaconess Order."

At the conclusion of the service, the minister, Rev. M. C. Parr who had assisted Rev. Gruchy in the service said the prayers of the congregation would follow her wherever she went and the members of George Street United Church would follow with interest the work she was doing.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Reform League Before Peace Can Be Assured

"Speaking on the subject "Munich —and After" at a special Remembrance Day service in St. Paul's church, Sunday night, attended by the ex-servicemen of the Canadian General Electric Company and the Boys' Band, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, declared that the prime necessity in solving the problems which the world was facing was a re-dedication of humanity to the service of God. The choice was, he said, between life and death, between good and evil.

The service was featured by an impressive tribute to the memory of St. Paul's war dead, introduced by the singing of "In Flanders' Fields" by George Coleman, Jr., with fine expression and in excellent voice, the choir supplying a chorus. Then followed the reading of the names of the more than 30 officers and men from St. Paul's who lost their lives during the great war, a prayer of remembrance, the Piper's lament on the bagpipes and the sounding of the Last Post.

The Boys' Band under the direction of Wm. Stewart supplied an accompaniment to the singing of the hymns and the band also contributed a sacred interlude, splendidly played by the young musicians.

Desire for Revenge

Rev. Dr. Barr based his sermon on a text from the 3rd chapter of Joel and the 14th verse "Multitudes in the Valley of Decision." In his opening remarks he stressed the fact that the recent conference at Munich and the events that led up to it, including the establishment of the present government in Germany could be traced directly to the treaty of Versailles which he said had been prepared by the Allies, actuated by two things, a desire for revenge on the part of France and President Wilson's insistence upon the principle of self determination. In arranging the terms of peace the allies had refused to be magnanimous and as a result they sowed the seeds of what had taken place since.

Speaking of the Munich conference, Dr. Barr said that for the time being war had been averted and we had a breathing spell. Yet the future had to be faced and multitudes were still in the valley of decision, for Munich was not an end in itself.

Ensuring World Peace

The speaker submitted that one of the things that would have to be done to ensure permanent peace was the reforming of the League of Nations, the establishment of a new League in which there would be representation of all the nations in the world including the United States which he argued should abandon its policy of isolation.

"Now is the time too," said Dr. Barr, "for nations to discuss ways in which the evils of economic selfishness can be abated or removed so that natural resources may be more fairly distributed." It was to the credit of Hitler and Mussolini that no unemployment existed in their countries. If the dictators could do that kind of thing surely the democracies could.

Finally the speaker submitted that the laws of God must be recognized again and there must be a general re-dedication of His service.

Outline Given Of History Of St. Peter's

An intimate description of the architecture of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Cathedral and the history of the Cathedral from the time the first Catholic church was built in 1826 was given to the Rotary club at their regular noonday luncheon to-day by His Excellency the Most Reverend Denis O'Connor, D.D., Bishop of Peterborough.

Introduced by Rotarian Fred L. Roy, Bishop O'Connor produced two pictures, one of which showed the old church 80 years ago on the head of Hunter street and from the Denne collection. The other was a view of the interior as it exists to-day, showing the Tudor Gothic architecture. His talk throughout was a history of the various buildings which preceded the present structure and a description of the architecture of the present day cathedral.

"The first Roman Catholic Church in Peterborough's history was built in 1826 where the City Hall now stands, and the place was known as Scott's Plains. Following the visit of the Lieut.-Governor in 1826 the name was changed to Peterborough. The log church was burned a few years later. The first priest was Rev. Father Ahern, whose jurisdiction extended not only to Peterborough but to the four adjoining counties. The second church was built where the Royal Bank now stands at the north-west corner of George and Hunter Streets, and the Rev. Father John Butler was the priest.

Cathedral Started in 1837.

In the year 1837 the work of building a church on the present site of the Cathedral was begun. Rt. Rev. Alex. McDonnell, Bishop of Kingston, secured the site. He had the entire province within his jurisdiction and always chose high ground on which to build the churches. The church in Guelph occupies a site which he chose. Bishop O'Connor described the Bishop of Kingston as a giant of a man, physically, mentally, and spiritually, and said he had formerly been a chaplain with Brock's forces in the War of 1812.

The walls of the nave of the present cathedral are exactly 100 years old this year according to the speaker, who said the work of completing the church started in 1837 was done the following year. Peterborough became a separate diocese in 1882, July 11, and Bishop Jamot was the first Bishop and with the formation of the new diocese St. Peter's Church became a cathedral.

"A Cathedral Church is a Chair Church, the Chair referred to being the Bishop's chair and the church thus named represents the mother church of that diocese," said the speaker.

The cathedral was altered and enlarged in the years of Bishop Jamot's regime of the early eighties, and later a new tower and spire were added. Transepts were built and a new roof was placed over top of the old one and when this was done a flat ceiling was constructed.

Bishop O'Connor explained that during the time Bishop O'Brien was at the Cathedral more improvements were made, including the addition of a marble floored sanctuary in 1923.

Bishop O'Connor told the gathering that when he arrived on June 9, 1930, it was the first time he had ever been in Peterborough, and his first inspection of the Cathedral brought an unfavorable impression because of the low ceiling.

"A picture formed in my mind and in the following year Father Costello and myself set about to make this dream come true." He explained that the new Tudor Gothic ceiling became a reality, steel supports replaced the wood, mural decorations and a new lighting system were added.

"The decorations are perfect because the beauty of the architecture is emphasized," and the beauty of the interior increases as the altar is approached. The altar panel has a mediaevel pattern, and directly over the altar is hung a picture of St. Peter which was brought from Europe in 1886 by the late Bishop Jamot."

Lauded Rev. M. C. Parr

Bishop O'Connor referred to a recent announcement made by Rev. M. C. Parr of George Street United church in which the latter sought to have the church doors open during the week. "This was a very praiseworthy recommendation." Catholic churches however are open from 14 to 16 hours a day, he related.

In closing he invited the Rotarians to drop in at the Cathedral and enjoy for themselves the beauty of the Gothic architecture.

Chairman James Dutton paid a very gracious tribute to the speaker in a vote of thanks, during which he lauded the work done at the Cathedral as a real contribution to the city.

Timber Wolf Shot At Crab Lake Four Miles South-west Of Apsley

A female timber wolf, the pelt of which measured six feet from tip of nose to tail tip, was shot by Ed Grose, 15 Orpington Road, while deer hunting at Crab Lake, four miles south-west of Apsley on Saturday afternoon. Grose wounded another of the grey timber wolves which was running about 100 yards behind the female, but it escaped into the swampy country.

Edwards had shot a nice buck on Saturday and went down into a valley with Grose to locate the carcass when the pair of wolves came along. Grose was using a 30-30 rifle and his first shot sent the marauder into a tailspin. He fired too soon at the next one but struck it, and although both he and Edwards followed closely on its heels, they found no trace of the animal except a few blood spots.

Grose skinned the wolf right on the spot and while he was working on it, two other hunters came along, and told of wounding a buck and finding it in a swamp with its throat slashed and the hanuches eaten, evidently by wolves. When Grose had skinned the carcass, one hunter examined the stomach for content and found it filled with fresh venison.

Grose reports also that his party heard a large pack of wolves in full cry in the direction of Star Lake, and it is believed the animals will take heavy toll of the deer this year. The bounty for wolves is, $15 an animal with the hunter also having the privilege of selling the pelt, which would be almost prime at this time of year.

Rev. T. S. Gault Bids Farewell To St. George's

Members of St. George's Anglican Church bade a reluctant farewell on Sunday to one of the most popular ministers in the history of the church—Rev. T. S. Gault, who leaves this week to take charge of a Campbellford church.

The church was packed to capacity at both services, morning and evening. Virtually every parishioner who was not confined to his bed was present at one or both services. The Men's Club and the Girl Guides and Brownies attended in a body at the morning service. The choir sang "Holy Art Thou," by Handel.

The farewell sermon should not be a sad one, but rather a joyous one, said Rev. Mr. Gault at the evening service. "It makes me feel so happy to see so many here tonight," he told his congregation. He hoped they would keep up their attendance after he had gone. "I have been here now for three and a half years and I think the change is a good thing. No doubt I have made mistakes and have left undone things that should have been done. We all do these things but we must try to appreciate each other." In closing he urged the people to stand by the church and to support it to their utmost ability, in the hope it would stand a shining example.

After the service a presentation was made to the minister by Mr. J. Branson, as chairman of a committee formed on the evening Mr. Gault made the decision to move to Campbellford. The congregation with the committee had decided upon a gold watch and chain, to be suitably engraved, and to be presented to Mr. Gault on his last Sunday evening in Peterborough.

Mr. Branson thanked the congregation for their loyal support and wished Mr. Gault every success in his new charge. He said that he felt he was speaking for the entire congregation when he said, "We do not like to see you leave us, but we hope you will like your new home and parish as much as we have enjoyed having you here."

Presentation Made.

A. G. Knott, the rector's warden, was then called on by Mr. Branson to make the presentation and to say a few words. Mr. Knott voiced his appreciation and said it had been a pleasure to be the warden since Mr. Gault came to St. George's Church. "During three and a half years we have had many things to discuss one way and another," he said. "One thing I will say is this, he was always open to a suggestion and would always listen to new ideas, and this is one thing not always found among the clergy. He is a good scout, and has worked around this church both outside and inside and has taken the greatest interest in everything that was undertaken. We will miss him in many ways. I give you, sir, my good wishes and we hope you will like Campbellford."

Mr. Knott also hoped the congregation would stand behind Mr. Floyd, the new pastor, and support him. "Mr. Gault is leaving the church in excellent condition and we must keep it that way," he said. He then presented the watch and chain. The inscription on the watch read, "St. George's and St. Mark's, 1935-1938."

Mr. Gault thanked the two men for their kind words and also the congregation for the beautiful gift. "I shall always treasure this," he said. "I have enjoyed being in St. George's, and any time you are passing through Campbellford I want you to come and see me."

Refreshments were served by the Ladies' Guild of the church under direction of Mrs. L. Warren, president, and the St. Alban's Ladies' Guild under direction of Mrs. J. Cooper, president.

Oldest Resident

All his life a resident of Warsaw, John Rose, seen in this picture, is now the village's oldest resident. Last week he celebrated his 88th birthday and a dinner was held in his honor at the town hall. So many friends were present the building was taxed to seat them all. Highly respected throughout this entire district, Mr. Rose is still an able man, enjoys life to the full.

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up By Examiner Reporters.

ICE ON CANAL.

For the first time this year ice fringed the canal this morning. The thin layer of ice extended about four feet from the banks and was quite thick. Ashburnham boys can recall several years when they were skating on the 15th of November and one year on November 8th the ice at Carlisle's Bay was quite good.

ON CREAMERY WORK.

Reeve James Gifofrd of Ennismore, has recently been engaged on special work in Western Ontario as field man for the Ontario Creamery Patrons' Association. His duties are under the direction of V. S. Milburn, who intimated to the Examiner that the position was likely to become a permanent one.

WON TEA SERVICE

James Moloney, R.R. 4, Lakefield, won the Eckhart donation of a 4-piece silver tea service at the Lakefield Exhibition. This is the first time that this prize has ever been given to the Lakefield Fair. The winner scored 910 points. It was necessary to enter in two classes of livestock and three classes of other farm products.

BUSINESS IS BETTER

Workers and reporters began to shiver in dismay, and merchants to quiver in gleeful anticipation about midnight last night when the first few flakes of snow to be seen here this year, fell on Peterborough streets. By morning the ground was quite white, the early rising workers quite cold, the merchants quite sure business will be good today.

SMALL FIRES

Three minor fires claimed attention of the fire department on Sunday. At 2.08 p.m. a chimney fire at the home of M. Thomson, Louis street, was extinguished. Half an hour later fire fighters went to a shed at the rear of 286 Sherbrooke street to find boys had lighted a fire in an oil drum. They were cautioned, the blaze extinguished. At 9.40 o'clock last night a rubbage fire was extinguished at the home of W. Whitehead, 149 George street north.

TOYS ARE NEEDED

It begins to look as though a good many of Peterborough's children will have to do without toys this Christmas, from a report made by Fire Chief George Gimblett. Toys are not coming in for repair and distribution nearly as rapidly as last year and the fire fighters are worried about the whole thing. "We must get a great number of toys in almost immediately if we are to equal the number distributed last year, said Chief Gimblett. He stressed that toys that must be repaired will have to be in almost immediately.

AN ATTRACTIVE WINDOW.

David Jordan this morning removed from one of the windows of his flower shop on Charlotte street the symbolic decoration that was arranged for Remembrance Day. The central piece was a large cross of artificial magnolia leaves and poppies, set off with recently cut roses. A small wreath was laced in the foreground and the back setting of the window was the draping of the Union Jack an dthe Canadian flag. The Jordan window attracted much favorable comment from the west end residents who pass that way.

ANOTHER ADJOURNMENT.

A local man charged the other day with being drunk, asked for and received another week's adjournment in police court this morning. He is being charged as a second offender.

CARS DAMAGED.

Cars owned by H. Nichols, 242½ Charlotte street, and John Drummond, Water street taximan, were involved in a slight collision on Simcoe street Saturday and received some damage.

PETERBOROUGH MALE CHORUS

The regular rehearsal of the Peterborough Male Chorus will be in the Y.M.C.A. at 8 o'clock Tuesday night and members are asked to be on time. Excellent progress is being made and new numbers will be rehearsed each week from now on.

MOTORIST FINED.

P. Dawson, Smith township, who pleaded guilty the other day to driving a motor car while his license was suspended was fined $10 and $2.50 costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this morning. The charge had been laid by Traffic Officer Gordon E. Broughton.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

Magistrate Langley was to have given judgment on a charge laid under the Transient Traders' by-law this morning but announced that he would reserve his finding for another week, as he had encountered some interesting legal points in the case and wished further time to look into them.

DOCTOR NOT AVAILABLE.

Pierce Nicholson, charged with an offense involving his own daughter, was remanded again this morning when it was found that the doctor whose evidence he wanted heard in his behalf was ill and unable to appear. The case went over until Friday of this week.

GATHER IN LOITERERS.

In an effort to clean up the downtown section of boys and young men who loiter in doorways on Sunday evening and sometimes embarrass women by insulting remarks, Constables Leo Murphy and Clare McGillen rounded up a dozen of the worst offenders from George and Charlotte streets last night and took them to the police station where their names were listed and the boys notified to report to Chief Constable Newhall to-night.

BUSINESS BRISK.

Garage men were smiling this morning as the drop in temperature sent car owners scurrying for winter service of cars. Light grease, winter oil and anti-freeze sales went soaring and if the cold snap continues for a few days, all garages and service stations in the city should do a land office business. Many farmers drove into the city this morning and almost every one had an auto robe or cardboard covering the bottom of the car rads.

THREE DOGS MISSING.

Three valuable dogs are known to have been stolen in Peterborough and suburbs with a few hours of each other. One was an Irish Setter while the others were Spaniels, one a black and white six months old and the other a springer Spaniel brown and white. The three dogs all disappeared on Wednesday morning. Two were running at large while the third was taken from the owner's back yard. It is thought that a gang came in and cleaned up on the dogs and took them out of the city to sell. While only three have been reported stolen it is feared that several others might have been picked up on Wednesday also. The Examiner would be glad to hear if any other dogs are missing since Wednesday.

ENDORSE PORT PERRY LINK.

Rotarians at the luncheon today went on record as being solidly behind the original plan to have the Government complete the connecting link between Highway 28 and Port Perry rather than a diagonal highway from Brooklin. A resolution read and moved by Alderman James Juby was seconded by Harold L. Garner, and the members supported it unanimously. It also sets forth an appeal to have paving of No. 7 Highway east completed, and some work done every year on the Central Ontario Highway until it is completed.

200,000 Women In Ontario Public Drinkers

There are now nearly 200,000 women in Ontario who are habitual public drinkers, was the assertion of Rev. G. A. Little, Editor of Sunday School Publications in the United Church of Canada, who spoke at St. Andrew's church on Sunday.

The speaker was appalled at the number of women who openly drink in this province and told the congregation that in 1937 there were 538 women arrested in the city of Toronto for being drunk. Canadians are steadily becoming worse and more and more money is now being spent on liquor, he said. Highway accidents are increasing, arrests for drunkenness are on the increase despite the fact "one must be quarrelsome or incapacitated before he is taken into custody." In a recent police court out of 25 persons charged with being drunk, 19 were first offenders, he said." The liquor traffic is getting a fresh crop every week," he declared, claiming law enforcement is becoming lax.

Lack of Interest.

He scored the government's apparent lack of interest in controlling the liquor evil. They have introduced compulsory pasteurization of milk, yet have permitted to be sold fortified wines that are much more dangerous than raw milk, he said. "The government acted promptly in the rescue of three men entombed in a mine, but showed no alarm when more than 12,000 people are arrested for drunkenness and imprisoned above ground."

Home happiness is being disrupted by men and women returning late at night under the influence of liquor, he charged. "The Hon. Peter Heenan went personally to help people in the forest fire areas of the province, yet the government is not concerned about the lowering of morals in the province by social drinking, a much more widespread evil than forest fires," he declared.

Why Is Government Indifferent?

"Why is the government so quick to act in every case of need and so indifferent to evils arising from the liquor traffic? The probable answer is the unconscious influence of ten million dollars of government revenue funds from brewers and holders of authority."

He deplored increasing liquor advertising in publications that come into the province and held up in the pulpit a copy of a United States' national magazine in which Canada's parliament buildings, the maple leaf, and a crack regiment were brought into play to sell liquor. He was amazed that liquor interests should rouse patriotism merely to sell liquor.

To Organize Checker Club Tuesday Night

Organization of a checker club is planned by local players at the Y.M.C.A. Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. Novices especially are invited to attend this meeting which, it is hoped, will put the game on a sound footing locally for the new season.

John Buck, an enthusiast and one of the outstanding players in Central Ontario, told the Examiner this morning that the regulars are holding out an inducement for new members. "They will be taught the rudiments of the game," he said, "and experienced players will take them in hand and show them the fine points. There is no reason why Peterborough should not have a strong checker club. Checkers is a fascinating game, it promotes concentration of thought, and the club can have a very pleasant season if we get well organized. We are promised favorable arrangements by the Y.M.C.A. Tuesday night we can meet in the rotunda of the "Y" and then move into a room for ourselves. Every checker player should be present, and each man should bring along a recruit."

The Peterborough players are looking forward to a return engagement here in co-operation with Lindsay players against a Port Hope-Cobourg team. These groups met recently in Port Hope, resulting in a victory for Peterborough-Lindsay, the score being 19 wins, 14 losses and ten drawn games.

The Peterborough-Lindsay players included Dr. Annis of Lindsay, Peter McArthur, John Bick, Verne Russell, J. Rennie, A. Eck, C. Johnston, H. Griffin. Among the Port Hope-Cobourg players were Mayor George Bennett of Port Hope, W. Morton and, Ed Morton of Cobourg, Arthur Flindall of Trenton, H. Pomeroy, of Castleton and others.

The Rambling REPORTERS

A REAL MAN.

A new record in odd requests was set on Saturday in a local restaurant when a moose of a man on having a menu placed in front of him ordered raw liver, raw vegetables, and a pot of green tea. The stranger claimed that he had lived so long within the Arctic Circle that he could eat nothing but raw food. He said his system had become used to it after years of such a diet. He sliced and ate the raw liver with gusto, while raw potatoes, raw carrots and some lettuce all went the same way.—McG.

HAS GIVEN UP IDEA.

A local man has biven up the idea of making money out of wood this winter. He is reported to have made four trips in all to the north country and every trip cost him more than all the wood he could truck on one load.

The run of bad luck was phenomenal and it happened as follows: Two miles south of Burleigh on the first trip, the differential went out. The next day one mile north of Burleigh a connecting rod burned out. Believe it or not the driver stripped the gears on the fourth day using a different truck, and to cap the list of mishaps the owner was driving out to bring aid to the stranded driver when his passenger left the road and turned over in the ditch. He has now switched his attention to other lines of business. —McG.

Four Injured In Car Crash

Dion Snelgrove, George street barber, is in St. Joseph's Hospital suffering from shock, a fractured rib and injuries to his shoulder and toes, and three other persons had a narrow escape from death or serious injury as the result of a traffic accident some four miles east of Peterborough on Highway No. 7 early this morning.

They were returning from a weekend visit to Ottawa in a car driven by J. C. Cann, Harvey street, and had almost reached home after their long ride when the car skidded off the highway into the ditch and rolled over several times, being very badly damaged. The four occupants were all shaken up but Snelgrove was the only one to receive anything in the nature of a serious injury. It is estimated the car was damaged to the extent of $400.

Car Is Stripped Following Fire

Cars which are wrecked or burned on the roads in the northern section of Peterborough County will not remain long on the side of the road.

Wood truckers report that about a week ago a new car was partially destroyed by fire on the Apsley-Bancroft road, a mile north of Apsley. On the day following the fire, the truckers noticed that both headlights, a front wheel and the carburetor were missing. The next morning as they passed they stopped and examination revealed the other front wheel was gone, so was the front bumper, and the radiator and gas tank caps. Fortunately the insurance company did not wait any longer to send garage men up or there wouldn't have been any car there. They towed away the balance of the wreck.

Otonabee Boys Plead Guilty To Theft Charge

"If there is anything in the nature of a vendetta following this case I would like to point out that the law has a long arm and that persons who may be involved in such an affair will be punished if they come into this court," warned Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in suspending sentences on five Otonabee youths for complicity in the theft of four ladders, 40 gallons of tar and a wooden gate from Melville Edwards of Lang on Hallowe'en night.

One of the boys, Jack Knox, had been convicted at a previous session. Today Neil Edwards, Keith Pimmett, Harold Wallbridge and Tom Weir after a conference decided to change their pleas to guilty and in each of the five cases Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry asked for suspended sentence.

Since the last session of the court, the ladders, tar and gate which had been removed from Edwards' property on Hallowe'en had been returned to their owner.

In placing the boys on probation for a year Magistrate Langley said that while he felt they were decent young fellows they had been guilty of very foolish conduct, especially when they had refused to return the property that had been taken away. Had they done that, he pointed out, there would have been no charges laid and all the trouble that eventually arose would have been averted.

"If there is amoung you boys, or the others who were acquitted, or anybody else a spirit of recrimination, that is a desire to get even with this man because he laid these charges," said the magistrate, "I just want to say that such a course would be acting the part of hoodlums and would be contrary to the spirit in which you are being allowed to go today. The law has a long arm and you must not think you can fool the crown officers."

'This is not a threat. I am merely pointing out to you the desirability of you acting the part of good citizens and of regarding this incident closed from today."

In conclusion His Worship remarked that there had been nothing particularly brave or clever in what the boys had done. The owner of the property was away on the night in question so that they ran no risk in carrying off his things.

Omemee Honors Great War Dead

BALMY BEACH DEFEATS NATIONALS BY 14 TO 6 FOR FIRST LOSS

Mustangs Trim McGill Team In Second Upset

By Sydney Gruson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

In any resume of the eastern football season that may be made after champions are declared, the gallant fight of University of Western Ontario Mustangs in the Intercollegiate Union will rank high whether or not they finally win the college championship.

As the East closed its regular schedules on Saturday, paving the way for opening of the playoffs this week, the last two unbeaten teams fell before inspired opposition. Western spilled one of them, their 16-6 victory over McGill Redmen being the outstanding result of the day's program.

Aside from this, the only semblance of an upset was Toronto Balmy Beaches 14-6 triumph over the otherwise unbeaten Nationals. It was not altogether unexpected, however, for Balmy lost their first game to Nationals by a single point and many thought officials were wrong then in ruling their last-play placement wide.

Ottawa Rough Riders, crushing Montreal Cubs 18-3 at Montreal, and Toronto Argonauts, forced to go all out to defeat Tigers 24-8 at Hamilton, completed the preliminaries to the opening of their Interprovincial Union playoffs at Toronto next Saturday. University of Toronto, out of championship consideration for the first time in six years, handed Queens their sixth straight beat 13-10.

Back to Wall.

Mustangs were a desperate team on their home grounds on Saturday. To force a playoff for the title they had to stop a crimson tide that rolled over all opposition until this game. They found their inspiration in burly Jim Farmer, who sparked their ground machine and personally accounted for 13 points.

Allowing McGill in the lead through Herb. Westman's single for only a short time in the first quarter, Mustangs struck swiftly for their touchdown. Clem Faust, with Joe King and Farmer catching, pitched them into scoring range and Farmer got over from close up on second down.

Ahead 6-1 by the end of the quarter, Western never faltered. Mixing ground power and fancy backfield work, they were close enough for the two field-goal tries—one successful and the other producing a point—in the second and then got a 35-yard field goal from Faust in the third quarter to offset part of Andy Anton's touchdown for McGill.

The Redmen marched a long way for that one, setting the ball eight yards out after Westman hurled a 45-yard pass to Jimmy Hall. Farmer completed his scoring outburst with a fourth-quarter field goal from the 25.

May Do It Again.

The impressive manner in which Western won left them at least an even chance to whip the Redmen again in their sudden-death game at Montreal for the championship. Queen's abdicated without a single victory. Though nothing was at stake, the Tricolor and Toronto fought bitterly in their final game. Charley Prince's three singles in the last quarter, when a rising wind blew at his back, decided the issue.

Art Stollery, who scored eight points, was the main cog in the Tricolor machine that led twice and went into the final 15 minutes with the score 10-10. Norm Beattie got a touchdown for Toronto.

Nationals commanded the game against Beaches for 55 minutes, then they fumbled twice and Syd Reynolds and Sammy Sward scored touchdowns quickly.

Nationals finished in a tie with Sarnia Imperials for first place in the Ontario Union and will start a two-game, total points series for the title at home Saturday. Imperials and Nationals tied twice in their two meetings this season.

Sarnia, whose status was in doubt until a meeting of the executive in Toronto Sunday cleared up the case of Henry (Hi) Living, closed out their regular schedule by trouncing Peterborough Orfuns 59-0 Friday. Their action in playing Living against Orfuns despite orders to the contrary brought them a $50 fine yesterday.

Living's eligibility under the residence rule had been questioned but proof was presented the executive meeting that he was born in Hafford, Sask., and not at Holly, Mich., as charged in information given the O.R.F.U. Friday night. The special meeting decided he would be allowed in the Union playoffs, but that the Canadian Rugby Union would have to rule on his eligibility if Imperials advanced to the eastern final.

Tigers gave Argos a surprising fight, leading 3-1 at half time. But Art West, Red Storey, Bernie Thornton and Johnny Munro each got a touchdown in the second half to squelch the threat. Riders had little trouble at Montreal, unleasing just enough power to score touchdowns in each of the first three quarters. Andy Tommy, Tommy Taley and Bunny Wadsworth got them.

Riders and Argos will open the Union playoffs at Toronto Saturday, moving to Ottawa the following week for the second game of the total-points series.

The section's scoring championship rested for the second successive season with Hugh (Bummer) Stirling of Sarnia who accounted for 11 points against Peterborough. Stirling finished with 42 points from two touchdowns, three field goals, 17 singles and six converts to lead Annis Stukus of Argos by 11 points. Westman took the College division by two points over Farmer, 24-22.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

RUGBY CLEATS around town are being stored away, along with other grid equipment, now as the local football season hath ended. It wound up Saturday shortly before five o'clock in the Exhibition Grounds, with a beaten Bowmanville team the victor and a successful P.C.I. squad the loser. On account of P.C.I. won the game 17-6 here Saturday but had lost the first by a 24-5 count a week before in Bowmanville. So the group final series went to the husky B.H.S. crew—and we wish 'em well. But they were lucky enough to survive, a poor tilt by our Collegians in the Rubbertown field being responsible. The locals earned the victory handily Saturday and might well have copped the round. Yep, quite handily.

NELS FOSTER was pitching and he threw a flock of fine strikes but the catchers couldn't always hold him up. His receivers let too many pigskins bounce out of their arms or off their mitts when in position to go for a little 40-yard romp had they held 'em. Foster flings a lovely forward, whether it be the long looper (ala Ab Box) or the short flat smokeball. And he hurled plenty in this tussle. However, the P.C.I.-ers went down fighting—and that's something we like to write about any losing team. They were lighter than their rivals, rather inexperienced and just in the building-up process, but they went out in a blaze of glory. The odds were a bit too big, that's all.

Wind And More Wind!

IT WAS A DANDY GAME to watch, despite a wind that bristled with icicles on a non-stop flight from the North Pole. And despite official arguments that nearly ruined the performance for fans and players. Far too many arguments altogether. It was the same in the first clash of these clubs. The boys on both teams played a hard rugged game, with the tricky P.C.I.-ers having a good margin. After the first frame, the B.H.S. lads had a tough job holding them, though Bowmanville put a real classy team on the field. They were big, smart and speedy. And they knew the game. But the Garnet and Grey were battling with their backs to the wall and had some fine coaching to aid them. Coach H. L. Bamforth did a good job in a short time this season, after losing most of his 1937 champions.

* * * * * *

WE LIKED THE WORK of Foster, Moldaver, Leether, Scriver, Harle and Diplock a lot, with the rest close behind. Harle's running and Foster's throwing caught the fancy of this corner as local features. While Crombie, Brown, C. McIlveen, Kimble and Mason were the pick of the visitors, in our opinion. That lad Mason is a sweetheart—but don't say so to his face or he'll smack you into the middle of next week! The P.C.I. student body gave the team fine backing, with a band, parades, plenty of colors, noise-makers, cheer leaders and a halftime snake-dance on the gridiron. They did it up right. Must have been better than 2,000 on deck, including plenty of old grads an just plain ordinary rugby rooters. They like the P.C.I. razzle dazzle play—and they saw lots of it Saturday. Tough luck, P.C.I.-ers!

Remember The Orfuns?

ORFUNS had themselves a pretty fair trip—after that Sarnia thing was over—the past week-end. Club supplied ducats for them at the Beaches-Nats' game and for the pro hockey in Toronto at night. Many of the boys took side excursions here and there, like to Fort Huron, Windsor and Detroit. And arrived home last evening. Club will hold a windup meeting ere long and will proceed at once with rebuilding work for next season. No excuses were offered by Coach Bill Irwin and Co. except that injuries to key men put them back pretty close to the intermediate class—and Sarnia Imps were really rolling in this contest. When they lost here they were below form, with Stirling at his worst, while Orfuns were at full strength and clicking like dice at a nigger session. Friday saw a crippled Orfuns' gang unable to do anything right while the inspired Imps were unbeatable. Don Crowe will have his ankle X-rayed today; but it's not thought broken.

* * * * * *

NATS AND IMPS will playoff for the group title, first game in Montreal next Saturday aft. The big Nationals took their first beating of the season in Toronto over the week-end when the bruising Balmies waded through 'em for a 14-6 win. Two fumbles gave Toronto touchdowns. Now the Beaches are more convinced than ever that they "wuz robbed" in Montreal. Sarnia Imperials proved to an O.R.F.U. executive committee yesterday in the Royal York—with Ott Cranfield and Walter Jackson representing the Petes—that Hi Living was born in Canada, not the States. So he was okayed by the O.R.F.U., but the Imps were fined 50 bucks for using him against Orfuns when told not to do so. He worked in the States less than a year ago, so the C.R.U. may not permit him to play later if Sarnia should enter Canadian playdowns. It's a sort of odd case.

* * * * * *

Our Sympathy, Bishops!

DOWN IN ST. CATHARINES on Saturday, Ridley Collitch handed Bishop's College School of Quebec a 101-0 pasting—which should make the Orfuns feel heaps better. Bishops came to St. Kitts with but one reverse in the current season, but the Frenchmen were never within two miles of making it interesting. En passant, may we point out to some of the outside critics who ask most pointedly what happened Orfuns in Sarnia—after previously beating the Imps here—that no club in the loop would look good with its backfield shot to smithereens through injuries and two of the star linemen on the injured list. How would Beaches look without Box, Sward, Manorek and Humphries? Or the Nats minus Mullins, Ferraro, Hempey and Burns? Or Sarnia with Stirling, Hedgewick, Golab and Parsons on the sidelines? To say nothing of lack of weight and experience by a new squad, which was inspired one day to beat Sarnia and gain a measure of undying fame for the year.

RIVERVIEW A.C. is staging another amateur mitt card at the Brock this Friday eve, with one rasslin' match betwixt Rene Labelle and Ren Gabelley, good Canadian heavies. Nick Orlando meets Auggie Ferguson of Toronto in the main fistic melee, and Norm Hill tackles Buster Scott of the Queen City in another headliner. Hill lives here now but hails from Detroit; he nearly played for Orfuns as a forward-passer, but wasn't eligible. Dutch McIlmoyle tackles Frank Spencely in the semi-final, a sort of grudge affair as Spencely questions McIlmoyle's claim to being best 165-pounder of the district. Pat Jordan tackles Bill Joiner and Bobby Quirt fights Buddy Redmond in prelims. Ringside half a slug, general 35 with ladies and children two bits. More on it again.

UP AND DOWN Sports' Rialto: More open tricky play in rugby seen here Sat'day than in all previous local grid tilts this year.... On Friday and Saturday of this week the Eastern Ontario Scouters' conference will be held at All Saints' Parish hall. It is expected that about 100 will attend, covering the district from Oshawa to Prince Edward County, and the lakeshore to Campbellford and Havelock.

All Peterborough scouters and assistants are expected to attend and the scouters are responsible for registration. Each has received a card and should co-operate with the committee by mailing this without delay. Every group committeeman is invited to attend and the scouters should make it their busines sto ask them personally, and to register accordingly, as no doubt the committee wish to give the ladies who are providing the closing banquet an idea how many to provide for. So why not attend to that little matter without delay?

Also Reverend Sirs, to whose churches the group are attached. It is thought that attendance at divine service in a body of the cubs, scouts and rovers on the Sunday morning following the close of the conference would be a fitting finish to the occasion, so could I not suggest that you all invite your scout officers to carry out such a service. I am sure it would be appreciated.

It is the hope of the local association that the conference will prove very successful as it is the first such conference to be held east of Toronto; and to all scout officers, it is your sincere co-operation that will bring about its success.

Last Thursday a meeting of the scouters' club was held and although the attendance was not up to what it should be, a very pleasant meeting was enjoyed. It was the annual meeting and the new officers were to be elected.

Mr. William C. English, the new president of the local association, was present and accorded a hearty welcome. Mr. English thanked those present for the honor conferred upon him and asked their loyal support during the coming year.

District Commissioner J. T. Hornsby took the chair during the election of officers, while Mr. English and Scouter Athey acted as scrutineers. The following officers were elected: G. Brooks, president; Miss Whalon, vice president; G. Grady, secretary; A. H. Shurrock, treasurer; L. A. Grant, auditor; Mrs. Langhorne, social convener; S. Legfett, entertainment committee; P. Dominic, telephone committee.

Many points were discussed; the main one being a social evening and Christmas party of the scouters' club to be held at the next monthly meeting. Mrs. Langhorne and her capable committee served refreshments.

The St. Andrew's troop are still pushing ahead and have now completed their patrol corners. The competition is keen and although the Beavers won out by 2½ points last month, they are only tied with the Bulldogs with 31 each so far for the month.

Jack Dinsdale and Bill Crowe passed their scouts pace; Jack Hill, scout stave and its uses; Jim English, the Union Jack, knots and whipping. Jack Ridyard has completed his tenderfoot tests and is ready for investiture; and Ralph Green, scout stave and knots.

The Rev. Dr. Young paid the troop a visit and spoke to them on Armistice Day.

The All Saints' cub pack will meet at 6.30 sharp on Friday next. The scouters' conferenec will not interfere with the pack meeting. At present the Brown six with Bill Panter in charge and the Yellow six under Stan Alexander are tied with 39 points apiece.

The All Saints' rover crew, under the leadership of Mr. Cutmore travelled to Kawartha boys' camp and did a little herring fishing. It was reported that 10 men in a war canoe caught two wee herrings, while Doug. Loomis and his mate in a small canoe caught 27. Coming out, the party slowly followed a skunk that kept them company for about one-quarter mile before it decided they were not worth the scent.

At St. John's crew, the boys all concentrated on the map of Peterborough and it will only take another night or so to complete it ready for touching up.

The completed map will be about 6 feet by 7 feet and will be used as an official guide map.

It was decided to hold a card party at the skipper's home. Mrs. Groombridge had kindly offered to open house for this occasion, and any friends who would like to assist the crew in raising funds, please phone 3067 and reserve a table.

Flag relay, circle bag, and train relay games were included in the program of games and instruction that was held in the St. John's cub pack on Friday last. Several boys passed tests in knot tying, time telling and compass work. The tickets on the afghan are going well, several cubs applying for more.

The St. John's troop were active with P.T. and first-aid instruction under the guidance of Ken Brown. A.S.M. Tom Hooper got himself tied up in knot explaining how not to tie them. Stroyan Leith was in his element when he built up a morse buzzer system with a laud speaker attachment for instructional purposes. S.M. Fred Ford is holidaying in Montreal and the troop all wish him the best of everything.

Don't forget: Scouters conference Friday and Saturday; banquet Saturday night. Mail your registration early and state how many will be there. This includes troop committee men and all interested. Scouters, get to it.

St. John's Rover crew card party at the skipper's, Thursday, phone 3067 for reservations.

Anyone having some cub sweaters for sale please phone 3067. One pack would like to secure two sweaters, sizes 30 or 32, or if you have any uniform you desire to sell or exchange, let me know and I will do my best to dispose of same.

All cub and scout masters are reminded that articles are wanted for Scoutcraft show, to be held at the scouters' conference on Friday and Saturday. Models of all kinds, art, crafts, collections or what have you? Bring same to All Saints Parish hall between 5 and 8 o'clock p.m. Friday afternoon, November 18, when arrangements will be made to receive same.—The Skipper.

Coaches Grads

Big things are expected in Western Canada hockey circles this winter with new groups, new rinks, new leaders and typical prairie enthusiasm spelling success for the 1938-39 season. Clem Loughlin, who once did the bench leading for Chicago Black Hawks, looks after the same chores for Edmonton Eskimos.

Cook's Barons Headed For Big Year

At this quite early date in hockey way, it still seems fairly safe to predict another banner year for Bill Cook and his Cleveland Barons. The Barons set some sort of record last season in losing only one of all their home games, while finishing first in their section of the International-American League.

The Barons are out on top again to-day in their grouping, after picking up three points with a victory and a draw over the week-end. They set down New Haven Eagles 7-1 last night after drawing 3-3 the previous night with Syracuse Stars, Philadelphia Ramblers, picking up a victory in their only start, remained unbeaten in four games and at the top of the other section.

The Ramblers topped Providence Reds 3-2 Saturday, while the Reds came back last night for a victory by the same score over Springfield Indians. The Indians split on the week-end, however, with a 4-2 victory over Eagles. Pittsburgh Hornets suffered a double set-back, losing 3-1 to Hershey Bears and 1-0 to Stars last night.

Earl Bartholome led the Barons against the Eagles with three goals while Bob Blake tallied twice and Mickey Blake and Phil Hergesheimer each got one. Ed Ambois got the only Eagle score. Mickey Blake and Hergesheimer each scored once against Stars, while Paul Runge got the other Cleveland goal. Star's scorers were Eddie Convey, Pete Langelee and Doran.

Wally Kilrea, Kalbfleisch and Mackie scored the markers that brought Hershey victory over Pittsburgh, while the lone Hornet goal came from Abel. A second period goal by Norm Locking gave the Stars their victory over Hornets. It was the first victory in five starts for the stars.

Ramblers needed a goal by Bill Carse in overtime to give them victory over the Reds. In the regulation time Lude Wareing and Allen scored for Ramblers, while Johnny Shewchuk and Art Jackson tallied for the Reds. Shewchuk was the big gun in the Reds win over Springfield, with two goals while the other went to Starr. Tommy Filmore and Wilson scored for the Indians.

LOCAL GRID SEASON ENDS AS BOWMANVILLE OUSTS P.C.I. TEAM

P.C.I.'s Garnet And Gray Squad Takes 17-6 Decision But Loses Out On The Round

The rugby season ended here Saturday when P.C.I. senior gridders beat Bowmanville by a 17-6 score but lost their playoff series by eight points. The Bowmanville boys had copped the first of the home-and-home Lakeshore group finals a week previous by a 24-5 count, and they took the round 30 to 22.

Over 2,000 fans at the Exhibition grounds—including an enthusiastic home student body from the Collegiate, with band, colors, cheer leaders, etc.—witnessed a fine football fixture. It was an open, exciting brand of the autumn classic with the Garnet and Gray gridders earning the victory and coming close to sewing up the series before they bowed out for the year.

Coach Bamforth's band battled hard in a tense tussle, dishing up plenty of razzle dazzle and trick running plays, while flinging a flock of forward passes. Bowmanville scored an early touchdown to take a 6-0 game lead in the first quarter, but they were blanked the rest of the way. With P.C.I. meantime getting 11 points in the second heat, one in the third and five more in the fourth.

Couldn't Catch

Inability to catch many of the fine forward heaves tossed by Nels Foster probably cost P.C.I. the series. The lanky backfielder for the locals flipped the leather lemon frequently on long lobs and on flat last throws, but a number were dropped by potential receivers when practically in the clear. The game was highly exciting all the way, but too many arguments by the officials threatened to ruin it for the enthusiastic fans. The husky Bowmanville boys battled gamely and managed to hang on grimly to their narrowing lead toward the finish.

Outstanding for the Collegians were Foster, Harle, Leether, Scriver, Moldaver and Diplock. With the rest of the gang turning in an almost equally brilliant grid performance as the season terminated. Brown, C. McIlveen, Crombie and Kimble looked extra good for the visitors, but Mason at quarterback shone throughout with his smart playing.

Early in the first quarter, Brown ripped off nearly 40 yards on an end run to midfield. They were forced to kick later and P.C.I. began a march up the field till D. McIlveen intercepted a local forward and raced 30 yards to the shadows of the local home goal posts. Crombie bucked over for a major count, with a Mason-to-Wiseman forward converting it. Play see-sawed back and forth the rest of the frame with no further scoring.

Go To Work

A desperate P.C.I. crowd went to work in the second heat and dominated play throughout. The home line stopped Bowmanville cold on their 40 and got possession. Foster threw a long forward right across the field on a fake end run and Scriver roped it in and galloped 15 for a try, but the convert missed. Kimble intercepted another forward but they lost it later. Diplock received a 12-yard toss by Foster and ran eight to the B.H.S. 30 yard strip. A kick was partly blocked but they recovered, losing then on downs. After a hoof by Brown, P.C.I. forged up, after each side fumbled, to lay the pigskin on the enemy 30-yard chalk. A short forward was complete on interference and Foster reeled off 10 around end. Harle plunged through for a touchdown, Moldaver booting the convert to make it 11-6.

In the hard-fought third, full of official arguments as fans shivered in the cold wind, P.C.I. started strong with a 15-yard forward from Foster to Parnall. Leether booted a long one and Harle rouged Brown for a point. Harle drew a penalty in the tackle. C. McIlveen of Bowmanville bucked 15 and Mason flipped a forward pass to Crawford at centre. P.C.I. blocked Brown kick on his 45 and got the ball. Leether dashed off 30 around end on an extension and an onside kick advanced the sphere to the 5-yard mark. They banged away at the big Bowmanville line but lost on downs and Mason and C. McIlveen each raced 10 on neat gallops as the quarter ended.

The P.C.I. stock soared high in the furious fourth when Harle early grabbed up a kick in the rival area and pounded the turf on a 30-yard sprint to be grassed about five out from the money line. In a semi-sleeper play, Foster pitched the oval to Leether for a try, but the convert missed fire. The count was 17-6 and ended that way. Harle ran back a kick 20 and Scriver bucked 12 to midfield. On a hoof, Mason got 15 on the runback and they bumped the ball down the fairway. A Foster-Leether forward gained 15 but C. McIlveen jumped and intercepted another to run 10 to P.C.I.'s 35. A Mason-Crawford forward was called back as arguments continued. Brown got 10 skirting the short end but they lost on downs later. Foster and Leether combined for two forwards and play was in Bowmanville territory at the finish. The teams:

Nationals' Backfield Ace

One of the best newcomers to break into the Eastern Canada senior gridiron picture this year has been Jimmy Riddell, ABOVE, kicking quarterback with Montreal Nationals, powerful "baby" of the O.R.F.U. A good all-round backfielder, Jimmy has played a sound game all season for the undefeated Nats and should figure prominently in the group playoffs against Sarnia Imperials.

Notre Dame Blue Devils, Tennessee All Win By Whitewashes

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—On the principle that late-season games between major United States college football teams hardly can be tagged upsets no matter what the outcome, the past week-end's results can be classified most simply as those which more clearly established claims of leadership and those which merely jumbled section rankings.

Under the former heading come Notre Dame's 19-0 trouncing of Minnesota, lending added support to the claim this is Notre Dame's best team since the late Knute Rockne's 1930 outfit; Duke's 21-0 defeat of Syracuse, a result that showed conclusi[illegible] that the unbeaten, untied and unscored-on Blue Devils belong with the United States' best; Tennessee's 14-0 conquest of Vanderbilt, proof the volunteers could win under pressure and a big let-up on the Southeastern conference championship, Oklahoma's 21-0 job on Missouri, which put the unconquered sooners out in front in the Bix Six, and Texas Christian's 28-6 walloping of Texas, which added, if superfluous evidence is needed, to the Horned Frogs' preeminence in southwest circles.

Trojans In Tie.

In Group Two were Washington's 7-6 victory over Southern California, dropping the Trojans back into a tie with California for the Pacific Coast Conference lead; the 32-14 trimming Ohio State handed Illinois to leave the five Big Ten teams with a chance to share in a title probably to be decided when Minnesota battles Wisconsin Saturday, and a whole series of eastern scores which left that sector's standings neatly muddled.

Cornell, Carnegie Tech and Villanova took on added lustre. The Ithacans knocked Dartmouth off its all-winning pinnacle, 14-7, and thus are left needing only a Thanksgiving Day triumph over Pennsylvania for the "Ivy League" title. Tech and the Wildcats were equally impressive in turning back Duquesne, 21-0, and Temple, 20-7, respectively.

Principal surprise in the East was the decisiveness with which Princeton beat Yale, 20-7, as the Tigers showed the more effective aerial game.

Imps Get Off On $50 Fine; Living Stays

TORONTO, Nov. 14 (C.P.). — Treasury of Sarnia Imperials was $50 light to-day, but Henry (Hi) Living, giant snapback for the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior champions of last year, will be able to play in the league finals against Montreal Nations.

A special meeting of the O.R.F.U. here yesterday, called to investigate charges that Living was ineligible under the residence rule, pushed away the clouds of doubt and gave the player a "clean bill."

But the Imps, who risked suspension by playing Living in the final schedule game of the season on Friday with Peterborough Orfuns, were fined $50 for disobeying an edict of league officials ordering Living to the sidelines until he had been proved eligible. The Imps' management also apologized to the league for fielding Living.

The special meeting was called on information received that Living was born in Holly, Mich., and did not enter Canada until April 12, 1938. Residence rules of the Canadian Rugby Union call on an "import" to maintain continuous residence in Canada for one year prior to October 1 of the playing year.

Born in the West.

In answer to a sworn statement, Living told the meeting yesterday: "I am a Canadian and was born in Hafford, Sask. The fellow who conducted the investigation made an untrue statement when he said I was born in Holly."

Should Sarnia defeat Montreal to enter the Canadian playdowns, trouble may develop again over the Living situation. Living was said to have entered Sarnia last April 12. The C.R.U. residence rule says that "no player shall be eligible for a team in Canadian Rugby Union competition who has not continuously resided in Canada for at least one year prior to October 1 of the current playing season."

If Imps had been punished by suspension, it was considered a certainty Toronto Balmy Beach, who finshed third in the league, would have been invited to participate in the playoffs with Montreal or been offered a sudden-death playoff with Sarnia. They wouldn't have accepted, however.

E. Floyd Muirhead, president of the Beach Club, told the meeting that "even were we granted a concession and allowed a sudden-death game with Sarnia—which we do not want—my team will play no more this year. We were beaten fairly and squarely by Sarnia twice."

DeGruchy Presides.

President John DeGruchy presided at the meeting with Secretary Harold Bailey assisting. Representing Imperials were Ross W. Gray, M.P., West Lambton; Maurice Chilton, Frank Prendergast, Gordon Cole, Art Massucci, Jack Baker, Bud Phippen, and Living.

Desse Whitty and Fred Godwin acted for Fred Porter, Montreal, and H. C. Cranfield and Bill Irwin represented Peterborough. A special advisory committee consisted of George Ballard of Hamilton, president of the C.R.U.; Bobby Hewitson, secretary of the C.R.U.; and Father F. M. Lynch, vice-president of the O.R.F.U.

The meeting decided that Sarnia and Montreal would begin their home-and-home total-point series for the league title in Montreal on Saturday, with the return game in Sarnia the following Saturday. Overtime will be played if the teams remain tied at the end of the 120 minutes of play.

Rising Star

Biggest gain in the 1938 tennis rankings made in England was that of Margot Lumb, ABOVE, who was placed second to Peggy Scriven, after being No. 11 on the list the previous year. Miss Lumb's last noteworthy feat was the elimination of Helen Jacobs in the U.S. singles championships in September. Bunny Austin headed the men's rankings.

Football Point Rule To Hold

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 14.—(CP) — Rule-makers for United States college football will consider no elimination of the point-after-touchdown rule, Fielding H. Yost, University of Michigan athletic director and members of the National Football Rules Committee said today.

Yost added he would oppose any move for the change when the rules committee meets some time this winter. Elimination of the extra point, Yost said, was urged by persons opposed to one point victories, and people who said the extra point was unearned.

Yost said he thought any sort of decision better than a tie game and perfect coordination of blockers and the kicker was required to score the extra point.

Yost, in further defence of the point, explained that only four times since 1884 when the numerical system of deciding football games was introduced, has the rules committee changed the scoring system. Yost traced the history of footbal scoring as follows:

In 1884 a touchdown was raised to the value of a field goal and a safety was increased to two points where it stood. The point-after-touchdown was reduced to one point.

"And there it remained for 41 years," Yost said. "In this period the extra point has been argued back and forth but there never has been a widespread movement to oust it from the rule books."

Yost, in conclusion, explained that in 1904 the field goal was reduced to four points and in 1909 to three, its present value. The last change in rules, he said, was made in 1912 when the touchdown was increased from five to six points.

Whiskery Rangers Shock Detroiters To Take 4-3 Victory; Leafs Nick Canadiens By 4-1

By Jack Calder
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Delilah may have been doing more than she reckoned when she destroyed Samson's will to win by lopping off his beard. She may have put ideas into the heads of people around the National Hockey League of 1938-39, who soon may want to stop New York Rangers in the middle of a winning streak.

If Rangers continue as boldly as they began their schedule last night, when they came from behind to whip the Red Wings 4-3 at Detroit, Manager Lester Patrick will have to put a guard on his bearded defencemen to protect them from scissors-wielders. Or maybe M. Lestaire wouldn't mind so much, since he'd save $500 if his son, Murray, and Art Coulter were to lose their whiskers.

It all started innocently when the players kidded Coulter about his short hair back in Winnipeg training camp. Art said he could raise as good a crop as anyone and the boss jokingly offered him $500 to let his beard grow. Then he included young Muzz in the fuzz by putting up the money for the one who let his beard grow the longer.

A Beautiful Display.

Through careful watering and raking, they have cultivated luxurious growths that went on display last night at Detroit's aghast Olympic. They say they're determined to keep the foliage for the season and split the money.

Muzz was the only one of the two who figured in a goal, aiding Neil Colville in the winning one. But Coulter expects big things about the time he has sufficient growth to hide the puck in it.

Two goals by Ebbie Goodfellow brought Detroit an early lead and the Broadway Blueshirts didn't start to click until late in the second period. Then Alex Shibicky scored and Cecil Dillon, Lynn Patrick and Colville shipped in successive goals in the third to produce a 4-2 lead. In a desperate late bid, Marty Barry scored for Detroit, but the Wings couldn't pierce Davie Kerr's guard again as they recorded their third loss in three starts.

Defeat left Detroit pointless beside Montreal Canadiens, who dropped their third and fourth straight during the weekend to the Maple Leafs at Toronto and the Black Hawks at Chicago. Harvey Jackson scored three times in Leafs' 4-1 victory Saturday and Johnny Gottselig duplicated that when Hawks whipped Canadiens 4-3 last night.

Chicago's 4th Win.

Chicago, winning for the fourth successive time, took a four-point lead over the second-place Boston Bruins, New York Americans and Toronto. Americans stopped the Bruins' streak at two games by defeating them 2-1 as 15,000 spectators at New York got their first hockey taste of the new season.

Canadiens, skating as fast as they had been expected to when everyone was touting them, still lacked punch at the goal mouth until too late. Jackson whipped in one goal and aided Gus Marker on another in the first period at Toronto. After Toe Blake scored for the Habitants in the second, Jackson strode in from left wing for two more in the third that stamped him for all the world like the Busher of a few seasons back.

Gottselig, also a veteran left-winger, pinched Canadiens into defeat early with two first-period goals. Again Blake rallied them in the second by scoring, but King Levinsky added to the Chicago total before the period was over. Gottselig tallied again in the third and when George Mantha and Babe Siebert pushed goals past Mike Karakas in the last three minutes, but the bid was too late.

Little Eddie Wiseman was the most prominent in the American's win. He passed to Lorne Carr for the opening goal in the first period and converted a relay from Nels Stewart and Tommy Anderson in the second. Busher Hollett scored from Gordie Pettinger for Boston in the third and in the closing seconds Bruins tried to tie by pulling Tiny Thompson from goal and putting six forwards on the ice.

IN MEMORIAM

CARTER. — In loving memory of Mrs. F. J. Carter, who passed away November 12, 1937.

Our hearts still ache with sadness,
Our eyes shed many a tear,
God alone knows how we miss you
As it ends our first sad year.
Happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memories still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.

—Sadly missed by Husband and Son.

RAPER.—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Grace Raper, who passed away one year ago to-day, November 14, 1937.

Just beyond the river Jordan,
Just across its chilling tide,
There's a land of life eternal.
Thro' its vales sweet waters glide
By the crystal river flowing,
Grows the tree of life so fair,
Many loved ones wait our coming
In the Upper Garden there.

—Sadly missed by husband, George Raper, and Family.

LITTLE.—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Mathew Little, who died two year sago to-day, November 14, 1936.

The face I loved is now laid low,
Her loving voice is still,
The hand so often clasped in mine
Lies low in death's cold chill.
I often sit and think of her
When I am all alone,
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.

—Ever remembered by her daughter, Mrs. M. Dwyer.

Mission Circle Anniversary

Mission Circle night was observed last night in St. James United Church when Rev. Walter R. Tristram, as guest speaker on the occasion of their 20th anniversary.

Assisting the pastor, Rev. F. W. Craik, in the opening devotions, were Miss Jessie Martin, president of the V.L. Circle, and Miss Jean Rose, who read the scripture lesson from the 12th chapter of Romans.

Special missionary music, led by Cecil Lapp, organist and choir leader, added to the spirit of the service. "My Faith Looks Up To Thee," with Mrs. H. F. Doig and Mrs. Ernest Kitney, soloists, was the beautiful anthem by the choir and a trio, "The Church By the Side of the Road," in fine voice was rendered by Mrs. G. Butcher, Messrs. J. M. Arnold and Gerald Cuff.

"Christ the Universal Savior," was the fitting missionary theme chosen by Rev. Mr. Tristram, based upon Mathew 16:18, where Jesus is speaking about His church.

The optimism of Christ is worth contemplating in these days of pessimistic moods, said the speaker. Christ believes that ultimately His Kingdom should triumph and righteousness prevail, for His Kingdom is built upon truth and not upon armaments and force.

The first great cornerstone upon which Jesus built His faith was faith in God. The greatest need in the present generation is to know what we mean by God. Jesus came to reveal Him—not a nationalistic God nor one of any ism, but God the Father. The second cornerstone upon which Jesus built was faith in Himself. Some of his "I ams" show this—as "I Am the Light Of the World." Then, too, Jesus had faith in His message of redeeming love by forgiveness. This message He has committed to us.

Lastly, Jesus had faith in man. No one suffered so much at the hands of man as Jesus did, yet He dared to commit His Kingdom into their hands.

Tonight, he said, we meet under the auspices of the Mission Circle, who are seeking to help and to save those in whom Jesus had faith.

In closing, Mr. Tristram spoke of the wonderful work of Albert Schweitzer in Africa, which he will illustrate in his lecture on "Life On the Congo" tonight.

Referring to the great missionary, he said, the gospel of deeds means more than the gospel of words. Christ has given His Kingdom into our frail hands. Are we worthy of the trust.

Continuing in this birthday anniversary the X.L. Mission Circle is presenting in picture and story, the most primitive people of the world, some of whom are still cannibals, as told from personal experiences of Rev. Mr. Tristram, who was for many years a trader in the French Congo and will bring a real missionary message in St. James Sunday school hall tonight.

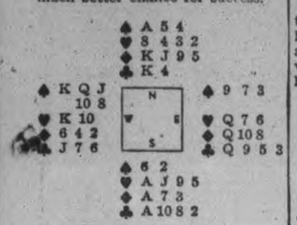
PLACING AN HONOR

ONE DEFENDER'S LEAD of a small card during the play of your suit bid makes it likely that his partner holds any particular honor in the suit led. This is because we all hate to sacrifice our honors by leading away from them. Making such simple inferences may steer us away from losing finesses and impel us to build up lead-throwers or other forms of end plays with a much better chance for success.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

Four Hearts was the final contract by North and South on this deal, South having opened with 1-Heart, North jumping to 3-Hearts and South bidding 4-Hearts.

The spade K was led by West and taken with dummy's A. Next came the lead of the heart 2 and the 9 lost to West's 10. After cashing the spade Q, West switched to the diamond 2. This play indicated to declarer that the Q was held by East, so the 5 was played from dummy and the A from the South hand. Next came leads of the club K, club A and a club ruff in dummy. The heart 3 was played to the A and followed by a club ruff in the North and a spade ruff in the South. Then East was put in the lead with the heart Q. East had nothing to return but a diamond.

As declarer could observe from the start, it was possible that he had to lose two trumps, one spade and one diamond, but the end play was a sure thing no matter who held the queen.

India's Outcasts Not Treated As Vilely As Jews In Germany, Minister Declares

The outcasts of India have never been treated as vilely as the Jews of Germany, declared Rev. H. E. Stillwell, Secretary of the Canadian Baptist Foreign Mission Board, who was special speaker at Murray Street Baptist Church Sunday.

A missionary in India for more than two decades, the speaker told that he had believed the no-caste natives there to be the most pitiable people in existence until he read of the German atrocities committed against Jews. "Nothing has ever been done to the outcasts of India that could compare with the German attitude toward Jews," he declared at the evening service. In the morning he offered a prayer for some solution to their suffering, and in it he deplored the brutal treatment they are receiving at the hands of the Nazis.

Telling of the work of the missionaries in India at the evening services, he paid deep tribute to Mahatma G. K. Ghandi, great Indian leader, who he admitted was no Christian but a man who was swinging still further away from the doctrines of Christianity than ever in his life. He told of the uprising of the outcast class in India, claimed it was due to three factors which he defined as being the penetration of India by European Countries, the influence of Ghandi, and the preaching of the missionaries from Christian lands.

The sixty million underprivileged natives are now achieving a unity that threatens the domination of the caste class, he said. He related that until a few years ago these people had believed they actually were not fit for human association and in consequence had lived in squalor that they did not attempt to check. Ghandi, a man born of high caste, adopted one of their number as his own daughter, defying all tradition, and made himself the most revered man in all India by his work among these unfortunates, he said. He told of the general awakening among these masses, claimed a part of the credit for the missionaries for whose assistance he was asking.

The uprising going on in India now is the greatest spiritual revival in the history of the world, he claimed, and added that all over the world a similar revival is taking place. He believed that the democracies of Europe are now entering a great period of revival, in opposition to the materialistic outlook of dictator nations. "And we are on the winning side," he said. "There isn't any doubt about it. Evil is not stronger than good."

Rudyard Kipling was the prophet of the British people and his message is as potent today as it was two decades and more ago. Such was the opinion expressed by Rev. Mr. Stillwell, at the morning service.

He said he had gone to that country forty years ago when Kipling was approaching the height of his fame as a writer and interpreter of the British authority. The message that he gave at that time might well be accepted today, he said after reading parts of Kipling's Recessional. The peoples of other lands are indeed watching England today, as at the time the writer was living, and will take advantage of any weakness she shows.

Never in the history of the world has there been a greater danger that men's personal freedom will be taken away from them than today, the speaker said. The struggle was against dictator nations with their extreme efficiency, pitted against rather loosely-knit democracies, he warned. All the world, and particularly dictator nations, might well say "Be with us yet, lest we forget —lest we forget," the speaker said.

On This Date

A century ago today the battle of Windmill Point, near Prescott, was in its second day. The American invaders under the leadership of Von Schoultz, a Polish exile of noble birth, who had been seduced by Bill Johnson and other conspirators to "free Canada from British tryanny," had landed near the windmill on Sunday, Nov. 11, and had entrenched themselves near the mill. The local militia arrived the next day, but it was the end of the week before they compelled surrender.

On Tuesday, the 13th, the filibusters had been forced to take refuge in the mill after a severe fight on the point. There was a truce on the 14th, to enable each side to bury its dead, but the battle was renewed on the 15th, with 117 inside the mill, besieged by the gallant local militia. It was not until Friday, the 16th, that the Americans decided they had had enough and surrendered. Marched to Prescott in single file attached to one long rope, they were put on show for the townsfolk before they were taken to Kingston and Fort Henry. In due course there were court martials. Von Schoultz and several others were hanged and many others were transported to Van Dieman's Land.

Two Are Being Held Series Of Thefts

LINDSAY, Ont., Nov. 14—(CP). —Arrest last night of William Reid and Fred Piper, both of Bolton, Ont., by Provincial Constable David Adair and William Kennedy has cleaned up a series of breaking, entering and thefts in the Lindsay district during the past week, Constable Adair said to-day.

The men, arrested when in possession of a car stolen in Peterborough last Saturday, appeared in court to-day and were remanded until November 21. They were charged with breaking and entering a service station at Manilla, a chopping mill at Dunsford, and a service station on the Fenelon Highway.

Five Are Arrested Gaming House Raid

BRANTFORD, Ont., Nov. 14—(C. P.). — Five men were held in custody here to-day on charges of keeping a gaming house following a police raid on premises on the outskirts of Brantford known as the Old Valley Inn. Dice and other alleged gambling equipment and $1,300 in cash were seized.

Three automobile loads of Provincial Police officers participated in the raid at 1 a.m. to-day. The constables surrounded the building, seized two "lookout men" and raided the premises before players alleged to have been throwing dice could be warned. Two officers were in the building before the raid took place.

Pampered Co-eds Puzzle Aussies

WINNIPEG, Nov. 14—(CP).—Most puzzling feature of campus life in Western Canada is the pedestal on which Canadian University men seem to have placed their co-eds, think H. R. W. Robson and F. F. Thonemann, Australian debating team now making a tour of Canadian universities.

"In Australia we just drag them around," they grinned here. To send a corsage to a girl before a dance was unheard of, and to make a date for anything but a formal function just wasn't done.

There are lots of jitterbugs floating around the University of Melbourne, where Thonemann is studying law.

"Why, we introduced the Big Apple to Melbourne in our university review last spring," he said.

Latest fad among the students was playing marbles. "They were all at it around the campus when we sailed."

Cavan Institute Hears Report Port Hope Trip

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAVAN, Nov. 14.—Twenty-nine members of the Cavan Women's Institute met at Mrs. R. S. Staples' home for their November meeting. The meeting opened with the president, Mrs. Donald Tinney in the chair.

Mrs. R. Matchett reported on the visit made to Hill Crest Lodge, Port Hope, by four members of the Cavan Institute on donation day. The visitors were shown through the institution and the superintendent gave an interesting report of their work. A great many donations of fruit, vegetables and other articles were received on that day by the Lodge. Afternoon tea was served by a group of local ladies.

The institution is maintained by United Counties excepting for a grant of $600 from the province. It was decided to give a donation of fruit or clothing to the Shelter, each member to leave her donation at Mrs. Donald Tinney's home by December 15.

It was requested that at the next meeting members should contribute some good recipes for candy.

The next meeting will be in charge of Mrs. Oakley Carley's group. The roll call will be "any favorite verse or poem from Hymn or Scripture."

Mrs. C. Smith was in charge of the program. Mrs. Melville Carr gave a report on the second day's course on "Buymanship." Mrs. K. Braithwaite gave a paper on "The cost of the last war in men and money."

Mrs. Mervin Smith contributed a paper on "What Women can do to prevent war." Mrs. R. S. Staples read a poem on "Foreboding."

Lunch was served by the group in charge and the usual social hour enjoyed.

Send Bale West From Janetville

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, Nov. 14.—Mrs. Vernon Laing of Omemee, vice president of the W.M.S. of the Lindsay Presbtyerial was the guest speaker at the November meeting of the Women's Missionary Society which was held at the home of Mrs. James Howe with 25 ladies present. The president, Mrs. J. Nicholson presided and after the devotional exercises the program was left in charge of Mrs. M. Armstrong's group. Missionary readings were given and a piano solo "The Wayside Chapel" by Miss Bessie Howe was also enjoyed.

Mrs. Laing in her splendid address gave a report of "The School for Leadership" which she had attended at Whitby during the summer and concluded with an appropriate poem "The House Inside".

Mrs. Connell, president of the Omemee Branch of the W.M.S. brought greetings from their society and presented a timely message on peace. She stated that before we can have peace in the world we must have peace in our communities, peace in our societies and peace in our homes. Mrs. Weir of Omemee was also present. The vote of thanks to the visitors was voiced by the president, Mrs. Nicholson.

Afternoon tea was served by the group in charge and later the articles for the bale which had been contributed by the ladies of the church was valued and packed into two bales. These included nine new quilts, serveral crib quilts, a complete new layette as well as other new and made over garments of excellent quality. The bale was valued at $100,000 and will be sent to the west immediately.

A concert is planned for the near future, the proceeds of which it is hoped will complete the allocation for this year. Miss Ada Morgan, R.N. of Bella Bella, B.C. will be the special speaker.

Condemned To Die From Assassin's Gun Man Is Rescued Saying His Prayers

PHILADEHPIA, Nov. 14—(AP).—Police kept in custody for his own safety to-day a 26-year-old man who said he was "taken for a ride" to a gangland "burial ground," then dramatically rescued by two policemen seconds before expiration of a two-minutes' grace for "saying his prayers."

The man, Joseph Pugliese, told Detective-Lieutenant James Ryan he was on his knees, pleading for his life, when a slight noise distracted the aattention of his three captors and gave him an opportunity to snatch a pistol from one of them and fire two shots which brought the policemen to his aid.

Policemen Harry Bossert and John Brady heard the shots as they were cruising past the isloted city dump where the drama took place yesterday. They captured the three men and later took into custody a fourth.

The lieutenant quoted Pugliese as saying he believed the attempt on his life resulted from his threat to disclose activities of a Philadelphia liquor gang. Pugliese, Ryan said, was not connected with the gang.

Manion Holds London For Tories

Karl Homuth Carries Waterloo Seat Liberal Wins In West

TORONTO, November 15—(CP)—Canada's House of Commons was at its full strength to 245 to-day, with Prime Minister Mackenzie King's Liberal Government holding a greater number of seats than any administration since Confederation 71 years ago.

Federal by-elections yesterday in Ontario and Manitoba added another supported to Government ranks to raise to 180 their record representation and left the Conservative banner flying in two constituencies. There was a Liberal acclamation in a fourth Quebec riding.

Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, National Conservative party leader, was elected in traditionally Conservative London, winning in the face of what he labelled a "campaign of falsehood and misrepresentation carried on by Mr. Woodsworth (J. S. Woodsworth) and his crowd" of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation. Liberals did not contest the seat.

In what he said was a "good, clean fight" in the Brandon by-election, James Ewen Matthews, 69-year-old retired insurance man and native of Albany, P.E.I., wrested the seat from the Conservatives, leaving them with two Western Canada representatives, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett in Calgary West and Ernest Edward Perley in Qu'Appelle.

Homuth Is Victor

Karl K. Homuth, 44-year-old Preston industrialist and former Labor and Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature, overwhelmed two opponents to keep Waterloo South on the Conservative side of Commons. His opponents, Mayor R. K. Serviss of Galt, Liberal, and John Mitchell of Hamilton, chairman of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation of Ontario, both lost their deposits by failing to poll half of the victor's total vote.

Peter Bercovitch, veteran Liberal member of the Quebec provincial legislature who resigned to move into the federal political field, was returned by acclamation a week ago in Montreal-Cartier where the fourth by-election was to have been held.

Prime Minister King received news of the election at Ottawa. He did not comment on the Conservative wins but said the Matthews' victory in Manitoba was a "striking endorsation of the policies and record of the government, and, in particular, of its present efforts to conclude a broad and comprehensive

Changsha Burns To Foil Japs

SHANGHAI, Nov. 15 — (AP). — Changsha, capital of Hunan province and next major objective of the Japanese, appeared to-day to be doomed to destruction by fire before the Japanese arrive.

Fragmentary advices reaching Shanghai indicated the populace of the city was panic stricken at the prospect of quick entry by the invaders, while Chinese troops burned buildings in keeping with their "scorched earth" policy.

The majority of the foreign residents were said to have taken refuge in the Standard Oil installations on the banks of the Siang River outside the city, where they were guarded by the British gunboat Candpiper.

A group of foreign missionaries, however, remained within the compound of the American Hunan Bible Institute, inside the walls of the burning city where it was believed they would be reasonably safe.

The principal foreign area, located on Shiuluchow Island, was understood to have been subjected to peril of looting when retreating Chinese troops began to cross the river by way of the island. It was believed foreign property was not fired, however.

Japanese reported their advance from the north continued without serious opposition and said they expected to reach the Hunan capital by Friday or Saturday.

Lindbergh Hunts Furnished Berlin Flat For Winter's Stay With Family

Berlin, Nov. 15 (AP)

COLONEL Charles A. Lindbergh is hunting for a residence in Berlin for a winter's stay for himself and his family, it became known today.

Col. Lindbergh came to Berlin last month and received the Nazi order of the German eagle, one of Germany's highest decorations.

Ever since the noted aviator left for France Oct. 29, officials of the German air force have been seeking to find accommodations for Lindbergh and his family.

Because of the vast Nazi building program for Berlin whole streets have been evacuated with a consequent shortage of suitable flats.

Friends said the recent abandonment of many Jewish homes might make available apartments for rent.

Nazi Press Hurls Arab Deal Back At Britain

By Lynn Heinzerling
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

BERLIN, Nov. 15. —(AP)— The German press coupled the widening drive to remove Jews from the Reich's social and economic life today to a vigorous attack upon "cruelties" attributed to British administration of her colonies—some of them until the Great War under German rule.

The editorials were in answer to British resentment against the Nazi anti-Jewish drive, which continues with Jews haunted by secret police, shorn of business connections, ordered to keep out of theatres, expelled from schools, facing a $4,000,000,000 levy on their wealth — and in despair awaiting new restrictive decrees under preparation.

Nazis here considered the return home of the United States ambassador, Hugh Wilson, who will leave Sunday, to be a formal visit planned before the Jewish question became acute. (Washington political quarters held, however, that the summons home was a direct consequence of the anti-Semitic drive.)

The press counter-attack followed upon the disclosure by Prime Minister Chamberlain before the House of Commons yesterday that his government made a strong protest against similar Nazi press attacks.

Chancellor Hitler's newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, led a number of other papers in the chorus against Great Britain with an article under the headline "Inhuman Suppression Methods of English Against the Arabs."

Famed Morocco Dancer Beauty Gone Held As Torturer

Fez, Morocco, Nov. 15 (CP-Havas)

MOULAY HASSEN, once famed as a beauty and a dancer, stood in the criminal dock yesterday to answer charges of murder and torture of women she kept in an establishment in the native quarter of Heknes.

The exact number of women she is alleged to have killed is not known, but four deaths occurred at her house and parts of bodies were found nearby.

Once the toast of French officers in the days of Moroccan warfare, Moulay Hassen achieved such popularity that she was rumored proposed for the Legion of Honor.

According to legend, one one occasion she hid several French officers in her house when natives were pursuing them during an Arab revolt. Her beauty gone and her body heavy, she appeared prematurely old when she appeared in court.

Moulay Hassen emphatically denied all charges.

Islington Youth Lost On Hunt In Haliburton

LINDSAY, Ont., Nov. 15 (C.P.).—Jack Ringland, 19, of Islington, Ont., was the object of a wide search today on Scrabble Mountain, Haliburton County, after disappearance on Sunday from the hunting camp of Sam Bryant at the head of Sheldon's Lake. Hunting parties in the district abandoned search for deer to scour the district for Ringland.

A police party, under Provincial Constable David Adair of Lindsay, started searching this morning. Word of the disappearance of Ringland reached Norland Village last night and search parties were arranged.

Hearst Art Treasure Placed On Display

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP). — World-famous exhibits from William Randolph Hearst's vast art collection went on public display for the first time here today on 57th Street, New York's "art gallery row."

The pieces exhibited for sale on five floors of the Parish-Watson galleries included rare tapestries, paintings of many schools, stained glass dating back to 1390, armor and mediaeval carving.

The 74-year-old publisher decided last March to disperse about $15,000,000 worth of his art collection, on which he spent much of his recreation time for many years. His rare manuscripts soon will go on display at another gallery.

Kennedy Advocates Moving Thousands Of Jews To Empire And Americas

U.S. Envoy Presses London To Take Lead Saving Victims Of Nazi Hate; Rumor States To Let In 30,000 At Once

LONDON, Nov. 15 (AP).—The British Government today gave urgent consideration to a bold scheme under which the United States and the British Empire would find homes for thousands of German Jews seeking refuge from violence and restrictive laws in Germany.

The United States Ambassador to Great Britain, Joseph Kennedy, working day and night on the problem since the latest wave of anti-Jewish violence began, was believed to be the author of the plan.

It was understood on the highest authority that Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Halifax, after a long session with the Ambassador, had agreed to cooperate in the plan to move thousands of Jews.

Mr. Kennedy spent last weekend with Malcolm Macdonald, secretary for the Dominions and Colonies, who is immediately concerned with the problem in Palestine and the general refugee situation.

Yesterday Mr. Kennedy also saw Sir Horace Wilson, the close adviser who accompanied Mr. Chamberlain on his historic visits to Germany to confer with Chancellor Hitler.

Wants Britain to Lead

In government circles it was said that United States ambassador was influencing the British government toward taking the lead in dealing with the plight of the Jews.

The "Kennedy plan," it was understood, aims at moving Jews by ten sof thousands into the British Empire and into North and South America.

Every major nation will be asked to take as many German Jews as possible in an effort to move most of the Jews out of Germany.

A conference may be called to discuss the problem in the light of the Nazis' recent anti-Jewish measures, officially explained as retaliation for the killing of a German embassy secretary in Paris by a young Polish Jew.

In order to take care of many urgent cases, however, some Jews may be moved at once into British colonies and the United States. The support of France and the Netherlands has been sought.

Mr. Chamberlain, it was explained, now is seeking support of the Dominions for the plan.

Reports in London said the United States was ready to admit 30,000 Jews. It was believed Mr. Kennedy stressed the urgency of settling the question at once.

King, Premier Welcome Carol To London

LONDON, Nov. 15 (AP) — King Carol and Crown Prince Michael of Rumania arrived today on a state visit to further Anglo-Rumanian ties at a time when Germany's economic push to the east has been regarded as threatening the neutral complexion of Carol's country.

King George, attended by Prime Minister Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary Halifax and other high officials, personally welcomed his visitors at Victoria Station, redcarpeted and flood-lighted for the occasion.

After an inspection of the guard of honor, the British and Rumanian kings entered an open state carriage for the ride to Buckingham Palace. Prince Michael rode in the second of five carriages forming the procession. Thousands lined the route.

Father Drowns As Son Watches

HAMILTON, Nov. 15 (CP).—When his canoe tipped as he was placing decoys on the lake early this morning, Reginald Stratford, manager of the Yellow Cab Company of Hamilton, drowned as his 10-year-old son watched.

Mr. Stratford had risen early to go duck hunting on Lake Ontario below Stoney Creek. He had put out about 20 decoys when one of them was noticed to be out of line. He went out in the canoe again to straighten it and fell out of the boat. His son saw the incident and attempted to wade out, but the water was too deep.

Missing Farmer Found Murdered

SINTALUTA, Sask., Nov. 15 (CP). — A body believed that of J. A. Kaiser, 65-year-old Moosomin farmer, missing since he set out from Regina by automobile for his home last Wednesday, was found yesterday in a clump of willows near this town 50 miles east of Regina.

Kaiser's blood-stained car was found abandoned in Winnipeg late Saturday and police theorized he had picked up a hitch-hiker, who attacked and killed the farmer, threw his body from the car and drove on to the Manitoba capital. No motive was suggested.

Mrs. Percy Trout, farm woman, found the body, she told police, when she heard a broadcast description of Kaiser's car, remembered seeing an automobile in the fields near her home on Wednesday, and went to investigate.

Japs Suggest India In Asiatic "League"

TOKYO, Nov. 15 — (AP). — The central committee of the Social Mass party, one of the three leading

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Nov. 15.—to-day that Asia, including India and the Philippines, be linked in an Asiatic "league."

The committee prepared a resolution to be voted on by the party convention next week.

"The solution of the China incident will not be found in political and economic inter-relations between Japan, China and Manchoukuo, but in total Asiatic construction." The declaration read:

"With the coming East Asia Confederacy as a base (Japan, her Manchoukuo protectorate and the parts of China she controls), Asiatic nations like India, Siam and the Philippines should be united within the framework of the Asiatic league."

Written Too Much, Load On Conscience Lord Tweedsmuir Confesses

Ottawa, Nov. 15 (CP)

LORD TWEEDSMUIR whimsically confessed to the Canadian Association for Adult Education that he has written "far, far too many books."

"I have a terrible weight on my conscience in the shape of a number of books," the governor-general told the association last night.

"I suppose I have been everything in my time connected with books. I have made printing machinery, I have been a printer, a publisher, I have owned a paper, I have been a writer, I have reviewed books. I think there is nothing about books I haven't done and I have written far, far too many.

"But when I have said that, let me hasten to add that the written word is one of the greatest things in the world. It provides a stable faith in the shifting sands on which we stand today."

Island Shelters Hunters, Saves Two Lives

ORILLIA, Ont., Nov. 15 (CP). — Harry Howe and Zenith Woodsworth told today how they battled huge waves on Lake Couchiching in an attempt to reach the mainland and safety and how they crouched, half-frozen, over a flickering fire on a little island in the lake as they waited for a blizzard to blow itself out.

The men came ashore here late yesterday after being stranded on Chief Island since Sunday night. The storm came up as they left for the island and by the time they prepared to return it was blowing a full gale. On one attempt to launch their power-driven skiff, the boat was blown back upon the island.

"It was though our boat was a chip and our motor a toy," said Howe. "It did not take us long to realize that to attempt to beat the storm in the boat we had was to just go begging for death. We got back on the island and stayed there."

The men shivered on the island all night, crouched in the shelter of a duck blind. It was to build a shooting blind of their own that they had gone to the island. When they got there, they found others hunters had erected a blind at the spot they previously had selected. The blind gave Howe and Woodsworth shelter during the storm.

Into a Blizzard.

By morning the gale had turned into a blizzard. "It was a darn long night," said Howe. "The later it got, the colder it got, and the colder it got, the higher blew the wind. You couldn't hear yourself think, far less talk. The wind in the trees, and the water smashing against the rocks made the night a bedlam."

For something to do—Howe and Woodsworth said they knew beacons could not be seen through the blizzard on the mainland, three miles distant—the men lit huge signal fires on the beach. The fires flared and burned themselves out but they had served their purpose. Howe and Woodsworth had kept themselves moving.

During the afternoon, they decided to chance the passage again. "To tell the truth, before we were halfway across that gap of open water, neither Woodsworth nor I had any hope of ever making it," Howe said of the return trip. "The waves were running four and five feet high. It was absolutely impossible to steer."

C.I.O. Makes No Move To Appease A.F. Of L.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15—(AP).—The Committee for Industrial Organization convention to-day adopted its "peace" committee's report which did not recommend any new steps to heal the breach with the American Federation of Labor.

The delegates adopted the report unanimously by a standing vote.

The report, read by Philip Murray, vice chairman of the convention, declared there could be "no compromise" with the C.I.O.'s "fundamental purpose and aim of organizing workers into powerful industrial unions, nor with its obligation to fully protect the rights and interests of all its members and affiliated organizations." It added:

"The C.I.O. accepts the goal of unity in the labor movement and declared any program for the attainment of such a goal must embrace as an essential prelude those fundamental purposes and principles."

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (A.P.). — The voice of Beniamino Gigli, great Italian tenor who left the Metropolitan Opera Company in a huff six years ago, will ring through the Opera House again this season.

Edward Johnson, general manager of the company and native of Guelph, Ont., announced Gigli would return to the "Met" to sing once in each of the coming season's five regular subscription series in January and February.

Dissatisfaction with his salary caused Gigli to leave the Metropolitan in 1932.

Find British Premiers Are Older Now Than Century Ago

London, Nov. 14.

BRITAIN'S Prime Ministers are older now than they were a century ago, according to a Ministry of Health report dealing with vital statistics for 1937.

Sir Arthur MacNaulty, chief medical officer to the ministry, made this point to illustrate expectation of life had increased over the past 100 years.

"Of the 10 statesmen who obtained the office of Prime Minister in the first 38 years of the 19th century, five were under 50," he wrote. "Of the eight who did so in the corresponding part of the 20th century not one was under 50."

Decree Powers Until 1942 Daladier's Aim

PARIS, Nov. 15 (AP)—A plan to give Premier Edouard Daladier extraordinary powers within the framework of Republican government was pushed in French parliamentary circles today by his friends.

Under the plan, reported to have been favorably received by Daladier, the chamber of deputies elections scheduled for the spring of 1940 would be postponed two years. In return, the deputies would vote Daladier a continuation of his decree powers until 1942.

Deputies who favored the plan held it contained the only possibility for the premier to push through his reforms in domestic and foreign policy.

This move was launched as the foreign office issued two decrees which deputies interpreted as an indication that Daladier was going steadily ahead with his campaign to make friends with Germany, despite the Nazi drive against Jews.

One of the decrees permits the foreign ministry to start prosecution of newspapers publishing statements considered offensive to the head of a foreign state. Government opponents charged this was an attempt to gag that part of the press critical of Chancellor Hitler.

The other, authorizing closed hearings of court cases "likely to have international repercussions," was admitted by foreign office quarters to have been designed for the trial of Herschel Grynszpan, assassin of Ernst Von Rath, secretary of the German embassy in Paris.

The foreign office was reported to be worried over the possibility an open trial might lead to complications with Germany.

The Communist newspaper L'Humanite charged that Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet had issued instructions that stories of anti-Jewish activity in Germany be toned down to prevent Berlin authorities from taking offence.

Young Artist Recovers

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 15.—(CP). —News was received here today that Herbert A. Webster, 28, had recovered from an amnesia attack in Los Angeles and would return to his home here in several days. The young Canadian artist walked into a Los Angeles police station a week ago and asked to be identified.

A certificate from the Ontario College of Art at Toronto identified Webster. His father, Harry A. Webster, assessment commissioner here, left as soon as possible for Los Angeles. He completed the identification.

French-Nazi Pact Near To Ban War

Binds Two Nations To Arbitration Ends Boundary Tiff

PARIS, Nov. 15 (AP)—A French government spokesman announced today a basis had been reached for an accord between France and Germany renouncing war against each other and hinted it would not be long before it came into force.

This was the first official confirmation that conversations which have been going on since shortly after the Munich accord of Sept. 29 have brought their objective—the renunciation of war agreement—within sight.

A foreign office spokesman said the contemplated pact would constitute an important step in the development of the Munich accord, which saved European peace at the price of Czechoslovakia's dismemberment. He explained it would extend the principle of peaceful solution of international problems to cover other potential sources of trouble.

The spokesman said the pact would pledge France and Germany to use peaceful means for settlement of any disputes that may arise between them. It would declare there is no frontier problem between the two countries, based on statements made by Chancellor Hitler during the September crisis that Germany would not lay claim again to Alsace-Lorraine.

It was disclosed Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet had a long talk last night with Baron Ernst Von Weizsaecker, state secretary in the German foreign office. The German official came to Paris as Hitler's representative at funeral services for Ernst Von Rath, third secretary of the Germany embassy killed by a young Polish Jew.

It was believed the talk dealt with the war renunciation accord.

Inside Lottery Story Bared

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 15 (CP).—Inside story of the national transportation mutual believed by police to be a pro nce-wide lottery with headquarters n London, was told in city court today. The evidence was brought out at the preliminary hearing of Adolph Kamann, London and his son Louis Kamann, 29, of Tecumseh.

At first the Kamanns were charged with selling lottery tickets, but today the charge was changed to operating a lottery. Both asked for trial by judge and jury. Magistrate Donald Menzies heard crown evidence and decided there was sufficient to send the two to trial by a higher court.

Bail for the two men had been set at $6,000 each. The father managed to post his bail and has been out of jail for the past week. But the son was still in custody when the preliminary hearing opened.

The court studied lists of persons in all parts of Ontario who were said to have won prizes in the transportation mutual. The prosecution tried to show that this was a lottery operated by the two Kamanns and that prizes totalled nearly $4,000 a month.

Top prize each month was $700. An interesting sidelight was thrown on the awards for October. The list showed that $700 had been paid as first prize to C. E. Fitzgeerald of Windsor. Evidence showed that seven $100 money orders had been sent to the winner. The crown produced a check for $150 drawn on a Tecumseh bank, payable to Louis Kamann and said to have been issued by "C. Fitzgerald."

The Kamanns will likely be tried next January unless they change their election and ask for trial by a judge without a jury.

Girl-Murder Mystery Is Revived In Charging Of Star Witness

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—(CP)—Reopening of police inquiry into the slaying eight years ago of a little girl led to the scheduled arraignment today on a murder charge of a man once the crown's star witness when a member of a religious order went on trial twice for the crime, winning acquittal at second trial.

Police disclosed last night they had arrested Antonio Godon, 28, on a warrant charging the dish-washer and kitchen helper with the murder of eight-year-old Simone Caron. The girl's body, mutilated and decomposed, was found in a sack in the cellar of a school at nearby Pointe-aux-Trembles late in 1930.

Godon, working as a kitchen aide in the school at the time, testified for the crown at the two trials of Rev. Brother Dosithee, found guilty the first time but who won acquittal on appeal and returned to his native Belgium.

Authorities revealed last night that the case was reopened six months ago by Quebec Attorney-General's Department in conjunction with the provincial police. It had been listed as "unsolved" since acquittal of Brother Dosithee. The girl's body was found Sept. 18, 1930, in a potato sack stuffed in a cupboard at Roussin Academy. Many of her bones had been broken and she had been assaulted criminally.

Son Tries To Save Dad Both Get Jailed In Morphine Raid

Hamilton, Nov. 15 (CP)

"DANIEL GASBARRINI said, 'Why take him? That stuff is mine. A man gave me some money to keep it,'" Detective-Sergeant A. J. Stretton, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, quoted the 17-year-old son of Luigi Gasbarrini, Hamilton, as telling him when the premises were searched for heroin in the afternoon of Nov. 3.

So both father and son were then arrested, the officer told the court today. They elected trial by judge and jury for having diacetyl morphine, or heroin capsules in a trunk in a back bedroom at a Sheaffe street address, and Magistrate H. A. Burbidge committed them for trial after hearing evidence called by Theo L. McCombs, K.C., prosecutor under the opium and narcotic drug act. Accused were released on bail of $4.00 0each.

Move For Periodical Testing Of Car Drivers To Come Before Ontario Trade Leaders

TORONTO, Nov. 15.—(CP)—Legislation compelling periodical examination of automobile drivers after issuance of their permits is advocated in resolution scheduled to come up before the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce convention here Nov. 17 and 18.

The resolution points out that the original permit is issued there is no means available until after the occurrence of an accident, to ascertain any change which may have taken place in the physical or mental condition of a driver. The resolution also urges periodical checking of automobiles.

Another resolution favors a reforestation scheme under governmental auspices, to replace the wood now being taken from the forests of Ontario. Owen Sound Board of Trade will offer a suggestion that uniformity on the matter of daylight saving time be established through the province.

Hamilton Chamber of Commerce will seek establishment of Monday holidays for Victoria Day, the King's Birthday Dominion Day and Remembrance Day, irrespective of the actual dates on which they fall.

Dominion Bows To Italy On Ethiopia

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Nov. 15 (CP Cable).—When the Earl of Perth presents new diplomatic credentials at Rome tomorrow it will involve Canada in the official recognition of Italy's conquest of Ethiopia.

The credentials will be in the form of a letter from King George to King Vittorio Emanuele, advising the "King of Italy and Emperor of Ethiopia" that Lord Perth is the diplomatic representative in Rome for all parts of the British Empire except South Africa and Eire, which have Ministers of their own.

The letter will not mention Canada or any other dominion by name but government officials gave the opinion Canada would be included in the recognition of the Italian King's new status.

It is reported here that New Zealand had opposed recognition of the Italian conquest but if the government of that dominion wished to take an independent stand it would be necessary to appoint a Minister of its own with credentials to the "King of Italy," without mentioning the Emperor of Ethiopia.

South Africa already has taken steps to give new credentials to its Minister at Rome. Eire took the formal step several months ago.

Actually Lord Perth has no credentials at present. He took credentials from King George V. and King Edward but the problem of Britain's recognition of the conquest of Ethiopia was sidestepped by giving him no credentials from the present King.

See New Building For Premier's Offices

OTTAWA, Nov. 15 (CP).—Erection of a new government building to house the offices of the Prime Minister, the Privy Council and the External Affairs Department was forecast here last night by Jacques Greber, Paris town-planner and consulting architect for the beautification of Ottawa plan, speaking before L'Alliance Francais. These offices are at present located in the old east block.

He said the new building would be located as close as possible to the Parliament Buildings.

Reviewing possible developments in the beautification scheme, Mr. Greber said the new Supreme Court of Canada building, for which excavation has started a few hundred yards west of Parliament Hill, will be an imposing structure overlooking the Ottawa River.

The mile-long cliff along the Ottawa River from the Rideau Canal to Chaudiere Falls will be transformed into a public garden, where large terraces would cover underground garages "so much needed in this area," he said.

He predicted that Wellington Street, the capital's tree-lined avenue which passes in front of the Parliament Buildings, will become Ottawa's finest thoroughfare. Mr. Greber also suggested that a large building such as a national art gallery, a museum of a national theatre be erected on the south side of the plaze in downtown Ottawa, where the National War Memorial is located.

South Africa has run short of irrigated tracts for new settlers.

Paris until the end of the week. He will have further talks with Bonnet and is expected to take with him final instructions on which the accord can be drawn up.

The Foreign Office spokesman said the Franco-German accord would closely parallel the agreement signed at Munich Sept. 30 by Hitler and Prime Minister Chamberlain, recording the desires of their people never to go to war with one another again.

The spokesman was less specific on the prospects of an accord between France and Italy. The Mediterranean problem, he said, was "more complicated" and might require considerable preparation. But he pointed out that a long step in that direction had been taken by the recent exchange of ambassadors by the two powers after a lapse of nearly two years.

France's new ambassador to Rome, Andrew Francois-Poncet, whose credentials contained French recognition of Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, was said to have begun work on Franco-Italian problems, immediately after assuming his post, in talks with Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano.

B.C. Legion Proposes Sweepstake Plan

VICTORIA, Nov. 15 (CP)—British Columbia executive of the Canadian Legion yesterday asked the provincial government for permission to operate sweepstakes or lotteries as a means of providing work for unemployed veterans who would act as ticket salesmen.

A delegation of 16, headed by Robert MacNichol, secretary, submitted a brief to the cabinet urging the sweepstake scheme because the Dominion had failed to implement the report of the veterans' assistance commission.

The sweepstakes, they said, could be operated, one or more a year, under supervision of provincial police. War veterans would be authorized by the government to act as salesmen and be paid from proceeds.

Cocktail Raid

CINCINNATI, Nov. 15—(AP). —When Otto Palm returned home, this was the crime scene: four empty glasses, an empty vermouth bottle, a seriously depleted supply of cherries, and four pints of whisky missing. His deduction, as reported to police, was that the burglars liked Manhattan cocktails.

Death Foiled

Following a threat made by her father to jump over Niagara Falls with her in his arms, Nora Petersen, 4, is now in a welfare home at Niagara Falls, N.Y. Jobless and discouraged, the child's father, Edwin Petersen, is reported to have refused several offers of adoption for the child.

Civil Service Irks Kirby

TORONTO, Nov. 15—(CP).—Hon. Harold J. Kirby, Ontario Health Minister, told the Ontario Civil Service Veterans' Association last night that he was dissatisfied with the civil service system in Canada.

"I don't like the set-up of the civil service in Canada," Mr. Kirby said. "I believe we can always utilize the knowledge of the British system of government, and as far as the civil service in this country is concerned, we can make no mistake in making a close study of the civil service in Great Britain."

"It is certain that no one in the West wants war—least of all the majority of the German people," Col. F. Fraser Hunter, Toronto, said. "Meantime, thanks to the vicious, petty cowardly pacifist minds, proven poltroons of the last great war who now on our platforms are loudest in their screams for blood, we start from scratch.

Pastors Protest

DETROIT, Nov. 15—(CP).—The Detroit Pastors' Union has forwarded a request to the United States Government to protest "in the name of God and humanity to the German Government and beg the cessation of this inhuman cruelty to our fellow-men." The resolution contained condemnation of the recent series of attacks on Jewish people by the German government.

Youth At Death's Door After Waves Fill Boat, Drown Girl, 2 Pals

SUDBURY, Ont., Nov. 15—(CP).—Search parties gathered on the desolate, wind-swept shore of Lake Penage to-day to comb the icy waters for the bodies of three Sudbury young persons who perished when their boat capsized.

Meanwhile Omer Boucher, only one to reach shore of four who set out on an adventurous motorboat party Sunday, lay critically ill of pneumonia in hospital here. The 25-year-old athlete's rugged constitution wa sall that saved his life after the ordeal of climing for hours to the boat, then wandering aimlessly with clothes frozen still along the wooded shore.

Believed to have slipped one by one to death in 60 feet of black, turbulent water were Miss Grace Senior, 25; Doug. Butchart, 25, and Allan Duncan, 22.

Boucher, his teeth chattering as he huddled in the cabin of a plane chartered by The Sudbury Star that rushed him 30 miles to hospital here yesterday, could tell little of what happened. But he murmured: "I'm afraid they're drowned."

Search for the other three was abandoned when Boucher was found beside the lake. Searchers

Largest Entries In History At Winter Fair

TORONTO, Nov. 15 (C.P.). — The Royal Winter Fair—annual display of Canada's finest live stock and agricultural products — opened its doors to-day on the largest list of entries in history. The 17th successive year of the show will close on November 23.

Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec will officially open the Fair in a blaze of color to-night in the Horse Show ring, following a parade by the Royal Canadian Dragoons and six international military teams. Bright-hued evening gowns and formal wear in the audience will mingle with military uniforms and the scarlet coats of hunt teams.

Actually, the Fair opens bright and early—it's Children's Day—and judging of cattle, horses, swine, dairy products, fruits, vegetables, flowers and seeds will continue to long after nightfall.

So large is the entry list in the horse section that the Horse Palace cannot accommodate all entries, and approximately 100 animals are quartered elsewhere. The cattle annex is bulging with thousands of pounds of prize blueblood stock.

Lady Elgin, wife of Lord Elgin, who is here to judge Aberdeen-Angus cattle, will open an exhibition of the Canadian Handicraft Association to-night. Lady Elgin was in charge of the women's section of the Empire Exhibition at Glasgow, Scotland.

Fruit and flower displays, fox shows and poultry shows are also larger than any previous year. Judging of the 278 foxes from the best ranches in Canada will begin to-day and a grand champion will be selected on Friday.

Detroit Business Swings Upward

DETROIT, Nov. 15—(CP).—Detroit Board of Commerce reported today business improvement here during the past three months has exceeded any similar three months on record, new high ground for 1938 was reached in mid-September and each successive week since then has established a new high for the year.

Reports on Detroit's economc situation are watched closely as statisticians have learned this city reflects more clearly than any other state of the nation's business.

This week for the first time automobile production figures exceeded those of the same period a year ago. Detroit's business chart is a graph on which all the lines are curving upwards, the report showed. Many of the business factors, like street railway traffic, steel mill activity, banking business, are expected to exceed 1937 records by the end of the month.

Further evidence of Detroit's upward swing came from the county court where 2,000 persons jammed the court rooms to make payments on judgments against them. Court officials said more people were paying their debts than ever and court hours would be extended until 9 p.m. to enable workers to appear in court to make payments.

Veteran Doctor 99 Now Aims At 100

HARTFORD, Mich., Nov. 15 (C. P.). — Dr. John McLean, Canadian-born medical veteran of Michigan, started cheerfully towards his last major goal, his 100th birthday, today with felicitations of three generations of residents whom he has served here still ringing in his ears. Dr. McLean celebrated his 99th birthday yesterday in full possession of his faculties, but physically weak.

Born in Kingston, Ont., November 14, 1839, he lived there until he was 25 when he left to attend the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. He studied also at the University of Toronto.

Dr. McLean joined the Masonic Lodge at Aylmer, Ont., 77 years ago and now is the oldest Mason in Michigan.

He set his goal of living 100 years on his 90th birthday, and has checked off each birthday as a milestone on his path. He attributed his good health and long life to never worrying, and always remaining cheerful.

Day Fights Beer Vote

TORONTO, November 15—(CP)—Mayor Ralph Day ruled in city council last night that a city-wide plebiscite plan, whereby Toronto electors would vote Jan. 2 to decide whether beverage rooms here would close at 10 p.m. instead of midnight, was no concern of the municipality and the city had no legal right to put the question to a vote. Alderman Stewart Smith, who suggested the plan, said he intended to force city council to vote either for or against the proposed early-closing plan.

United Counties Are Opposed To Pasteurization

(By a Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Nov. 15.—Expressing gratitude for the exceedingly favorable autumn weather, Warden J. F. George opened the final sessions of the Counties Council here Monday afternoon with a full attendance of its forty members. The meeting was advanced from December for the first time in modern records of the council, primarily to provide more time for Counties Clerk E. L. MacNachtan to wind up the 1938 work and prepare for the incoming council in January.

The members are planning a banquet Wednesday night for Warden George, the first Reeve of Murray Township to attain the highest honor in the united counties' gift, and also the youngest warden in their long history.

A resolution by Deputy-Reeve Roy Dodge, Cobourg, conveyed through the Secretary of State an invitation to King George and Queen Elizabeth to include the counties town in the itinerary of Canada next spring.

The Natural Milk Producers' Association asked support of their opposition to the compulsory feature of pasteurization which becomes effective throughout rural Ontario on January 1 next. The association plans a provincial wide protest and sought the names of two producers and two consumers from Northumberland and Durham to assist them.

The Agricultural Committee last night endorsed the association's resolution of protest to the government on a motion by Deputy-Reeve P. A. Gooding of Murray, seconded by Reeve Ed. Ball, Millbrook. Members said pasteurization was an un-

Births In England Show Increase

LONDON, Nov. 15 (CP) — The birth rate in England and Wales in 1937 was the highest since 1932, according to the annual report of Sir Arthur MacNalty, chief medical officer to the ministry of health.

The report also said maternal mortality in 1937 was the lowest ever recorded. The death date rose as well as the birth rate but the natural increase in the population was 100,963.

Births increased by 5,265 compared with 1936 and the rate was 14.9 per thousand against 15.3 in 1932. The death rate was 12.4, showing an increase of 13,810 compared with 1936.

The maternal mortality rate — 3.13 per thousand total births—showed a further drop. The number of mothers who died was 1,988, the first time the figure had ever fallen below 2,000.

Correspondingly the infant mortality rate fell from 59 in 1936 to 58 compared with the record low rate of 57 in 1935. The number of children who died under one year of age was 35,176, more than 10,000 less than the figure only 10 years ago.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 15 (C.P.). — Bullish outside market influence and Canadian wheat export sales, estimated at 1,000,000 bushels caused Winnipeg wheat futures to advance more than a cent to-day. Closing quotations were 1⅛ to 1 cent higher, November 60¾, December 60, May 62⅝ to ¾, and July 63⅜.

Export interest brought new business from both seaboards.

The market moved ahead for the third successive session on seaboard and Southern support induced by three-cent jumps at Buenos Aires and higher Liverpool futures. Offerings, credited to the Canadian Wheat Board, were well absorbed.

Frosts in Buenos Aires province of the Argentine and government action in fixing the domestic minimum wheat price to farmers at an equivalent to 59½ cents a bushel in Canadian money accounted for the bullish Argentine market.

Housecoat Lines Simple And Flowing

New housecoats cling to simple flowing lines and depend for the most part on material for distinction. If it's a glamorous mood you wish to court, consider a regal housecoat of reptile print velveteen in blended tones from black to pale gray, lined with vivid cerise, emerald or royal blue. The elbow-length sleeves are voluminous, the wide crushed belt of colored snakeskin matches the lining of the robe.

Fashions

Daughter will be so happy to have this flattering two-pice wool costume. Smart school girls who like variety will find lots of ideas to "match or mix," just like older sister. She can have two jacket blouses ....one with a shirt neck and one cardigan....one or plain woollen and one of plaid woollen. Wear either with the flared skirt. Then mix and match the skirt with sweaters. Again this easy to sew model of navy blue velveteen for the entire dress is lovely for Sunday—go-meeting. The pattern may be used for separate skirts and blouses.

Style No. 3337 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1 yard of 39-inch material for blouse; and 1⅛ yards of 39-inch material for skirt with ½ yard of 35-inch lining for bodice.

DOROTHY DIX

Wives Are Rarely Paid Actual Money for the Work They Do in the Home, But Their Final Remuneration Is Worth Far More Than the Business Or Professional Woman Has at the End.

DEAR MISS DIX — I have been reading in the paper that Dr. Robert G. Foster, the educator, wants housewives to be paid $1,000 a year. He says this would make wives economically independent of their husbands, and keep the husbands from regarding themselves as masters and their wives as servants. I think this is a grand idea, for certainly housewives are the Forgotten Women. Wherever you go you will find the housewife the most tired, shabby, wornout-looking woman present. Her hair is not fixed. She has not a cent to call her own. She never has a vacation. She has to be on the job twenty-four hours a day, and then her husband wonders what she does with her time and why she isn't satisfied. So I am all for bonuses for housewives.

ONE OF THEM.

ANSWER:

It would certainly be fine and dandy if every housewife had a pocketbook just bulging with hundred-dollar bills and nothing to do but buy herself good times. But until some magician arises who can turn the leaves on the trees into money, I fear that rosy dream can never become a reality.

The woman who is married to a poor man and who has a house full of children will always be the hardest-worked person in the world. She will always have to wrestle with pots and pans and the problem of stretching an insufficient income over her family's needs. She will always have to be up nights with crying babies and have her nerves shattered by noisy youngsters. She will always have to offer herself as a sacrifice on the family altar and nobody will ever appreciate her until she is dead and gone.

It isn't strange that when the housewife looks at her business and professional sisters who have spent their money on their own backs instead of buying little Mary a new coat and Johnny a sweater like the other boys have, and who have taken little Freddy to the dentist instead of going to the beauty shop themselves, they feel that they have got a raw deal in life. But, in reality, they are not so badly off as they think they are.

True, they have no eight-hour day, but they don't have to punch the time clock on the dot and be on their tiptoes all the time. They can let their household tasks slide a bit if they don't feel like doing them, and lie down for an hour or so if they wake up with a sick headache. True, their husbands may be grouchy, fault-finding and unreasonable, but they have a job from which they can't be fired because the boss is cranky. The housewife may feel that it is hard lines to work for her board and clothes, but the business woman seldom has much left over when she has paid for hers.

The housewife may complain that there is no pay envelope for her on Saturday nights and that she never sees the color of the money she earns, as the business woman does, but she has what the business woman does not have, an equity in her husband's estate, whereas the business woman has no claim upon her employer except the daily wage he pays her. And, more than that, the mother who brings up a fine family of children gets the biggest pay that any woman ever receives for her labor, and lays up a certain security for her old age.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I have been very much attracted to a girl and now the time has come when I have got to make up my mind about whether I want to marry her or not. She is beautiful, charming, very sweet, the type that will make a good and wonderful wife, but the drawback is that she talks too much and on several occasions I have actually been bored to tears listening to her. The truth is I take a lot myself, but when I am with her I can't get in a word edgewise. I am afraid that if I married her it might be terrible to have to listen to her tell her troubles that are magnified and enlarged into stories that last for hours. I would marry her in a minute otherwise. What do you think?

C. S. W.

ANSWER:

I think it highly inadvisable for two talkers to marry. A babbling girl should always marry one of the strong, silent men who merely grunts when spoken to and who have unlimited fortitude and endurance. Likewise, the man who is enamored of the sound of his own voice should select a Dumb Dora for a wife.

In all good truth no woman is to be more avoided as a life companion than the one who is an incessant talker. She bores her husband to death. She kills all peace and quiet in the home with her eternal clacking. He flees from her to save his reason and his eardrums.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a man of 50 in love with a woman of 40. We have loved each other devotedly for four years and wish to marry, but my sister lives with me and I hesitate to bring a wife under the same roof with her. I have been hoping that my sister would either marry or get a job, but she has done neither. What would you suggest?

PERPLEXED.

ANSWER:

That you stiffen your backbone and tell your sister that you are going to marry and that she must get a job and set up a home for herself. Help her to get some work that she can do and then wash your hands of her.

There is no more reason why any able - bodied, intelligent woman should be a parasite than there is why a man should be one. There are just as many jobs open to women as there are to men. Furthermore, you need't feel that you are doing a cruelty to your sister in making her get up off of the do-nothing stool and stand on her own feet. She will be a hundred times happier than ever before because for the first time in her life she will have her own self-respect.

But don't, under any circumstances, bring a wife in the house with a sister who has kept house for you. That is just going out of your way to hunt for trouble, and you will find it aplenty if you try it. At 50 you are hearing the last call to romance. Don't throw it away. Don't sacrifice your own happiness and that of the woman who loves you to any maudlin sentimentality about your duty to your sister. You've done it. Now let her do her duty to you.

DOROTHY DIX.

Senator Fallis Addresses Women's Club

"The story of the development of a people is usually the story of two great struggles; one aiming at the conquest of self," said Senator Iva Campbell Fallis in an address last evening before the University Women's Club in the Y.W.C.A.

"The early days of Canada's history show chiefly a struggle with environment. In the main it was physical features to be conquered. Now, our nation building concerns people more than physical features.

As Canadians we are not yet as a whole intelligently alive to the value of our traditions, and our patriotism is still instinctive, rather than learned. We need to become more awake to that sense of tradition and continuity which is so essential a part of the building of a nation. Canada, as a country of realized historical unity with Britain, is intensely interesting. Roots do encourage growth, and roots are Canada's birthright. Probably in no phase of the development of our young nationhood is the beneficial nature of these roots more apparent than in our legislative and administrative halls. The root? The palace of Westminster; home of the Mother of Parliaments."

Traces Development of Westminster

Senator Fallis then traced the growth and development of Westminster from its early origin as the home of a religious fraternity to its present buildings and its position as the great centre of English life and tradition.

The speaker described the formation of the early parliaments; the origin of the offices of speaker; sergeant-at-arms, and gentleman usher of the Black Rod, and their duties at present.

Work of the Red Chamber

Speaking on the composition and work of the Red Chamber, Senator Fallis said: "I think that there is probably no governing body in the Dominion which is so grossly misrepresented and so little understood. There are those who maintain today that there is no need for a Senator in Canada; that at best it is only a sort of glorified House of Commons, performing the same duties and hence duplicating work and expense. This is not correct. There are at least four outstanding points of difference between the Senate and the House of Commons.

One is representation. The House of Commons is elected on the principle of representation by population. The Senate, territorial representation. The maritimes with their small population have as many members in Senate as all the territory from the great lakes to the Pacific. Hence upon the Senate devolves the duty of pretecting minority and sectional rights.

Two: The manner in which the business of the House is carried on. The members do not have to return to their constituencies for re-election, hence are not concerned with making long speeches for Hansard, but more concerned with getting on with the real business of the country.

Three: An almost complete absence of bitter partisanship—acting more as a judiciary body.

Four: The Senate may be, and frequently is, of a different political complexion than the House of Commons, which is all to the good.

In these days of unrest and disturbance, we are secure in the knowledge that even should an extremely radical group gain control of the House of Commons, no legislation which would be detrimental to the best interest of the country could be made law, because the Senate would not allow it to pass, and so stands today as the safeguard of all that we hold dear in our British institutions and British heritage."

In dealing with the problem of national unity, the speaker said: "No solution will be reached by enshrouding ourselves in a cloak of petty provincialism. A greater knowledge by all of the problems of each will bring about a greater and more sympathetic understanding, and will be the first step towards solution."

Senator Fallis was introduced to the club by their president, Mrs. V. R. Currie, and the deep appreciation of its members to the speaker was voiced by Mrs. H. H. Graham and Mrs. Ryan.

We Noticed

....That side-combs and hair ornaments have come back from oblivion. They had to . . . How else can so many curls be kept obedient? Into day coiffures are tucked simple tortoise-shell ones, into evening curls, ornamental combs of mother-of-pearl, of white crystal studded with jewels, of gold emblazoned with swan heads. Trembling high on some combs are diamond birds, jewelled butterflies, glittering antennae, or a spray of jewelled flowers.

◇ ◇ ◇

....And among the revivals also we see bows, bows and bows. Bows are tied wherever you can tie them. Little velvet bows are pinned above the ears to compensate for the curls that are no longer there. Velvet bows are tied around waists, and what better could one desire for a bracelet? A ribbon and bow cinches in the midriff of a bolster muff . . . giving it an hour-glass waistline. Gold bows make earrings or lapel clips.

Home Service

Poor Mabel! So eager to make a good impression! Instead, her ignorance of the etiquette of introduction surprises this young man—to say the least!

A woman never rises when a man is introduced unless he's an especially distinguished person, or presented by a much older woman. She always rises when introduced to a much older woman. If she's hostess she rises for all introductions. A man always rises unless at the theatre or any place where rising would be awkward.

The general rule for introductions is to present a man to a woman, the younger person to the older.

And what to say at introductions? Our 32-page booklet gives these and other important details of etiquette. It's a guide to popularity through good manners at parties, dinners, dances, and other public places.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of ETIQUETTE FOR YOUNG MODERNS to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Buying Political Security

Many times has it been stated that spending public money is a good thing for a government. It helps to keep it in power. If a candidate for re-election is able to point to this and that showing he was able to bring large expenditures of other people's money to his riding then he has a good cause to put before the people. We are certain enough there are those who actually believe that.

That theory got a bad shaking when one comes to analyze the recent vote in United States. We take for instance the states of Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Ohio, Minnesota, the Dakotas and Wisconsin. For the most part they represent a large agricultural community, and the Roosevelt government has had many plans for helping the people along in times of drought or in seasons when production threatened to be too great. These states felt the full benefit—if any there was—of the theory and custom of paying people for non-production. Between 1933 and October of 1938 government outlay had been so great in these states that the total amounted to $27,776,662,000. Of course some of it in the way of loans has been repaid, but much of it was straight expenditure.

Speakers for the cause of the Democrats during the election appeal did not hesitate to mention freely the amount of money which had been expended; in fact they advanced it as one of the major reasons why the Democratic ticket should be elected. It was made to appear it would be plain expression of gratitude if the voters were to approve of the hand which had fed them.

What happened? All those states went Republican. Yes—they actually bit the hand which had been feeding them. So if you happen to be one who believes it is possible to purchase political security by spending public money it might be well to spend a little time thinking that over.

A Confused System

Appeals have been made to motorists in Ontario asking them to make certain that they destroy their 1938 car markers when they have obtained their new ones. The reason is plain enough; there are a number of slippery gentlemen in the province who in carrying out their operations of thieving or raiding like to have an extra set of markers which they can now and then change. It is distinctly to their advantage to have the extra set, and the way in which the 1938 season runs well on into 1939 makes it ideal for such a purpose.

The average individual when he changes his miserable looking 1938 markers for the plain and sensible ones of 1939 will probably never think of getting rid of his 1938 set. He may lay them on a shelf in the corner of his garage or he may nail them on the wall as the custom of some is. But when it comes to effectively destroying them we doubt if it will be generally done.

There might be some plan whereby a car owner would have to turn his old markers in when he was applying for the new ones, and if such a plan were possible then it would be known where the plates had gone. Anything less than that is liable to leave a number of 1938 markers around where they can easily enough fall into the hands of those who should never have them.

Paying For a Victory

It is recognized as a fact that the Allied powers have been wondering ever since the termination of the World War if they actually won it. They may have been granted the decision and were named as winners but they have been paying for it ever since, and will be doing so for years to come.

One cannot but wonder if Mussolini has found it the same with his conquest of Ethiopia. One of his latest edicts calls for a levy of 7.5 per cent. on capital and real estate in Italy for the development of Ethiopia. A tax of 10 per cent. was taken last year for the same purpose.

These two taxes amount to $175,000,000, plus the cost of the Ethiopian campaign and plus whatever other money Il Duce has been able to find to put into his veriture.

Of course Mussolini won a victory over Ethiopia. It is even so admitted in one of the articles of the Anglo-Italian understanding, but he appears to be paying a tremendous price for a doubtful venture.

Business Reasons

The wonder is that promoters keep making offers for the appearance of the Dionne children at great fairs in United States. Said offers are always in the field of the quarter million or more.

Promoters have failed to grasp that we desire the children kept where they are. Reason? Well it is a good many miles from the beaten path to the house where the Dionne children live, and in this province there is a tax on gasoline and it is also nice to have visitors stopping off at gas stations all along the road.

It is also well for tourist centres and hotels to have those who feel it is better to stay over night. Actually it is much better for us to have the thousands of American cars coming over each season to see the children than having the children exhibited where they could see them without much travel. It would be rather short-sighted to allow the Dionnes to go to New York.

Jericho Taken Again

Arab rebels have held Jericho for two months but the British troops are now in possession of this historic place. Allenby also took it in February of 1918. Time was when Jericho was a spot of beauty and in the time of Christ it earned the name of the City of Palms. During the Jewish wars it was reduced to a place of ruins, and it never again regained distinction.

Thousands of people the world over when hearing of Jericho associate it at once with the parable "A certain man went down from Jerusalem to Jericho and fell among thieves." Others might go back farther into Biblical records of conquest and think upon the time when Joshua and his priests with the ark of the covenant compassed the city seven times and saw the place delivered into their hands. But in 1938 the only fortifications to fall would be mud walls.

But Jericho, ruined or intact, is still Jericho. We read that in the early morning as British troops moved the sun lighted up the barren Moab Mountains from which Moses caught his first glimpse of the Promised Land. A neighboring hill is believed to have been the place where Christ was tempted by the Devil. Jericho is about 15 miles from Jerusalem, and writers today refer to it as collection of hovels. But it is still Jericho.

We Have So Many Problems

We do business in a larger way than we did thirty or forty years ago, but our methods have become those of world-wide associations and they are growing complex. There are a number of things which used to be comparatively simple and in turn they have become what we now refer to as "problems."

The selling of a hog did not used to be a serious matter. Around this time of year there used to be several hogs killed on most of the farms. One would probably be cut and placed in the stone cellar for winter use. If there were a couple more then they would be taken into town. If the sleighing was on there might be a dozen bags of grain going in to the chopping mill and at the back of the load would ride a couple of hogs, dressed and ready to sell. The farmer sold them direct; perhaps to the butcher or a hotel. But it was just a simple transaction between one man and another.

Today hogs are made uniform; six months and 200 pounds. Each week in London the Bacon Board meets and sets the price to be paid on the London market, and that export price pretty much determines the price which farmers are going to get for their hogs during the week. It is no longer the case of one man dealing with another, but world conditions enter in.

It used to be a simple enough thing to ride on a railway train. One went to the man at the wicket and bought a ticket and completed his journey. He was paying what he was told to pay and he took it for granted that was sufficient. As to whether the railway was making money or not meant little or nothing at all to him, and he was never asked to consider that part of the transportation problem at all.

Today the citizen who rides on the railway train pays for his ride just as he has always done, but in the case of our nationally-owned railway he also pays because the road does not earn enough to pay interest on all that is charged against it. Perhaps he does not realize that he is paying because no one comes and asks him for a donation and hands him a receipt upon payment. But he is paying just the same and there may be times when some one makes a speech and tells him he is part owner of the railway. The set-up of the whole business is so great he probably cannot understand it all, and it has also entered what we call the problem class.

Nor was there ever much bother about selling butter which used to be made on the farms. Years ago milk was set down in the cellar in shallow pans and the cream was afterward skimmed off. When there was enough on hand the churn was brought into operation and butter was made. On the day when the folks were going to town the crock of butter was ready. There was a cloth tied around the top and the crock was slipped in at the space at the back of the buggy. In the store it was traded for groceries and such and the balance paid in cash. Just another case of direct dealing, and there always seemed to be sufficient demand.

Today we have so much creamery butter in store in Canada that we could get along for two months if the cows all went dry. We have such a system for making butter now — good butter too — that we have entered the exporting class, but we find it difficult to compete with countries where they have pasture 12 months of the year. So instead of putting the crock in the back of the buggy and taking it to town the farmer looks at financial pages to see how the price of butter fat is likely to turn. He finds it low. He is actually in a world market and the direct dealing with the man behind the counter of the nearest store is pretty much gone. We have 65,000,000 pounds of butter and therefore we have another problem.

The farmer used to sell his wheat. He loaded the bags and took them to town. Chances are the grain buyer stopped him when he arrived, opened up a few bags and allowed the wheat to run through his fingers, then told him the price. There never seemed to be a time when the grain man did not want to buy wheat. The farmer got his pay at the elevator or the bank, put the money in his pocket and the deal was concluded all in a few hours.

Today we grow so much wheat that the government has to step in act for the protection and benefit of the thousands of wheat farmers in the West. In other days the farmer paid little attention to whether there was rain in Russia or the Argentine or whether United States had a drought, but today the men who buy and sell wheat have reports every hour of what is going on all over the world. It is even proposed to have all the wheat growing nations hold a conference. We read we may lose as much as 40 million dollars selling wheat, and a generation or so ago in this province farmers used to make part of their living by selling their own wheat. So wheat has also entered the problem class.

Undoubtedly we do things in a bigger way. We have lifted the moorings from the time when a man or a company used to pretty much attend to his own business. We are subject to world influences such as we never before experienced, and that is why we have what we call "problems." The simplicity has decreased and our debt has increased.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A large porcupine will carry as many as 40,000 quills. We never counted them; just took that out of a book.

It is admitted the sun has shown little change in the last two billion years. We believe that is correct enough as it has always looked just about the same to us.

When burglars robbed a Brantford store they used a ladder to enter windows on the second floor. Nothing strange in that as we know of no better way of entering such a window.

Hon. W. D. Euler, referring to the new trade treaty between Canada and United States says tariffs will be reduced but no industries will be hurt. As a bit of descriptive work we admit that is rather good, but the trick is going to be to make the industrialists see it that way.

Sara E. Collins, a stage actress of Los Angeles, is suing for $50,000, claiming she suffered a nervous shock during the recent broadcast of an invasion from Mars. Just what the market quotation on shock really is we do not know, but apparently Sara went in for a lot of it.

President Roosevelt issued a statement saying he saw no cause for alarm in the result of elections in United States. The elections were on Tuesday and the President's word of hope came on Friday, so it must have taken him a few hours to come to his cheerful conclusion.

The two minutes of silence on Remembrance Day is its most impressive feature; it is finer than anything which has been or can be spoken. It is so entirely different from anything we do at other times of the year. In those two minutes we do nothing at all except remain quiet and possibly do a little thinking.

VANITY

¶ Dear Aunt Lucile is getting vain, she really doesn't seem the same, as what she used to be; her hair long since turned shades of gray, but it don't seem to stay that way, that's how it looks to me.

¶ Her eyes are not so very good, and she don't see like how she should, you know just what I mean; I guess perhaps that's just the cause, of why she gets so many flaws, mixed in her color scheme.

¶ For Aunt Lucile read in a book, how people keep that youngish look, deception was quite fair; a person needn't shed out tears, in trying to battle with the years, or conquer graying hair.

¶ She bought some stuff and read the rules, got all the implements and tools, then started on her head; and when she was all done and through, she scarce believed the thing was true, her hair was rather red.

¶ So Aunt Lucile tried yet once more, she could not venture from the door, for folk would laugh in glee; long days she had to stay inside, she tried again and then she dyed, like bark upon a tree.

¶ What she'll get next I do not know, she wants it dark so gray won't show, she's worked on it all fall; folks tell her that it looks so queer, where it shoves out above her ear—she won't go out at all.

"NO ANSCHLUSS."

(Watertown, N.Y., Times)

EVERY SO OFTEN during the last 30 or 40 years someone on either side of the border suggests that the United States and Canada unite.... Neither country wants an anschluss. There was a time when murmurs in the United States of annexation of Canada would annoy the people of Canada greatly.

Today the subject is not an irritating one—just needless. The relationship between the United States and Canada is a model of neighborliness. Nothing would be gained by either country by unity. Canada is admittedly closer economically to the United States than to Great Britain. But this is no reason for not letting well enough alone.

WHERE FAULT LIES.

(Chatham News)

IF GREAT BRITAIN finds herself today in a position of inferiority and danger through her lack of proper armament for defence, the fault undoubtedly lies at the doors of statesmen who have been guiding her destinies during the past twenty years—particularly those pacifists who watched Germany and Italy, particularly, arming at a rapid rate, without making one definite move to stop them, and taking no precautions to meet that threat through the inauguration of adequate defence measures.

• They Say More Than They Know

SIR GERALD CAMPBELL, the British High Commissioner, was perfectly right when he denounced some of the radio commentators as distributors of "half-baked pap". Ordinarily, says The Ottawa Journal, we can dismiss this sort of stuff as a matter of no great consequence, but in the recent crisis, when millions of people were eager for news and the interpretation of news, their nerves tense, the danger of it was obvious.

The typical listener, following intently what purports to be the "inside story" of the news behind the news, does not pause to wonder how the speaker can know so much. Actually, in most cases the commentator knows no more than he reads in the papers. He scans the news and puts it forth with much wordy embroidery, an air of authority. He offers interpretation as fact, and the uninformed hearer may, and often does, take it all for fact. That is, of course, the intention.

But it is much easier to diagnose the evil than to point the cure. Broadcasting is a new industry, and it must not be unduly hampered by rules and restrictions. It has to learn from hard experience—as its patrons must learn to distinguish between what is news and what is ill-informed speculation. Commentators of the sort mentioned by Sir Gerald Campbell are of the type of newspaper writers who made what used to be called "yellow journalism." The sensation is what matters, and they decline to accept any responsibility for the harm their words may do. What they seek to give is a thrill, and do perdition with the consequences.

The race of yellow journalists is about gone, and we may hope the generation of yellow commentators will follow it to extinction. The people will learn to discount the embroidery of these omniscient young chaps who speak with the voice of doom, and those who hire commentators will discover that news and entertainment are distinct propositions.

• Canadian Organist Ranks High

PROBABLY THE BEST known member of the regular staff of the British Broadcasting Corporation was Reginald Foort, official organist, says St. Thomas Times-Journal. The B. B. C. set great store by its organ recitals, which are a most popular form of program over there. Foort was one of those artists who was mobbed on the few occasions he made personal appearance outside the studio, he had an enormous fan mail, and admirers even invaded his home to demand his autograph. Not long ago Mr. Foort resigned to go on a nation-wide tour, and it is obvious his successor must be an exceptional man.

His successor is Roderick (Sandy) MacPherson, son of the late R. J. MacPherson, twice manager of the Paris, Ontario, branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and there he new B. B. C. organist lived until he was 15 or 16 years old, attending public and high schools. There he received his early musical training, although Paris friends said he was prone to duck his music lessons to play Indians and cowboys. Sandy liked music, nevertheless, and at 12 was a proficient organist. He became organist at the Allen Theatre, Toronto, subsequently going to a bigger theatre in New York and from there ten years ago to the Empire, Leicester Square, London, where his performances have given such delight that the B. B. C. gladly took him over.

This is really one of the biggest appointments in the British Isles, outside the great abbeys and cathedrals, Mr. MacPherson will play to millions of listeners every week, probably to the largest audience of organ listeners in the world. The people of Ontario in general and of Paris in particular, will be proud of their son, and will listen-in with keen interest to the frequent broadcasts on the B. B. C. organ sent out on short waves on the Empire programs.

• U.S. and Canada Under Same Plan

CHICAGO—A new obstacle in the path of the cross-country criminal has been raised with organization of the State and Provincial Police and Highway Patrol Executives. Appointment of five regional chairmen by the parent group, the International Association of Chiefs of Police, marks the last step in the laying of a huge co-operative dragnet across the continent.

Escaping criminals will find now more than ever before that state, and in fact national, boundaries, provide no assurance of safety from pursuers. They'll find that the immediate vicinity of a crime isn't the only place in which apprehension is likely.

Under the new organization there will be developed a system of road blockades and communication systems which will, it is claimed, set up within a short time a circle of peace officers through which it would be difficult for any suspicious person to crawl.

The system will be patterned on a continental scale, after that which has been in use for more than a year in Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, and Kentucky, and under which within a few minutes it has been possible to mobilize at strategic points thousands of police officers, including state police, state patrols, sheriffs and deputies, metropolitan police, and constables.

This Midwest blockade already has proved effective, two fugitives wanted for a murder in Indiana having been caught within 12 hours, in Illinois.

A similar plan also has been in effect for a few months in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and California.

Under the new set-up officers in every state of the United States and every province of Canada will be linked in a mammoth dragnet.

There remains a need for further extension of interstate agreements providing for reciprocal handling of extradition procedure, so that after a criminal is caught he can be brought to trial in the state of the crime.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

NOW I SAY, That the heir, as long as he is a child, differeth nothing from a servant, though he be lord of all; but is under tutors and governors, until the time appointed of the father. Even so we, when we were children, were in bondage under the elements of the world:

But when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons. And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father. Wherefore, thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ.—Gal. iv, 1-7.

Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you, who are kept, by the power of God through faith unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time. —I Peter 1, 3-5.

GROWING OATS.

(Kitchener Record)

COMPARISONS ARE MADE of oat yields following sod land plowed at different times. August plowing, followed by top-working, has given an average yield per acre of 49.6 bushels. The same treatment followed by ribbling late in the autumn has average 52.9 bushels; plowing in September and top-working, 51.0 bushels; October plowing with top-working, 50 bushels and without top-working, 50.5 bushels; plowing shallow in August, top-working and replowing late in autumn averaged 51.6 bushels, and plowing in the spring, (no autumn treatment), averaged 48 bushels.

The results indicate that on medium clay loam soil, fall plowing is preferable to spring plowing. Top-working of fall plowed land does not appear to be an economical practice, except for weed control. Early plowing and frequent topworking aids in the control of perrenial weeds such as sow thistle and couch grass and also annual weeds, as mustard, wild radish, hemp, nettles, etc.

POPULAR SCOTTISH NAMES.

(London Times)

FASHION CHANGES in names in Scotland have resulted in the decline of Highland names like Colin, Roderick, Dugald, and Lachlan, and the sudden appearance and rise in popularity of Irene, Dorothy, Maureen and June, but John and Margaret remain the most used names after 80 years.

These facts are disclosed in the report for 1937 of the Registrar-General for Scotland, which, for the first time for 75 years, deals with popular Scottish names. It comments on the decline in the number of children with Biblical names, which have almost fallen into disuse.

By HELEN WELSHIMER

CHAPTER 48

THE ITEM in the paper was not long. It stated in concise language that Abbey and Ronald had been in a minor automobile accident the night before. It gave the time as half-past nine.

Half-past nine. At that time she had been sitting by the fire waiting, Judy remembered. But it was not Ronald's fault. He had not said that he was coming. She had been given no reason to believe that he ever would come again.

Besides, she could not be a substitute choice. Nor would Ronald ask her to be. He played all games fairly.

Abbey was in the hospital with a bruised wrist and some minor lacerations, the story said. Ronald was all right.

Judy wadded the paper into a ball and threw it into the waste paper can at the station when she left her subway train. At the entrance to the building where the studio and shops were, she bought a gardenia for her coat collar. Henceforth she would buy gardenias, say "good morning" with extra warmth in her voice, work 12 hours a day instead of eight and ten, because you had to keep your head up when your walls came tumbling.

She gave her brown curls an upward toss—and her eyes looked into Ronald's.

He was standing in the entrance of her building.

"You're late," he said. "Five minutes!"

She must take hold of her heart, clutch it firmly. It must not take wings and fly again. It was so weary when it came fluttering back.

"Had breakfast " he asked. "You probably didn't eat enough. Must you report in, or could you have some more?"

"I'll report in, then I'll meet you here, or won't you wait in the reception room?"

"I'll wait here. I'm beginning to like this entrance. I've spent twenty minutes in it."

Presently, sitting next to Ronald at a breakfast counter, she found herself laughing at his sallies. When the waitress left them to their grapefruit, he became serious:

"Judy, I came for advice."

"As that a friend could give, or ask! Advice.

He placed a handful of white envelopes and yellow ones on the counter.

"It's about a job, Judy."

"Mr. Heaton? You aren't staying with him?"

"If I stay in town, I will. He's a fine scout and he's been splendid. I gave their firm quite a wallop in those days when they didn't know what mess I'd become entangled in. Read some of the others."

Three other firms asked Ronald to join them if he desired to make a change. Other lawyers congratulated him on his fearlessness in fighting through the matter of the false charges without appeal for help.

Ronald took the letters and telegrams and swept them aside.

"I did have help," he said, slowly. "You gave it, Judy, why?"

"Because—well, wouldn't you have done the same thing for me?" she asked, but her heart was stirring, trying to break away from those confining walls she had erected for it.

"Is that all?" He put his hand over hers and the clasp was so strong, so warm, so vital that her heart, loosened, went winging its way.

"Not quite all," she answered him honestly.

Their eyes met, and the world drew small, so small that it was just space encompassed by Ronald's gray eyes as they searched Judy's brown ones. She caught her breath quickly.

"I love you, Judy," the man was saying. "I've loved you such a long time."

She did not remember all the fears, the doubts, the obstacles which only last night she had erected as an insurmountable barrier when she dreamed of Ronald.

"I love you, too," she said.

The grapefruit was scarcely touched, but Ronald pushed it aside and reached for Judy's hand.

"Let's get out of here," he said.

She stood up quickly, too. Nebulous as a mirage came back the evening that Craig had told her, for the last time, he loved her. There had been a moon, a sea, a string of stars, and she had worn a shining dress.

Now people shouted orders at the steamy counter, asked for checks, paid them, and it was half-past nine in the morning.

There had been a back drop for romance that other night. But this was glory and magic and fire flame and dawn against the coffee aroma of reality.

"Where are we going?" she asked then, for there were people everywhere. That contact with the world as it went down the street and up the street, on its way to work, brought her back to the questions she had been asking so ceaselessly in the night. Abbey—

Ronald sensed the interrogation in the brown eyes that clouded a little.

He hailed a taxicab and they climbed in.

"Central Park," he said, and the taxidriver raised amused eyebrows because he seldom drove young people, apparently self-possessed and dressed for business, through the park in the morning.

The world receded. Donald was speaking, but the words were not important now. In her heart Judy believed, with love's swift forgiving, that she had expected them always.

"Can you believe that Abbey was never important, but circumstances placed me in a position where—" He drew his brows together, searching for chivalrous words.

Judy smiled. "Where you had to be a gentleman," she finished.

He laughed with her then; as quickly the mirth was gone. From his wallet he took a picture, and with an odd little catch of pain in her throat Judy recognized the newspaper portrait that Ronald had shown her months ago. She had torn it in pieces that day. Now here it was, the pieces taped together. He had not tossed them away. He had saved them—carried them all this time.

He was talking.

"Last night, when Abbey's car skidded on the way to the station—she insisted on driving me as a farewell to something or other—I had a horrow that I might crash up without ever letting you know—"

Then his arms were around her, a refuge for her against the whole wide world, and his lips were hard against hers—tender, then passionate and compelling.

There was no preoccupation in that kiss. He gave a pledge. Proudly.

The chiming of a clock, somewhere across the park, brought them back to the icy paths of the metropolitan woodland, and reluctantly Judy said: "Oh, Ronald, I'll have to go to work! But I'll skim through it. I won't be long—"

"Take your time," he said. "I have to get busy, too, Judy darling. But that decision of mine on which I wanted help—I'm wondering if I should go back to Tennessee and start again where I belong or if I should stay here. What shall I do, Judy?"

What should he do? It did not really matter. For wherever he went she would be with him. Paradise was a lovely land, any land, where two people loved each other, fought together, worked together, laughed together, cried together.

She knew that now. Knew that marriage, when love was its foundation, was a kingdom that would stand. Marjorie had learned it, too. Unafraid they might follow far paths, the lesson learned.

So she turned to Ronald, eyes soft and purple with their dreams. It doesn't matter, Ronald. Anywhere will be Heaven."

He pressed her hand for a moment. Then he said: I wanted you to say that. Some time I'll show you the mountains, but maybe I'd better fight on here for awhile. But we'll go back, Judy. I want to go back."

"Until five o'clock, Judy," he said.

He was still standing by the cab, at the curb, as she went into the building. She blew him a kiss and he waved his hat. She would not be afraid any more.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

Knarf and Hanid, the shadows with the turned-about names, were dozing quietly in two corners of the playroom (shadows always like to curl up in corners at night) when all at once Knarf felt something very cold pinching the end of his toes. He woke with a start.

"Who pinched me?" he exclaimed.

Hanid opened her eyes, too.

"Did you pinch me, Hanid?"

"Of course not. I was fast asleep. No one pinched you. You must have been dreaming."

"H'mm," said Knarf. "Maybe you're right. Well, good-night. I'm going to sleep again."

Her Nose Pinched.

So he shut his eyes. He was just beginning to doze again when he heard Hanid saying loudly, "Knarf! That's not fair! You pinched the tip of my nose!"

Knarf sat up. "I didn't at all. I was lying here all the time."

"Then who did it? Answer me that!"

At that moment the two shadows heard a familiar laugh. It came from just outside the open window which faced the garden.

"It's Jack Frost!" they both shouted as they ran to the window.

Sure enough, there was their old friend whom they hadn't seen since last winter, sitting on the edge of the window-sill. He was dressed in white with a high, pointed cap which had a long, white feather. He greeted them cheerfully.

He's Back Again.

"Hello, Hanid! Hello, Knarf! I'm back again!"

"I think I'm going to like it here."

"Hello, Jack Frost! Did you pinch us while we were sleeping?"

"Yes. I hope you didn't mind. I was just playing a joke on you. Well, I'm going to stay for quite a while. I think I'm going to like it here."

"Where have you been all this while?" Hanid asked.

"Oh! I've been up north and I've been 'way down south. I spent my vacation on top of a mountain of ice, right next to the North Pole."

Jack Frost laughed. "Oh! You children are the queerest ones, always wanting to be warm. Well! I've got to go now. I've got lots and lots to do. I've got to make icicles and ice and everything nice and cold. Good-bye!"

WISE MOTORISTS WILL HAVE CARS PREPARED FOR WINTER NOW

Clare Mallory Is Winner Of Dawson Cup

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Nov. 15.—Warkworth community hall was packed to capacity last night as Clare Mallory, Cobourg public school pupil, won the R. B. Dawson trophy, emblematic of first place among Northumberland county contestants in the county finals. He will speak again November 18 at Brighton, where the district finals are held. Counties represented in the district finals will be Peterborough, Durham, Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox-Addington, Frontenac and Northumberland.

Mr. R. B. Dawson, president of the trustees and ratepayers' association for the counties mentioned, presented the trophy. Eileen Fanning, S.S. No. 21 Halidmand township, captured second place and was presented with the W. A. Fraser trophy by Lt. Charles Rutherford. Her topic was "The Junior Red Cross Society."

Cecil Downs, S.S. No. 3, South Monaghan township, was third. He was presented the McArthur trophy, donated by the late Fred J. McArthur, Cobourg, by R. J. Ross. His speech was on David Livingstone. Fourth was Roy Hart of Colborne, who spoke on "My Favourite Book." He was presented the Nelson trophy by its donor, Ex-Warden Herb Nelson. All fourteen contestants received midget trophies which they will permanently retain. A second gift to all contestants was sweaters donated by the association.

Fine Musical Program.

In addition to the fine speeches heard during the evenin, a musical programme of worthy mention was presented by Warkworth and district talent. The music presented was of such high value that it drew much favourable comment from officials on the platform.

The winning speech delivered by Clare Mallory was entitled "The Horseless Carriage." His story dealt with the plight of motorists when cars were first introduced. He told of the poor motorist who was forced to seek repairs to his vehicle—of the inexperienced mechanics who were full of curiosity but had little knowledge of how repairs should be made. The first auto race held in American took place in Chicago in 1896 with eleven entries. After four stops for repairs in the eight hour run, one car finished the race.

Present on the platform were: W. H. Nelson, Percy township; H. Wood, Seymour; Lt. C. Rutherford, Haldimand; R. J. Ross, Brighton village and A. A. Martin, Pulic School Inspector of Brighton. Following were the judges: J. Arthur, Darling township; R. W. Umphrey, Trent River; J. C. McKague, Castleton; Grant Sine, Hastings; George Grey, Plainville; Miss A. Breckenbridge, South Monaghan; C. W. Stevens and Arnold Bates, Campbellford.

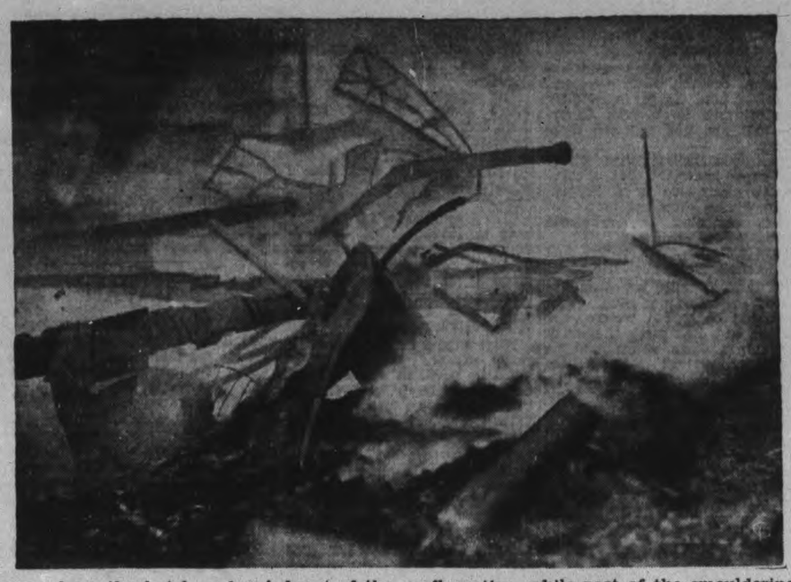
Father Ferguson and Rev. Dr. Cooper, Warkworth clergy, directed words of encouragement to the budding young orators and urged them to put every effort forward. They have chances to do great things if they will only try.

Ten Contestants.

Following were the ten contestants who also spoke and their subjects in the order they appeared: Frances Honey, S.S. No. 9, Cramahe, "Our School Section As It Was in Pioneer Days"; Yvonne Hollings, Campbellford, "A Piece of Aluminum"; Jack Dear, S.S. No. 17, Hamilton township, "Grey Owl"; Eric Finch, Warkworth, "David Livingstone"; Laura Kleiser, Brighton, "The Story of a Milk Bottle"; Robert Dixon, S.S. No. 3, Murray township, "How Farmers Could Cooperate"; Kathleen Craighead, S.S. No. 3, Seymour township, "Edith Cavelle"; Vincent Gallivan, Hastings, "Good Health is a Blessing"; Thomas Hogan, Grafton, "Flying the Atlantic"; Helen Reddon, S.S. No. 20, Brigton township, "Good Health is a Blessing."

The musical program: Chorus by all "The Maple Leaf Forever"; solo, Ferne Wilson; duet, Norma and Jessie Potter; dance, Christina Rodgers; comedy monologue, Ormond O'Sullivan of Cobourg; solo, Margaret Atkinson; piano duet, Vivian and Bert Bowen; four part song, Atkinson four; chorus by all, "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean"; vocal duet, Margaret Atkinson and Vivian Boland.

Seven Persons Perished When Disastrous Fire Swept Rouyn



Seven persons were known to have perished in the disastrous $300,000 fire which swept two hotels two houses, two stores and a garage in the heart of the business district of Rouyn, Quc. Scores of persons were trapped in the Albert Hotel when it was transformed into a roaring torch. Six persons perished, unable to escape from the hotel, and a seventh died from burns shortly after being rescued. Fighting desperately to prevent the flames from sweeping the entire town, firemen are shown, LEFT, pouring water into the heart of the conflagration, while part of the smouldering, twisted ruins are shown, RIGHT. The origin of the fire has not been determined, but an exhaustive inquiry has been ordered.

Life On Congo Is Illustrated By Rev. Tristram

On behalf of the X.L. Mission Circle Miss Jessie Martin welcomed the large audience who gathered to hear Rev. W. R. Tristram lefture on Life on the Congo. His vivid word picture was supplemented by excellent and realistic lantern views represenotative of the dark continent. A brief musical program arranged by Mrs. R. C. Searles was a pleasing prelude to the address, and included a delightful violin solo by Mrs. E. M. Foster, a group of vocal solos, "Where My Caravan Has Rested" and "I Heard You Singing," in charming voice by Miss Isabel Duthie, with Mrs. Sarles accompanying both artists. The beautiful Hawaiian music contributed by Misses Grace Hunt and Dorothy Anderson, was also greatly appreciated.

Experiences as Trader.

In a unique presentation of primitive life on the West Coast of Africa Mr. Tristram brought a wealth of interesting detail from his personal experiences as a trader among these very people. From the first picture, a map of Africa, showing its vast area, to the last, he held the undivided attention of his audience. The Gold Coast was featured in the first group showing the flat surface with its tremendous growth and vegetation where the relatively small population of natives live. Something of the products and the people was shown and it was noted that half the world's supply of cocoa was obtained here. Dramatic examples of bush travel and transportation were depicted. Primitive cannibal races of the French Congo formed a striking picture in the next group.

Re-armament Program Urged As Means Of Solving Unemployment In Canada

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 15. — Mayor Jamieson Bone of Belleville urged a huge rearmament program as the only means of solving Canada's unemployment problem in an address to Trenton and Belleville Rotarians who met here for an inter-city meeting on Monday evening. "Spend fifty million on defence and you will not only create but also have something for our future well-ebing," re claimed.

Speaking of boys work Mayor Bone drew a vivid parallel between the opportunities which existed thirty years ago with those of today. "Thirty years ago there were so many opportunities in Canada that few Canadians would stoop so low as to become a bank clerk. Banks were severely handicapped and were forced to import clerks in batches of 100 at a time. Now I have citizens begging me to get their sons jobs on the police force or the fire department and offering me all kinds of bribes."

In 1903 the Winnipeg Free Press was urging the construction of a railway that the country would be opened up more rapidly. It estimated the cost for such a road at 13 million dollars. Later the cry was taken up again but this time the cost raised to 65 million. "It cost 168 million when completed and a few years later the same paper urged the construction of the Hudson Bay Railway.

Only Two Good Crops

"There have only been two good crops in the West" declared Mayor Bone, "the one in 1915 and the one next year."

"Of homesteading in the West I know a little. I worked in a bank in a small prairie town for a few years when they were selling townsites five miles from the village post office to the 'suckers' in the East. That is what they called them. Today our railway deficits would pay for one half the entire cost of education in the Dominion, and it is the property owner who is bearing this load along with the cost of education as well. So great is the burden of taxation that farm lands and town lots are being sold at one-third of their value or torn down to escape taxation."

Education Instead of Jobs

"Our children ask for jobs and we give them education. We have raised the standards of education until they are old men before they can begin to practice law or medicine. Sudbury is a glowing example of what super-education can do to a thriving community. Faced with an ever-growing tax burden they invited the government to send up members of the municipal board to investigate conditions and they were told all that was needed was more houses to bring more revenue in taxation. Five or six hundred families should be brought to the city. As a result of the influx it would be necessary to build new schools and it was proved that the cost of building schools and educating the children would cost more than the additional taxes they would collect.

"The prosperity in England is not an artificfal one brought about by the armaments. It began two years ago and was built on England's free trade principal which formed the base for her industries which were latter protected by modest tariff barriers.

"Canada was the greatest country in the world under the worst possible management," he declared. "Democracy is a washout when it has accomplished absolutely nothing for one-half million unemployed youth who are not getting either the proper or sufficient food to eat. These same youth might far better be placed in government training camps as a part of an armament program so that they might at least develop into a stronger race of people rather than a sickly one which it will take generations to outgrow."

N. Alex McColl moved a vote of thanks to the speaker and this was seconded by Dr. H. B. Longmore. President Mac Haig of the Belleville club occupied the chair and was introduced by President Harold B. Neal of Campbellford. Mr. Harold Barrett of Belleville gave several vocal numbers and was assisted at the piano by Leo Briggs. Belleville's candidate for next District Governor Owen J. Herity introduced the speaker of the evening.

Looking Back
On This Date

This is the story of a bell which was lost and eventually found through the curiosity and perseverance of a Winnipeg lady. It is the romance of the second bell on the Red River that was brought from England in 1820 by the pioneer Anglican missionary, Rev. John West.

When Bishop Anderson arrived at the Red River in 1849 the bell in St. John's church, placed there by John West, rang out its welcome. Presumably it continued to call worshippers to the cathedral until 1862 when a chime of three bells was brought from England—"Persumably," because there is in the church records no further mention of the John West bell, nor is there any record of what happened to it after the chime was installed.

This lack intrigued Mrs. Margaret Arnett McLeod, who had been delving into the romance of the Red River bells (and wrote a most interesting little book about them). She made up her mind that she would find the John West bell, if it was still in existance. Digging into history, she found that Samuel Taylor, one of the builders of St. Clement's church, had written in his diary:

"November 15, 1862. There was a fine bell put up at St. Clement's church after dark at night, by fire and lantern light."

Why the dead of night business is not explained. But that date supplied the missing link. It was 1862 that St. John's chime had arrived, and so it was almost certain that the bell in St. Clement's was John West's bell. Pressing her search to the end Mrs. McLeod ascended the belfry and there on the bell found the figures "1820." That settled it!

It was John West's bell, which has rung out its call to worship for 118 years. What stories that bell could tell if it were given human voice, of alarms, of floods and fire, of plagues from disease and insects, of joys and sorrows, and of the heroism of the men and women who were the pioneers of the Red River and therefore, of all our Canadian west.

It is thus doubly a bell of the west, the bell of John West, the courageous missionary, and the Bell of the West of Canada. Now that its identity has been ascertained, it should be among the treasures of Winnipeg, indeed of all Manitoba.

Junior Auxilliary Holds Bake Sale

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Nov. 15—A very successful afternoon tea and sale of home-baking sponsored by the Junior Women's Auxiliary, of St. John's Anglican church, assisted by the members of the Senior W.A. Tea was served from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Receiving the guests at the door were Mrs. William Drew, superintendent of the Junior W.A., and Mrs. S. J. J. Holdcroft, and Mrs. Max Poste. In charge of the prettily decorated tea tables were Mrs. H. Davies and Mrs J. Seabrook.

Mrs. E. J. Leeson and Mrs. J. Leask looked after the home-baking table. Members of the juniors presided at booths for the sale of home-made candy, hand-lotion and a fish pond.

CHAMPION TURNIP

KENSINGTON, P.E.I., — (CP). — W. C. McLeod of this Prince County village claims the turnip-growing championship of Prince Edward Island. He grew one this summer that weighed 21 pounds.

Bar Dodge's Mother Handling Estate

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 15—(AP)—The petition of Mrs. Matilda Wilson that she be named administrator of the estate of her son, Daniel G. Dodge, was denied in probate court today and Glenn C. Gillespie, former Oakland County circuit judge, appointed special administrator.

The action, by Probate Judge James Lynch, was approval of a petition by young Dodge's Canadian widow, Laurine Macdonald Dodge, who asked that an administrator other than Mrs. Wilson be named. The 20-year-old widow is contesting the will of her husband, which left the bulk of an estate in excess of $10,000,000 to his mother and other blood relatives.

Under the terms of a pre-nuptial agreement, young Mrs. Dodge was to receive $250,000.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, November 16.

Intrigue, adventure, romance and the mysterious bear rule on this day according to the lunar as well as mutual aspects. It is quite likely that a sudden visitation of rather singular angles may be at the root of a rather revolutionary change in plans, environs or ideas. The inner nature seems particularly attuned to the new order, a radical about-face from old frustrating and disappointing surroundings, associates or philosophies. Wisely considered and adjusted, this experience may culminate in much progress and good fortune, but be careful with contracts and all writings.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of very unusual, unorthodox, and singular adventures, with intrigue, romance, and radical change in the objectives, ideas, associates and environs. These may have elements of the mysterious, occult, spiritual or emotional, although practical results and progress may be reaped if wisdom and sound judgment are exercised. Also be cautious with papers, contracts, and documents.

Rev. R. Russell Preaches At Anniversary

MILLBROOK, Nov. 15— Large congregations, particularly at night when the auditorium was taxed to accommodate the worshippers, gathered at Grace Presbyterian church on Sunday, morning and evening, for the annual anniversary services, the guest speaker for the day, who brought most inspiring messages, being Rev. R. Russell, B.A., M.Th., of Fenelon Falls.

Chrysanthemums, on mauve and gold, were banked within the alter railing, and special music was provided by the choir, its numbers being augmented by the Centerville choir. The guest soloist for the morning service was Mr. Anderson, of Peterborough, and at night the well-known radio quartette from Garden Hill, Messrs. M. Gardiner, Wesley Hanna, L. Dunbar, and Stewart Gray who gave two selections, Mr. Dunbar also contributing a baritone solo. Following the sermon in the morning, Miss Vanita Ingram sang, "He keeps loving me still".

The sister congregation at Centreville withdrew its services for the day, and the same gesture of friendship was made by St. Andrew's United Church, which had no service at night, in order to worship with the congregation of Grace Church. Rev. A. L. Sisco assisted Rev. Mr. Russell with with evening service, reading the lesson and offering prayer.

The text chosen for the morning service was from Psalm 119: 130: "The entrance of Thy words giveth light", and the minister stressed particularly the fact of the Bible being a lost book, through indifference, through reading and not practicing its precepts; and because no application of its principles is made to every day life. Loss of conscience, of the fear of God, of righteousness, and of a sense of responsibility toward God, are some of the penalties for a neglected word of God on the part of the individual, the church, and the nation.

See Anglo-German Arabs Called Off

LONDON, Nov. 15—(CP-Havas).—Anglo-German appeasement negotiations must be considered "as suspended for an indefinite time," Augur, noted foreign affairs writer, declared today in an article which appeared in a number of provincial newspapers.

"It may be taken for granted," he wrote, "that Prime Minister Chamberlain has now made up his mind upon the course he must pursue in applying his policy of appeasement in Europe. To be more precise, we will say that Chancellor Hitler has now made up Mr. Chamberlain's mind for him.

The Prime Minister cannot go on at present with conversations between the British and German governments for the implementing of the agreement reached in Munich.

"The conversations are to be considered as suspended for an indefinite time. The prime minister is obliged to take the view that Hitler himself does not wish an Anglo-German settlement to be carried through quickly.

"His speeches after Munich, and especially the new persecution of Jews and Christians in Germany, show that Hitler prefers to isolate himself upon a mental plane to which no democratic statesman can descend.

"The speeches Hitler has made after Munich, as well as the speeches he has permitted his henchmen to make, contain attacks on British politicians who, it is true, do not share Mr. Chamberlain's views on many points. Their names have been coupled in a libellous manner with the assassination of a member of the German embassy in Paris. Those attacks and those libels are anti-British.

Mark of the Terrorist In Berlin

These wrecked store fronts in a Berlin thoroughfare stand for only a fractional part of the destruction wrought by the enraged mob of Nazis that rioted, unchecked by police, through the German capital in the worst anti-Jewish orgy since Reichsfuehrer Hitler's rise to supreme power. Jewish stores were looted, synagogues burned to the ground while firemen stood by ("only able to save adjoining buildings") and any who dared to protest were beaten. Similar riots took place in other German cities, notably Munich and Vienna.

British Press Looks Favorably On Settlement Plan For B.C.

LONDON, Nov. 15—(CP Cable).—The press to-day considered sympathetically the report of Sir Henry Page Croft and R. L. Dalgleish calling for the early settlement of 10,000 British families in British Columbia at an estimated cost of £10,000,000 ($50,000,000).

"If such a scheme as this requires the strictest examination," said the Daily Telegraph (Conservative), "it also at least deserves consideration as a practical suggestion for solution of a problem which is of vital concern to the Empire. The inertia into which the once steady flow of emigration has lapsed might easily become the prelude to an imperial decline."

The Yorkshire Post (conservative) cautioned that "assistance in the form of loans, however well applied, leaves the settler particularly vulnerable in periods of price depressions." Noting the report's reference to a "Central European invasion" of Canada and an Asiatic problem '(which affects British Columbia in particular," the paper said:

"The former at any rate is a reality and it must be admitted that from Central and Northern Europe come hardy peasant stock, making excellent settlers. But the danger of the senior of the British Dominions becoming non-British in blood is not one to be minimized or neglected."

Italy Stirs Thought

The Western Mail of Cardiff (Conservative) said mass migration had become a matter of topical interest with the recent Italian move to colonize Libya, adding: "The growing sense of anxiety for the welfare of the Empire will assure more than perfunctory examination for Sir Henry's ambitious project."

It concluded, however, that "everything points to a very limited outlet for any settlers that might at present be tempted to go overseas." It questioned if it had occurred to Sir Henry Page Croft "how difficult it would be to find such a body of settlers" as the 10,000 he proposes to send to British Columbia.

The Welsh paper declared the United Kingdom had no such equivalent as the Italian land-hungry peasants, and experience showed it was difficult to find recruits even in hundreds in the ranks of the industrial unemployed "who, moreover, are receiving more from the dole than they could probably earn as settlers under the most favorable auspices. Our excellent system of social insurance is proving a most powerful deterrent to emigration."

C.I.O. Acts To Set Up New Labor Move

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15 — (AP).—The Committee for Industrial Organization, with three years of militant unionism behind it and a program for the future of political and economic action, assembled in its first convention today to establish a new labor movement.

In the same city where the founders of the rival American Federation of Labor organized a few trade unions into a group 57 years ago, chairman John L. Lewis of the C.I.O. gathered some 500 delegates to set up on a permanent federated basis a new labor movement he said was "born of economic necessity."

The opening of the convention was regarded as the most decisive step toward dualism in the labor field Lewis has taken since the fall of 1935 when he and seven other labor leaders, then members of the A.F.L., decided to organize and unorganize in the mass production industries. For their action, the A.F.L. expelled all but one of the founders.

In a report prepared for the convention sketching three years of C.I.O. history, Lewis left the door of labor peace open, but warned that efforts to destroy or divide the C.I.O. now were "vain and foolish in the extreme."

Plot On Hitler To Doom 20

PARIS, Nov. 15—(CP-Havas).—The Rightist newspaper Le Figaro in a dispatch from its Berlin correspondent to-day said 20 persons charged with a plot to kill Chancellor Hitler and other Nazi leaders probably will be put to death.

Some 50 persons said to have played minor roles in the alleged plot have already been sentenced by lower courts, the dispatch said, but the leaders are being tried by the People's Tribunal. According to the dispatch the journalist Ernst Miekisch and other well-known persons are among those confined in an isolated part of Moabit prison here.

"They are considered to form the most dangerous band of conspirators that Nazi Germany has ever known," the correspondent said.

"The existence of this terrorist group, to which hundreds of persons are believed to have belonged, was discovered by the Reich security services."

The dispatch said more than 200 hundred witnesses have appeared before the court, which has sent investigators to all parts of Germany to delve into the origins of the plot and inspect places in which arms and explosives were hidden.

2 Youths Robbed, Car Left Stalled

TORONTO, Nov. 15 — (CP). — Suburban police searched the western outskirts of the city to-day for four thugs who, two youths reported, held them up and robbed them of $5 on a lonely country road near Cooksville last night.

The victims, George Clarke, 19, and James Gould, 19, walked more than two miles to Cooksville to report the hold-up after the robbers incapacitated their car by smashing the distributor cap.

Three of the men were armed, one with a sawed-off shotgun, one with a rifle and the third with a revolver, police were told. It was reported the man with the revolver fired one shot before the four made off in an old model car.

The hold-up occurred near the Mississauga Golf Club. There is no dwelling within a mile of where the hold-up occurred. More than a dozen police officers searched the district for hours, but failed to find a trace of the bandits.

King George V's Childhood Home Chiswich House To Be Museum

LONDON, Nov. 15—(CP).—Chiswick House, childhood home of King George V and his brothers and sisters, is to be renovated and converted into a national art gallery or museum.

The historic estate, situated on the western fringe of suburban London, was purchased for the public in 1928. At that time it served as the country and town home of the Duke of Devonshire. King George himself sent a liberal contribution to the purchase fund.

There are 66 acres of ground, cricket and hockey fields and a lake 2,000 feet long and 200 feet wide. Among its exterior ornaments are vases and statues from Hadrian's villa at Tivoli and a prized Inigo Jones gateway.

In one corner of the gardens are carefully preserved plots which years ago were tended by King Edward VII's children. At present the gardens are open to the public all the years around, but the house can be inspected only within restricted hours. Magnificent carved ceilings and exquisite drawing rooms recall its former splendor.

The Emperor Alexander I of Russia and Frederick William III, King of Prussia, were entertained at Chiswick house in 1814. Thirty years later, the sixth Duke of Devonshire entertained among his guests Queen Vicotria, the Emperor Nicholas I of Russia and King Frederick Augustus I of Saxony.

Chiswick House was first made socially famous in 1774 by the wife of the fifth Duke of Devonshire. Known as the "eBautiful Duchess Georgina," the functions she gave were the talk of the day. She was also an enthusiastic partisan of Charles James Fox and caused quite a furore by selling kisses for votes in the famous "Westminster election." Fox died at Chiswick House in 1806.

Two Advisory Members To Be Named

(By A Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Nov. 14.—Appointment of two permanent advisory members of the committee on schools chiefly for the purpose of obtaining continuity of information while the personnel of the committee changes from year to year was approved by the council of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham at the opening of the concluding sessions for 1938 here Monday afternoon.

The chairman of the committee on schools is to have jurisdiction over the two permanent advisory members who are to be named by bylaw this week. It has been recognized for some years that the computing of school grants and the scrutinizing of requisitions from school boards are major duties devolving upon the committee and usually on one or two of its members who understand the regulations of the Department of Education relating to school grants. While he was a member of the counties council E. H. McKeel of Campbellford performed nearly all the arithmetical work involved in dealing with school grants. He has been succeeded in that responsibility by Reeve Roy Mallory of Percy township.

Lesson Of Experience

Experience of the committee during those years prompted the proposal that some continuity of personnel should be established to assist future councils in the dealing with school grants, especially in facilitating what is virtually clerical details.

"How long will these two permanent men be appointed? Reeve C. Calver of Campbellford enquired.

"Until the bylaw appointing them is repealed," said Reeve L. H. Wilson of Cobourg. "New men come into the council from year to year, and they are not familiar with the Schools Act. They have trouble in digesting it, and figuring out what payments should be made to school boards. I think the counties will be money ahead if they name a permanent subcommittee to act in conjunction with the schools committee."

Deputy-reeve H. Sirett of Cramahe suggested it might be better to appoint these men for a certain period of years. Otherwise they might be left on the committee too long, becoming old and out of touch with affairs.

Reeve Mallory said control of the permanent committee was in the hands of the council at all times.

Reeve J. C. Cummiskey, Manvers, said they would be named on practically the same basis as the old age pensions board.

The council decided to let the recommendation proceed to bylaw form when the two nominees will be designated.

Connecting Links

"We recommend that the original agreements stand.

"We recommend that in case any urban municipality needs extensive maintenance or repair costing more than the amount of the yearly rebate, or where in such case the county council deem it advisable to rescind the old agreements, this procedure should be taken, and if necessary a new agreement entered into whereby such local municipality shall agree to forego its rebates for such amount of money as the counties council shall deem fair and just.

"We recomend that where urban municipalities have expended money on their connecting links in 1938 that they be reimbursed by these counties, and that these counties maintain all county connecting links during the period of the original agreements."

Reeve Cummiskey's report relates to agreements made by the counties and the towns and villages in which streets were paved as conecting links in the county road system ten years ago, involving an expenditure of almost one million dollars. The minor municipalities agreed to forego their customary rebates on county road expenditure as a consideration for these pavements, the periods varying from ten to thirteen years, some of them already expired as in the case of Hastings. It transpired that the municipalities should not have been allowed maintenance which the counties carried on, and although the Department of Highways could have demanded payment for that work they agreed to forego it, and begin on a new basis. As the report indicates, new agreements may be entered into if any of the municipalities desire them.

A minority report by Reeve Wilson, Cobourg, seconded by Reeve G. A. Edmonstone, Bowmanville, recommended that from January 1, 1939, rebates on county roads be allowed urban municipalities to be repaid in the year following the year in which they were earned.

On Mr. Wilson's motion the rebates report was referred to F. D. Boggs, K.C., counties solicitor, for a written report.

Commissioner's Report

Reeve Cummiskey also read the report of the county roads commission.

Assumption of the following roads as county roads was recommended: the road between the townships of Seymour and Belmont, approximately 2¼ miles of which belong to the united counties; the road in Haldimand township from provincial highway No. 45 to Centreton, a distance of three miles.

It was also recommended that some roads in the county snow plowing schedule be left out because they are not improved sufficiently to have snow plows sent over them.

warranted invasion of personal freedom, that it would cause a loss of income to producers, and was of benefit mainly to the processers of milk in the big cities.

A Norfolk resolution urging the Federal Government to make a closer study of marketing problems to enable the producer to obtain a fair proportion of the consumers' dollar.

Reeve C. Devitt, chairman, said that as a Conservative he wished to be just to the Liberal Government. He thought the government was trying to be fair to the consumer and producer, and it had tremendous problems on its hands.

"If they weren't doing their best for the farmer they shouldn't be there," Reeve Devitt said. "They have a mighty problem in unemployment and it doesn't make any difference what government. I have every faith in the present government, although I'm opposed to it, and I think they are sincere and are trying to administer things in the best interests of this province."

Reeve Gooding said none of the recent governments had done anything worth while for farmers. They let the packers and other manufacturers charge anything they liked.

Deputy-Reeve Merrill, Percy, said he appreciated the sentiment of Reeve Devitt, but regretted to hear his opposition to the present government at Ottawa. "I don't think you could better it anywhere," he added, and smilingly said the committee was drifting toward political topics. "The past government got into doing things for the farmer far more than previous governments used to do, and I think the present government is following them up to a certain extent. One trouble is that farmers won't stick together enough."

Reeve Devitt said he was glad to associate himself with any government that was trying to do anything to help the farmers. "And I don't want anyone to think I'm casting any reflection on the present government." The resolution was endorsed.

A Wentworth County proposal asked the government to give Ontario winter wheat the same financial consideration as the wheat grown in the West, and that freight rates to Montreal be investigated especially in regard to rates from Western Ontario. Deputy-Reeve A. W. Annis, Darlington, said grain rates from Ontario were disproportionately higher than from Western Canada, and an adjustment should be made in the interest of grain growers of this province. Reeve Devitt remarked that a factor to be considered was the dependence of the West on its grain crop, whereas Ontario was largely engaged also in mixed farming. At the same time he believed some consideration should be given to grain producers of this province.

Speaking to a somewhat similar petition which he had forwarded, W. Fred Fallis of Cavan urged that the Federal Government be pressed to take some action to bring the price of flour in line with the price of wheat. "We are not asking the government to fix the price of Ontario wheat. We learn that they stand a loss of $50,000,000 as a result of fixing the price of Western wheat at 80 cents." At the present price of wheat flour should be about $2.25 a hundred, Mr. Fallis said. The levelling of farm machinery prices to a basis more nearly equal the value of wheat, and thereby the farmers' income, was also advocated by Mr. Fallis' petition which was endorsed with the Wentworth resolution.

trade agreement with the United States."

King Welcomes Manion

He welcomed election of Dr. Manion, chosen party leader at the national Conservative convention last July. Mr. King was "pleased that the government's objective and that of its followers in London, Ont., in not opposing Dr. Manion's return, has been appreciated by the electors of that constituency, and that the new leader of the Conservative party will be able to take his seat in the Commons when parliament reassembles at the beginning of the new year."

The by-elections, climaxing campaigns that saw Dr. Manion conduct a cost-to-coast speaking tour, left Conservative membership in the House at 38. There are 17 Social Credit members, six Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, two independent, one reconstruction and one United Farmer of Ontario-Labor.

London electors turned out in cold, dull weather to give Dr. Manion an unofficial total of 11,354 votes, a majority of 3,145 over the 8,209 polled by his opponent, Everett O. Hall, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation candidate and London school teacher. The total vote was about 10,000 less than the 30,101 cast in the 1935 general election when the late Major F. C. Betts, Conservative, defeated six other candidates.

A Split Vote.

In Waterloo South, where the by-election was necessitated by the death last summer of Alexander Edwards, Conservative, Mr. Homuth was given a total of 7,818 votes in the riding's 105 polls, against 3,756 for the Liberal candidate, Mayor Serviss, and 3,582 for Mitchell, the C.C.F. color-bearer. The Homuth plurality was an all-time record for the constituency, which was visited during the campaign by national political figures.

In the Brandon by-election, it was Mr. Matthews' second successive attempt to capture the seat from the Conservatives. He polled 200 votes less than the late Lieut.-Colonel D. W. Beaubier, whose death this year necessitated the by-election, in the last election.

Mr. Matthews won comfortably from George Beaubier, 34-year-old son of the former member, and J. H. Wood, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation candidate, who lost also in the 1935 general elections. Mr. Matthews polled 6,593 votes yesterday against 5,614 for Mr. Beaubier and 3,547 for Mr. Wood. His majority over Mr. Beaubier was 979.

Constipated? You Should Get at the Cause!

Lots of people think they can't be "regular" without frequent trips to the medicine chest. "I just dose up and get it over," they tell you. But doctors know they don't "get it over" at all—until they get at the cause of the trouble!

Chances are it's simple to find the cause if you eat only what most people do—meat, bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If that fits you, your ticket is a crunchy breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the intestinal tonic, vitamin B1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and just watch the old world grow brighter! Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

realized he had made the tracks they discovered near the boat's beaten shell two miles away.

Plane Saves Life.

Hade the plane not been at hand when Boucher was found, he probably would have died on the way to hospital, doctors believed. It would have been necessary to take him four miles by boat, 14 miles by country road and 17 miles over the Sault Ste. Marie-Sudbury Highway to hospital.

The four young people were members of a party of six that went to the lakeshore on Sunday. Helen Senior, 22-year-old sister of the missing girl, and Elwood McCrae, 25, decided not to go out on the stormy lake. They waited until midnight for the others to return, then brought word to Sudbury that they were missing.

Mrs. V. L. Kenney of Sudbury, who with her husband was marooned on a little island in the lake, told of seeing the boat sink slowly into the water, then watching the young people cling to the half-sunken craft and try to push it toward shore.

"Then we lost track of it in the dark," she recalled.

Boucher told his rescuers haltingly what he could remember through the 24-hour nightmare. Butchart and Boucher got into the water as the boat began to fill, trying to push it to shore in the darkness. Then the others climbed out over the front to lighten the boat.

Boucher turned to look at Butchart "and he wasn't there." Fearing the others might become panic-stricken if they knew Butchart was gone, he talked as if he were talking to his companion.

"We were still a long way from shore when I seemed to lose consciousness," Boucher said. "I don't remember anything more. But I didn't see the others again. I don't know what happened."

thought now opposes any consideration of this as the basis for a peace understanding, largely because of English resentment against the anti-Semitic drive).

Each of the editorials linked shafts at Britain with speculation on new decrees being prepared by German authorities against the approximately 600,000 Jews.

The Jews found scant comfort in the assertion by Propaganda Minister Goebbels that they were not destined for ghettos, for newspaper headlines observed: "No Ghetto But Sharpest Division."

The name of Fritz Warburg, prominent Hamburg financier and brother of the late Felix Warburg, New York banker, was added to the list of Jewish business leaders jailed since the anti-Semitic wave started last Thursday, with smashing of shop windows and burning of synagogues by crowds seeking to avenge the slaying in Paris of a German embassy secretary by a Jewish youth.

Goebbels' statement there would be no ghetto for German Jews came in an interview with a Reuters news agency correspondent and was given front page display by the controlled press today.

The minister of propaganda added:

"Measures may be expected, making an end of the situation in which Jewish families of two or three live in villas with 20 or 30 rooms while adequate living quarters for the German people are still lacking."

Goebbels made clear the "Measures against Jews were not applied against foreign capital undertakings."

Relief Deficit Not Expected Exceed $8,000

That the deficit at the end of the year will not be worse than $8,000 and there are hopes that it may be reduced to about half of that sum was the reassuring statement given by Ald. James Dutton, chairman, to the members of the relief committee at a meeting Monday night. This estimate was much more pleasant than the prospects several months ago gave any justification for hoping.

Figures presented in the monthly report showed that the total expenditures for relief here this year up to the end of October amounted to $108,468.55 of which the government paid $58,322.23, leaving $50,146.32 as the city's share. The total civic relief appropriation for the year was $47,500 which means that at the end of October the city had paid out $2,646.32 more than had been put aside to pay for relief for the whole year.

A Relief Project

It was announced by Chairman Dutton that the Point St. Charles rip-rap work being handled as a relief project and Relief Officer Metheral explained that the relief men who worked on the scheme would be paid at the rate of 40 cents an hour and the amount they earned would be deducted from their relief.

Chairman Dutton said that it had been necessary to do some fumigating and the relief committee had found that it was a very expensive operation. He thought it might be good business to investigate the possibility of having this work done by some of the civic departments, purchasing the necessary equipment.

The committee thought so too and Ald. Dutton was empowered to go into the matter and given power to act.

Bovine Beauty Shop

TORONTO, Nov. 15—(CP).—The cattle room of the Royal Winter Fair resembled a huge, bovine beauty parlor to-day as farmers and their helpers groomed their animals for appearances in the judging ring. SIGNS OF SUMMER.

APPLIES FOR RELIEF.

A young man who applied for relief at Monday night's meeting of the relief committee admitted that he had refused an offer of $25 a month and a house for himself and family on a nearby farm. His argument was that the man who owned the farm did not pay others who took a similar offer. The application was taken under advisement by the committee.

RUMOR FALSE.

Storekeepers who were checked this morning report there has not been any further Mexican bills in circulation. A report that a $20 Mexican bill had been obtained in one of the city offices was found to be untrue. Large department stores are unlikely to be deceived according to one manager who said, change for any bill of $5 or over is made by a special clerk, and in this way the store is doubly protected.

Last year many were turned away from the door.

Chrysler, president of the Card, Mat and Board Company, and a regular visitor to the Peterborough Card and Paper Works.

Traffic Tied Up By Snowstorm In Haliburton

The first storm of winter struck across the northern section of Peterborough county Monday night and left snow piled more than a foot deep across main roads. Traffic was at a standstill, trucks had to turn back in their routes, as a whistling wind banked the snow across the highways.

The York Trading Company reported this morning that one of their trucks had to turn back a few miles the other side of Kinmount. Driver Jack Livingston said that yesterday afternoon the roads were almost completely bare, but by evening snow was piled a foot deep. He became stuck north of Kinmount on the road to Gooderham and had to be towed out. He returned to Peterborough, his load still intact, snow and ice frozen to his truck, giving it a mid-winter appearance. Another of the same company's trucks got through to Gooderham, but its driver telephoned to say he could not return immediately, that the road was now impassable. He is expected back sometime to-day. Roads are in good shape as far as Fenelon Falls, but about a mile and a half beyond that point they begin to get heavy, according to Mr. Livingston. An inch of snow was reported in Lakefield.

Chimney Cleaning Time Has Arrived

"Get your chimney's cleaned," is the warning issued today to householders by Fire Chief George Gimblett, following a series of chimney fires in the city during the past twenty-four hours. And Dan Douglas, genial Superintendent of Employment Service of Canada, comes to bat with the information that he has dozens of men who will be only to willing to clean them for any householders who may shirk the job.

Chimney fires are so common they are often shrugged at, but nevertheless they can be extremely dangerous affairs, according to Chief Gimblett. More than one house has been burned down by a fire that started in the chimney, he warned.

He urged all householders to examine their pipes and make sure they do not need to be cleaned. Six chimney fires have been responded to by city firemen within the past day, he said.

Downeyville Annual Fowl Supper Draws Crowd Of Over 460

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOWNEYVILLE, Nov. 15.—The ladies of St. Luke's parish held their fowl supper here in the hall on Thursday evening. The tables were tastefully decorated and laden with chicken, turkey and goose. Supper started at 6 p.m. and it was after 8 before all were served. There was a very large crowd present, with about 460 being served.

After all had been served the crowd went upstairs in the hall, where the Cambray Dramatic Club presented their play, "For Pete's Sake" by a very efficient cast and during the evening the Weir brothers from Omemee favoured the audience with vocal selections.

The hall was crowded and after the play was over an old time party was held and every one enjoyed a few hours of social intercourse.

The county road board have purchased a road allowance from Mr. Vincent Perdue and they are extending the road along the lake shore and will be a good road for the winter and easy to keep open. The township crusher is back here working on the road at the school.

Foiled Car Thieves Miss On Two Shots

THAMESFORD, Ont., Nov. 15 (C.P.).—Provincial Police to-day sought two men who left two bullet-holes in a garage door when their attempted theft of an automobile failed.

Herbert Conway of Thamesford was awakened early yesterday by the barking of his dog in his garage. At the same time an employee, Arthur Haines, came on the two men, one in the garage and one outside standing guard.

"Let 'em have it," one cried as they ran off. He fired two shots which missed Haines and lodged in the garage door.

Cutting across the fields, the men were fired on by Haines. Provincial officers took up the search, but were unable to find trace of them yesterday.

Hitler Placing Church "On Spot"

OTTAWA, Nov. 15 (CP).—Chancellor Hitler of Germany is putting the Christian church "on the spot," Dr. John W. Woodside, Moderator of the United Church of Canada, told his congregation at Chalmers Church here last night.

Hitler was denying the fundamental tenets of Christianity, he said. He was "screeching across the world" that the greatest power was force and is saying "that the world belongs to him who can take it and that all our talk about goodwill, brotherhood, co-operation, justice and love is just silly nonsense."

In answer to the philosophy that the spoils belong to the superman, the Church would have to validate its claim. To do this the Church must present its message in a new way and by a new method.

Students Visiting City's Industries

The entire graduating class in the Commerce and Finance course at Queen's University visited Peterborough's industrial plants today. The students and their professors, who numbered 42, visited the Canadian General Electric Company, the Quaker Oats company, and many others. They lunched at the Kawartha club at noon, halfway through their tours of inspection, and continued in the afternoon. The visit is a yearly one, is made by each Commerce and Finance graduating class.

Miss Clemena Long Again Heads A.Y.P.A.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Peterborough Local District Council of the Anglican Young People's Association was held in All Saints' Church Monday night, with representatives from many communities in attendance.

Rev. G. J. Bousfield, rector of St. Luke's church, was elected honorary president. Miss Clemena Long, of St. Luke's church branch, was returned as president by acclamation. Other officers elected were R. C. Ramsden of Campbellford, first vice-president; Miss Earnshaw, Lakefield, second vice-president; Eileen Gynane, St. John's church branch secretary; Victor Sedgewick, St. Luke's church branch, publicity secretary; Ken Gibson, St. George's church branch, treasurer; Rev. R. Holden of Bethany, chaplain.

The officers were installed during the service at All Saints' church, by Rev. G. H. Johnston of Omemee, retiring chaplain. Other business conducted included the establishment of the date for the organization's annual banquet, to be held at St. John's church on December 14. The association decided to sponsor a hockey league this year and to this end will later appoint a committee representative of each branch.

City May Establish Wood Camp On Perdue Farm In Ennismore

A wood camp, providing employment for a dozen or more of Peterborough's unemployed may be established this winter near the western end of Chemong Lake, as the result of an offer made by Dr. D. J. Perdue and brought before the relief committee at Monday night's meeting through the medium of a letter from Alderman G. N. Gordon.

The letter stated that Dr. Perdue had bought the old Michael Perdue farm on the shore of Chemong Lake and was willing to sell the city the hardwood on the property at $1.50 a cord and allow a relief camp to be established there to do the cutting. There were 65 acres of woodland in the property, the communication stated.

Ald. Dutton, chairman of the committee; Ald. Malcolm McIntyre and Relief Officer Metheral were authorized by the relief committee to deal with the matter.

Sawdust Used As Fuel For Furnace

A new and inexpensive method of heating a home is being introduced these days to Peterborough by H. R. Scott of the Scott Coal and Lumber Company, at his home on Geraldine Avenue.

A simple devise for burning sawdust, attached to the furnace, gives him hopes of cutting his fuel bill to one quarter its past total. A popular devise in British Columbia, where it has been used for a few years, Mr. Scott's new burner is an innovation in Peterborough. On the Pacific Coast demand for sawdust has become so great that some large companies are turning all their wood ends and slabs into the product, once useless.

Green Sawdust Best.

Reading about the success of the burner in British Columbia, Mr. Scott investigated and found from government authorities who had studied it that all sawdust might be used as fuel in the burner, unless it was more than two years old. Green sawdust is really best, burning more slowly than the dry product.

Only a week ago he had a burner installed at a total cost not exceeding seventy-five dollars, and so far his home has been kept as warm as ever. During the week he burned 65 cubic fet of sawdust, which is worth about $1.37. Mr. Scott expects this cost to be increased by about fifty percent during extreme cold weather. In any case, it is a large saving.

The burner is a simple affair, with a large hopper that will hold a large quantity of sawdust so that it does not need to be attended often. There is no blower, and virtually no ashes. A week's accumulation of ashes could have been placed in a quart sealer. The furnace serves little purpose except to transmit the heat from the sawdust, glowing in the burner outside the door, into the pipes.

Honor War Dead In Fine Service

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, Nov. 15.—There was a large attendance at the Remembrance Day service held here Sunday afternoon. The first part of the service was held at the Memorial Community Hall where wreaths and flowers were placed, the Last Post sounded, two minutes' silence observed, the Reveille played and flags raised.

Following this the crowd went to the town hall where the service continued. Hymn "O God Our Help in Ages past," led by Salvation Army Band, was sung; Scripture erading, Revelations 21: 1-7; prayer, Rev. Dr. J. R. R. Cooper. This was followed by an address by Rev. Dr. J. Bernard Rhodes, M.A. of Cobourg. This interesting and instructive address will be remembered by the large audience not only for being appropriate to the occasion but for the many facts and lessons of truth pointed out.

Hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers" and prayer and benediction by Rev. G. R. Duncan, closed the service.

Farewell Sermon By Rev. T. Floyd

WARKWORTH, Nov. 15.—Owing to inclement weather and the Armistice service being held on Sunday afternoon, the service at St. John's Anglican Church was not as largely attended as it would have been. This was Rev. T. Floyd's farewell sermon and he chose as his text, "Surely God is in this place, and this is the house of prayer." Rev. Mr. Floyd expressed his deepest regret in leaving Warkworth. While we were few in numbers, the hearty support and cooperation he had received during his seven years of ministry was most gratifying.

As Rev. Mr. Floyd and Mrs. Floyd and daughter Ruth leave our midst to minister in St. George's Church, Peterborough, they will carry with them the best wishes of a host of friends. The regard Warkworth people had for them both and their willing service in the church and the kind hospitality in their home cause general regret and sense of loss they leave.

Bonarlaw W.A. Busy Finishing 2 Quilts

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, Nov. 15 — The regular meeting of St. Mark's W.A. was held in the basement of the Church on Thursday, with an attendance of eighteen members. The meeting was to have been held at Mrs. Morley Barlow's, but as the W.A. had two quilts to quilt they thought it more convenient to have it done at the church. It was planned to hold a pot-luck dinner in the basement on November 24. The members of St. Mark's W.A. are making clothing for the bale to be packed early in December. The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. Swayne, and a dainty lunch was served by Mrs. M. Barlow.

The Rambling REPORTERS

A NIGHTMARE.

A local garage man who wrove his family across the floating bridge two nights ago when the wind was strong, and waves washed across the bridge floor buffetting the car, said he had no rest when he went to bed after the terrifying experience. The man said he was afraid to apply his brakes for fear he would skid into the lake, and never spoke a word while driving across. That night he had a hair-raising nightmare, dreaming he had drowned his family when the car went through the railing. He has resolved now that in future any trip he takes to Ennismore, regardless of the weather, will be made by way of Fowler's Corners.—McG.

Model Airplane Is Made By Art Geraghty

Five hundred hours of hard work lie behind the appearance of the "Cavalier," Peterborough's first model airplane that actually flies, which is on exhibition in the window of Millard's Sporting Goods Store on Charlotte street.

A beautifully executed piece of work, its maker, Art Geraghty, claims the plane will rise from the ground or water or snow, and will travel anywhere from 25 to 50 miles an hour. The ship is a mid-wing monoplane with a wing span of nine feet, is 70 inches in length, and is mounted now on floats. Despite its sturdy appearance it weighs only seven pounds.

The motor is a one-third horse power gasoline affair, turning the 20-inch propeller from 4,500 to 7,000 revolutions a minute. It weighs only 25 ounces. Just completed, the machine is now on exhibit, but will soon be tested out in actual flight.

Millbrook Enjoys Band Concert

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Nov. 15. — A large audience greeted the Millbrook Citizens Band for its concert in the Town Hall on Friday evening, its leader, Lieut. W. Peryer, of Peterborough conducting the program.

Massed upon the stage, the band presented a smart appearance with navy trousers, white shirt waists, and blue ties, the opening number being a march, "Alma Mater." Previous to the initial selection Lieut. Peryer explained that the two players of alto horns were absent owing to a motor accident.

An overture, "The Debutant," preceded the selection "Round the Camp Fire," the audience being invited to join in singing the familiar airs; a special arrangement of "United Empire" was followed by a medley of Irish airs in which the listeners were again asked to join; and a hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers," particularly appropriate to the spirit of Armistice Day, was then played. "Selections from Opera Land" completed this part of the program, little Herbie Ball being brought to the platform to make the draw for the lucky numbers on the five geese for which tickets had previously been sold, after Lieut. Peryer had thoroughly shaken up the container.

A neat sum was realized from the sale of the tickets, and the admissions to the hall on Friday night, those selling at the door being the band president, George McKnight, and the treasurer, D. R. Fowler.

Concluding the entertainment the band played "The British Navy, and the audience was dismissed with the National Anthem.

Blizzard Victim Is Unidentified

MACLEOD, Alta., Nov. 15 (CP).—Police continued their efforts today to identify an elderly man, victim of last Thursday's blizzard, found frozen to death near Monarch, 20 miles northeast of here.

One report said his name was Macdonald and that he was about 53 years old, but his clothing bore no identification marks, and a companion, Norman Alm, 24, of Viceroy, Sask., was unable to aid authorities. He had known the man only one day, meeting him in Lethbridge.

No inquest will be held. The unknown man will be buried here.

Alm, who battled through the snow to the railway track seeking aid for his new-found friend, is recovering in hospital here from severely frozen feet, hands and ears.

A track walker found Alm unconscious on the track. A few minutes more and he would have been crushed under a train.

Bell Presented To New School By R. F. Downey

R. F. Downey, genial school inspector, who has been a tower of strength to the trustees of the Queen Elizabeth school in Smith township, presented the principal of the school Monday with a silver plated school bell, suitably engraved.

W. H. Frise, secretary of the School Board, in commenting on the gift said, "This is just another indication of the great interest Mr. Downey has taken in the new school, ever since the idea of a suburban school section was mooted. His advice has been sought and generously given during the past two years."

The school is now settled into a daily routine with 65 pupils attending, and everything is working smoothly No further improving of the grounds will be done this year, but next spring the lawns will be put in shape and it is believed the wire fence at the west side of the school will be torn down, and an effort made to do a permanent job of grading the approaches.

The school is in a perfect setting and enhances property values in the district considerably.

Art. Woodcock Seeks To Appeal

Arthur Woodcock, 23, who pleaded guilty in police court here some weeks ago to eleven charges of car theft, theft and breaking and entering and who is now confined in the Ontario Reformatory at Burwash, has made application to appeal against his sentence and to ask for a new trial.

Woodcock was sentenced to 21 months determinate and 18 months indeterminate, the sentence in all the cases to run currently.

Two younger companions, one of them Woodcock's brother, received shorter sentences for their share in the affair. Most of the offences took place on the one night during which three automobiles were stolen and abandoned in a badly damaged condition. An effort was made to drive one of the machines, the property of Reeve Charles Tanner of Lakefield, into the canal.

50 Cents Half-Cord For Delivering Wood

Although Relief Officer Arthur Metheral reported there had been applications from several persons who were willing to do the work at 40 cents a trip, the Relief Committee of the City Council decided on Monday night to pay the Parks Committee 50 cents a half-cord load for delivering relief wood.

Hitherto the Parks Committee truck has been doing the work at 40 cents a trip but Chairman Ald. Walter Stocker said that it would pay his committee better to put the truck away for the winter and lay off the driver than to continue delivering wood to relief recipients at that rate.

On motion of Ald. Wilson and Gordon it was decided to increase the rate to 50 cents for delivering half-cords. Most of the loads delivered are of that size and Mr. Metheral claimed he had seen five loads leave the civic woodyard in an hour but the majority of the committee favored the increase.

Seabiscuit's Victory A Triumph For Handlers As Well As Horse

By Lou Bindman
(Central Press Canadian Turf Writer).

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. — Who outjockeyed War Admiral? Was it Georgie Woolf, the rider of Seabiscuit, or Charles S. Howard, the 'Biscuit's owner and his managerial staff?

The recent running of the Pimlico Special in Maryland in which Seabiscuit and War Admiral met for the first time in their notable careers to the detriment of the latter, is generally accepted as proof positive that Seabiscuit conclusively asserted his superiority over the Riddle champion, and thereby over the entire handicap division.

Prior to that contest, only War Admiral stood as a stumbling block in Seabiscuit's upward surge to absolute supremacy in the turf's "heavyweight" division. Now that he has successfully hurdled that obstacle, the chief aim of the Howard establishment is to point the Biscuit more directly in the direction of Sun Beau's money-winning crown.

Santa Anita May Do It.

Seabiscuit has earned $340,480 to Sun Beau's $376,744 and will take the lead if he wins the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap for which he is headed.

For while it is conceded that Georgie Woolf outsmarted Charley Kurtsinger, who was aboard War Admiral, in the Pimlico Special, as far as actual riding is concerned, the foresight and vision of Seabiscuit's owner and trainer played a considerable part in outgeneraling the Riddle establishment.

The kernel of that belief lay in the oft-demonstrated fact that War Admiral never showed a partiality for the Pimlico oval. This is a point manifestly bore out by the record. While the Admiral has tasted victory at the "Old Hilltop" course, it always came to him there only after the hardest kind of cattle, as compared to the facility with which he humbled fields elsewhere.

War Admiral's race in the Special was only his third start at that track. Previously he won the Preakness Stakes there as a two-year-old and last year's inaugural of the Pimlico Special.

Close in Preakness.

In the Preakness of 1936, War Admiral was virtually all out to beat the flying Pompoon by a head. Leading all the way, he had to be put to a severe drive to win. In last year's Pimlico Special, War Admiral, for the major portion of the mile and three-sixteenths journey, appeared to be a gonner. Masked General, a fellow never regarded as measuring up half-way with the Admiral, swept into a lengthy lead and was running by himself at the head of the stretch when he suddenly bolted to the outside, permitting the Admiral to come through and snare the award.

Undoubtedly, in checking up the record of their opponent, Seabiscuit's handlers must have come across this flaw in the Admiral's record and judged it as a factor which might work in their favor. That was simply applying the old turf principle of "horses for courses." While Seabiscuit, himself, has been beaten at Pimlico, he nevertheless displayed a greater fondness for its soil than War Admiral.

"It Might Have Been."

It had been planned to race Seabiscuit and War Admiral in a special $100,000 match at Long Island's Belmont Park last May when the whole thing was suddenly called off because of an ailing knee suffered by the Howard flyer. But had they raced there, that mightn't have been such a snug spot for Seabiscuit since Belmont Park is one of War Admiral's most favored battlegrounds. Some of the Admiral's most popular and easiest triumphs at Belmont, such as his three-length win in the Belmont Stakes and his three-length triumph in the Jockey Club Gold Cup, and ot pit a horse against him there was to meet him in his own trenches.

But by finally settled the point at Pimlico, War Admiral ventured into territory beset with hardship. With the "horses for courses" adage weighing heavily on him, he again displayed a dislike for the track.

SEABISCUIT

...will his thundering hooves amass a larger fortune than those of Sun Beau did?

Admiral, in the Pimlico Special, as far as actual riding is concerned,

One of the best outside wings doing their stuff on the gridirons this fall is Tony McCarthy, above, a regular at the position for Ottawa Rough Riders, top team in the Big Four. Ontario Branch Threatens To Quit W.A.A.F.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 15—(CP)—Ontario Branch of the Women's Amateur Athletic Federation of Canada today threatened to discontinue affiliation with the parent body if certain demands presented by Mrs. Irene McInnis of Thorold, Ontario Branch president, are not met.

Highlight of the opening of the two-day bi-annual W.A.A.F. meeting here, Mrs. McInnis stated demands during presentation of the Ontario Branch report. She had been given full authority for her statements, she said, by the Ontario executive and its affiliated bodies.

"The first purpose in view is that I secure a position on the Dominion board, thus being recognized as the Ontario representative to the parent body," Mrs. McInnis said. "The second purpose is that we demand a fair margin of proportional representation."

She said Ontario had more than 1,400 athletes registered with its branch affiliated with the next largest branch. Her report was tabled and will be considered during tomorrow's closing session.

"We are not forcing these moves with our eyes shut," she continues, "but are well aware that the advantages of our affiliation are all with the parent body. . . . It matters little whether the province affiliates or not. Ontario is athletically independent."

Health Be Considered.

President Ann Clark of Vancouver in her report, cautioned branch members to guard health of girl athletes in the early adolescent age of 15 to 18 years. She advised consultation with physicians periodically and advocated qualified physical directors in all branches of sport.

Miss Clark, who accompanied the British Empire Games team to Sydney, Australia, last spring, commented briefly on the trip and said Canadian athletes brought great respect to the Dominion with their sportsmanship and appearance. She believed the intense humidity in the southern continent was instrumental in the "comparatively poor" showing of Canadians.

"Boils and rashes—something an athlete never experiences—were results of the heat, and we all know how weakening they are," Miss Clark said.

Wall Satisfied.

Irene Wall, Montreal, in the secretary's report, reviewed Canada's showing in the 1934 and 1938 British Empire games and was eminently satisfied with results at Sydney. She believed Canada was advancing rapidly in track and field and said the Toronto Lakeside Club should have the best four sprinters in the country in a few years if they are properly coached.

British Columbia and Maritime delegates, Miss Clark and Mrs. W. E. Stirling of Halifax, respectively, advocated a coach for both feminine and masculine teams when next Canada competed in international competition. Mrs. Stirling felt Canadian women would have made a better showing at Sydney had they been accompanied by a coach.

Noel MacDonald, centre, and captain of Edmonton Grads basketball quintet was nominated for the Rose Bowl Trophy awarded to Canada's outstanding feminine athlete.

Callura Defeats Jimmie Gilligan

BUFFALO, Nov. 15.—Jackie Callura, colorful Toronto bantam, defeated Jimmie Gilligan of Hamburg, N.Y., in a sensational bout, main event of last night's boxing card here.

Callura all but won by a knockout in the second round. He had Gilligan hanging on desperately when the bell rang.

After that Gilligan recuperated and gave Callura a stiff argument. Each sustained a cut eye.

School Burns

CORNWALL, Ont., Nov. 15—(CP)—Fire destroyed a Separate school in the Ninth Concession of Cornwall township yesterday but the 28 pupils and the teacher, Miss Imelda MacDonald, made an orderly escape from the building when warned by a passer-by who noticed the flames on the roof.

It was believed a spark from the chimney set fire to the roof of the small frame building. Construction of a new school was expected to begin shortly.

New Tobacco Ground

MONTREAL, Nov. 15 — (CP). — Success of a tobacco production experiment in Joliette county proves "beyond the slightest doubt" the natural resources of Quebec are inexhaustible, premier Maurice Duplessis said at a service club luncheon yesterday.

"We should cease being destructive of nature and go after the progress of the province of Quebec which does not yet occupy the position to which it is really entitled," he said. "It's natural resources are inexhaustible."

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

OUGHT TO BE a Local Chapter of the Union of Padded Brethren here. On account of it looks like the Petes' puck coach this season will have a busy time separating the wheat from the chaff—as it were—when the goalies begin trying out for a spot. Ray Harding, last year's regular, will have competition. Gord Clarke of the intermediate Bees and Earl McNabb of the junior Colts are a couple. With Whitey Dann, newcomer to town, and now one Bill Hoar. The latter hails from the west where he last played senior goal with Prince Albert Millers six years ago. He is 28, weighs 165 and stands five feet, 11½ inches on his rubber heels. Hoar has lived here some time and says he'll try for a place with the team. But Bill is quite modest and isn't at all sure if he can return to form after a layoff of six seasons. "At least," he grinned, "competition will make the net-minder who catches on work his best to make the place and hold it." Quite right.

TRENTON FLIERS will have to do some rebuilding to ice a good hockey team as they've lost most of last year's gang. Guys like Lalonde, the McNeeleys, Partridge, Cowley, Legris, Halward, Laing, etc. Leaving Gibson and Lecompte of the 1936 champs, and a few more of the '37 team. Several are expected from Camp Borden, and they'll probably round up another fair squad. Belleville Redmen feel optimistic with only Murphy and Wilson of last year's crew gone, while St. Louis and Barriage are back after a season away from the Quinte crowd. Eddie Thomas would like a couple more, including one right winger, and then he'll be all set. McCreary moves up from junior and will do oke on defence. Dunno yet what class of hockey the Bellevillains crave.

A Keen Time Ahead

THERE'LL BE a community dance, an oldtime barn hop, in the Keene Town Hall on Wednesday eve at which time members of the Keene intermediate "C" champs of the O.S.A. for 1938 will receive provincial crests and the Harry Sniderman Trophy. No further word on a banquet by the County Council to the village team which brought an Ontario title to this district. We hope they haven't forgotten already. The Keene players had to dig deep into their own jeans at times to make up expenses as they waded through stiff playdown competition in rubbing out Wooler, Deseronto, Collingwood and Port Colborne in quest of the championship. Club batting was .335 and they had a fine fielding average, too, a shade over an error a game.

IN RESPECT to the mitt card at the Brock this Friday p.m., we are advised by the promoter that there will be no delay between bouts this time, and that it will be the finest fistic show staged in Peterborough in years. His Toronto stable sends word that Auggie Ferguson will give Nick Orlando the battle of his life. He'll have to be good to take the local 135-pound scrapper with the meat-axe right hand. Nick is a cool experienced pugilist, who has been a topnotcher for several years, but they say this Ferguson guy will make him show all he has before the bout ends. The other main bout is between Norm Hill, ex-Detroit welter, and Buster Scott of Toronto. Babe Anthony manages Hill, who won 14 scraps out of 15, in the Dynamic City. Scott is reported exceptionally fast and a sizzling puncher. So they both sound okay to us.

With No Love Lost

NONE THE LESS, we always lean toward a grudge battle, and the semi-final is something of a grudge. Riverview Club recently claimed Dutch McIlmoyle—who beat Amato of Toronto here two weeks ago—was the best middleweight in the district. But it gets an argument from Frank Spencely, bashing lineman with the late Orfuns in senior football. They never cared much for each other, as lots of fellows around town will tell you, and Frank threatens to take Dutch apart to see what makes the noise. McIlmoyle is in rare shape now and figures he can win handily. It'll be a rip-snortin' scrap as long as it lasts. A real crowd-pleaser. Rest of the card includes a Jordan-Joiner joust, a Quirt-Redmond bout, and a rasslin' match between Rene Labelle and Ren Gazelley, outside heavyweights.

• • • • • •

SPEAKING of the Orfuns' loss in Sarnia last week-end, the writer in that town says: "Peterborough went into action with Mike Loucks, their No. 1 backfielder, and Capt. Harry Marsh, their most effective forward pass antidote, out of action. Then they lost Don Crowe, their booting ace, on the kickoff — and the game but futile band were caught like David without his slingshot. With their three Big Berthas silenced, Peterborough's senior freshmen did the best they could under the circs, but there must have been times when they wished they were back again in the Lakeshore loop trading punches with Cobourg's Galloping Ghosts or Lindsay's Inlanders. The Orfuns tried hard enough; they didn't take their licking without some protest, but nobody expects a man with a pea-shooter to stand up long against a marksman equipped with a good gun and shooting with intent."

They Allow Static

GRID FANS AND WRITERS in Canada frequently sneer at the kicking on U.S. fields, where 40-yard punts are average—and they point to the 60- and 70-yard blasts of Stirling, Box, Isbister, et al. But it must be pointed out that U.S. football has different rules and doesn't stress long hoofing. It would be suicide in the States to punt the oval 65 or 70 yards. On account of it would give the receiver's interference time to form around him before the tacklers arrived, and a big runback—or a touchdown—would likely result. The coaches over there emphasize accuracy in booting, and the kickers must not hoof toward a rival. The ideal kick is a 40-yarder which goes out of touch, giving the opposition no chance to run it back. But in Canada, no running interference is allowed, hence the receiver is strictly on his own.

SECRETARY CLIFF CADD of the Petes' puck club announces that arrangements have been made at the "Y" whereby prospective hockey players—either senior "B" or junior "B"—may have indoor workouts Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights, till ice is available. Starting at once. Walter Ferris, physical instructor, will put the players through their paces in regular gym workouts these nights. Senior players are also allowed use of the handball court for conditioning, and this game is the best one for limbering up the frame that we know. Gym drills commence at 8.15 o'clock, and all puck players hoping to make either team are invited.

Thieves Fire Barn?

GANANOQUE, Ont., Nov. 14 — (CP)—Arthur Roberts, operator of a chicken farm three miles west of here, announced last night he would ask a fire marshal's investigation into a fire that destroyed his barn yesterday.

Roberts said there were 150 chickens in the barn last night, and that a search of the wreckage failed to reveal remnants of the birds or crates they were packed in.

Roberts said he believed thieves stole the birds and set the barn afire.

Accidental Death

ROUYN, Que., Nov. 15 (CP)—An accidental death verdict was returned last night by the coroner's jury investigating the death of six persons who drowned Sunday night when an automobile plunged into the Kingo-Jevis river 10 miles east of here.

1770 Symphony

EDINBURGH, Nov. 15—(CP).—A missing symphony, known to have been composed by Haydn in 1770, has been discovered in the music library of Edinburgh University by Dr. Hans Gal, Austrian composer, who sought sanctuary in Great Britain following German occupation of his homeland.

The symphony, which does not appear in the complet edition of Haydn's works, is in three movements and is so short its playing requires only ten minutes. It has already been performed here under the baton of Dr. Gal.

Conlin Suffering Fractured Skull

KINGSTON, Nov. 15.—Jerry Conlin, star inside wing of Queens seniors, is in the Kingston General Hospital with a broken spine, suffered in the game with Varsity at Toronto on Saturday. Conlin complained of a pain in his back after the game, but attended a dance at night and returned with his team-mates to Kingston Sunday night. When the pain continued he was X-rayed yesterday morning and the fracture was discovered. His injury in medical terms is a fracture of the transverse process of the third lumbar vertebrae without serious complications.

He was reported resting much easier in the hospital last evening, and it has not been decided about a cast.

Conlin is one of the few remaining regulars of last season's championship team and his play has been one of the features of the Tri-color games all this fall. He learned his football at St. Michael's College.

TORONTO, Nov. 15 — (CP). — Herbie Carnegie, Toronto Negro, who has starred in junior hockey ranks the past few seasons, will play this season with Toronto Young Rangers of the Big Seven Junior "A" group of the Toronto Hockey Association.

Carnegie, a student at Northern Vocational school, was awarded to Rangers at an O.H.A. executive meeting here last night. The Negro star was originally scheduled to play for his school in junior "B" ranks but switched to Rangers.

The school protested the action but the executive ruled that since Carnegie was playing his last year as a junior, his request that he play with an "A" club be granted.

BIG SIX GRID AMALGAMATION IN '39 WOULD ELIMINATE ORFUNS

Locals And Montreal Cubs Would Be Sacrificed If Two Groups Joined Up

With the football season drawing toward a close, there is considerable talk of an amalgamation between the Big Four and the senior O.R.F.U. groups—possibly dropping one club from each to make it a big Six league. It is merely in the rumor stage yet, and nothing is likely to come of it for another year or two. Red Burnett of the Toronto Star writes:

"There is no doubt that such a loop would improve the calibre of rugby from Saturday to Saturday. But if such a group were formed, what would happen to Peterborough Orfuns? This club joined the O.R.F.U. this season and deserves better treatment than Mr. McCaffrey (of Ottawa) would give them. They have done very well in their first year. A lot better than most people expected and rate another chance in higher company. Next year, they might turn out a championship club, a lot funnier things have happened in this world of sport. So before any Big Six is formed, the present O.R.F.U. clubs would have to give serious consideration to the senior grid pioneers in the Liftlock City. Like most other writers, this scribe believes the day is not far distant when we'll have a Big Six or Big Seven league, but don't bank on it for 1939!"

Argos Buck It

And Bobby Hewitson of the Toronto Telegram goes into the matter more fully, quoting an Argo official as saying that club is against a Big Six idea—despite McCaffrey's recent report in Montreal that it was a sure bet for next year. The Tely scribe states:

"Jim" McCaffrey, who is manager of the Ottawa Rough Riders, makes the statement that a Big Six League, to replace the Interprovincial and Ontario Unions, is about to be created. James may know a lot more than we do about the situation, but only a day or two ago a man high up in the Argonaut football family stated that Argonauts had been against the idea and are still against the idea. McCaffrey claims Argonauts were against the plan, but have now reversed this stand and have given their O.K. to the suggestion. This may be true, but in view of the avowed distaste all along held by the Argonauts, it doesn't seem just in order that they have reversed in such quick order. The Big Six idea is by no means new. For some years it was felt that the taking of Balmy Beach and Sarnia into a unit with Argonauts, Tigers, Rough Riders and Montreal would be the ideal arrangements.

There are quite a number of obstacles to overcome if the Big Six is to become a reality. First and most important is the matter of grounds in Toronto. Second is the family squabble now going on in Montreal. The Cubs have taken quite a loss. Our information while in Montreal was that the loss will be at least $5,000 with Len Peto carrying most of it, and Art Cayford assisting in the carrying of the loss. But they are determined to carry it on next season, according to reports. The battle between the Nationals and the Cubs is best described as a 'dog fight" and anyone who trys to butt in to bring a peaceful settlement is likely to get smacked and smacked hard. Nationals are said to have a surplus but we imagine when the red figures are put against the black figures at the end of the season the red will prevail.

The Ground Situation

"When did Mr. McCaffrey get permission to talk for Argonauts?" said an Argonaut official yesterday afternoon. "We are against the six-team idea, and are still against it." So that is that. If Argonauts and Beaches should, for example, go into a Big Six, it would mean five home games for each, and, of course, three home games for Varsity in the Intercollegiate. Argonauts would get three cracks at Varsity Stadium, and perhaps four. The whole thing would create pretty well a clash in senior games and out of it all some heavy losses to shoulder. Of course, some are shouldering losses now, and perhaps feel under the Big Six plan they might lighten the burden, and perhaps with the increased competition turn those losses into profits.

Who to Toss Out?

On the simple procedure of working it out on paper, which is not so easy, of course, as the actual operation, Cubs might be cut from the Big Four and Peterborough from the Ontario Union. That would leave Montreal Nationals, Ottawa Rough Riders, Hamilton Tigers and Sarnia as unopposed in their own centres. The clash in dates would come only in Toronto, and as Beaches, Varsity and Argonauts have had those clashes for some seasons, the idea would be nothing new. Getting back to Mr. McCaffrey of Ottawa and his utterances, he remarked: "Argonauts have settled their differences with Beaches." The Argonaut official who spoke to The Evening Telegram disclaims any differences with Beaches, and says Mr. McCaffrey is talking through his hat.

Favorites Fail In Short Card Dufferin Meet

TORONTO, Nov. 15.—Although only the final heats of two unfinished races carried over from Saturday constituted the Dufferin Driving Club's offering to "Little Saratoga" harness race patrons yesterday, the favorites still refused to get down in front for the wagering gentry.

Sir Esme, straight heat winner with a grand performance on Saturday, was not eligible for the final heat of the free-for-all, and Simcoe Harvester was installed as the public's choice. But it was Victor Lee which came through with a meritorious effort to cop the honors.

It was the same story in the concluding heat of the 2:24 pace. Wayne McKylo, winner of two heats, as well as placing second in the third heat Saturday, naturally was the fancied steed. But Carroll Direct proved the upsetter of the old dope bucket.

The bitterly cold weather made for a fast track and the time of each race was exceptionally good.

The next racing program at Dufferin will be offered on Wednesday.

It seems about time the football "Bowl" breezes started blowing Oklahoma's way. . . Kansas scouts, who looked over the Oklahoma team before their game, reported Tom Stidham's line was the best the Jayhawks would see in two years. . . . That didn't exclude that Notre Dame front wall. . . Oklahoma hasn't been scored on through the line all season. . . .

George Selkirk reports the Yanks will come up with more punch and power in '39. . . With Charley Keller and Buddy Rosar in from Newark. . . Just for the records, that was Baseballer Eddie Collins' boy who scored Yale's one and only touchdown against Princeton.

Silvio Coucci, the jockey, will have to be remembered when listing the grander comebacks of the year. . . Since his nerve came back last spring, the Bronx hossman has booted home about 80 winners—Marty Burke, Jack Dempsey's old No. 1 sparmate, is matchmaking for the Auditorium Boxing Association, down N.Awleans way. . . Prize money is already in the safe for the $5,000 Augusta (Gam) Open, Dec. 2-4. . . And Sammy Snead, Denny Shute, Lawson Little and Jimmy Thomson are already in line for it. . . Baylor's Bullet Joe Patterson is still looking for his first minute off in 13 football games over two seasons. . .

Galento Takes 3 Rounds To K.O. Thomas

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15 (A.P.).—Fight fans wondered to-day about Tony Galento's unimpressive return to the ring after an absence of four months.

Appearing in his first fight since he was taken ill with pneumonia in midsummer, the beer-loving saloonkeeper of Orange, N.J., scored a three-round technical knockout over Harry Thomas of Eagle Bend, Minn., at Convention Hall last night.

A crowd of 10,000, which Promoter Herman Taylor said paid a gross gate of $23,000, booed long and loud as Thomas dropped to the floor five times in the third round before Referee Tommy O'Keefe stopped the fight after 2.20 of the round. Galento weighed 236, Thomas 198½.

Galento, ranked by the National Boxing Association as the leading challenger for Joe Louis' heavyweight championship, first flattened Thomas for a count of seven. The second count went to four, the third to nine, and the fourth to six.

The fifth time Thomas was down for eight. He tried to get to his feet, but when he fell to one knee Referee O'Keefe waved Galento's hand aloft in token of victory.

Most of Galento's punches were left hooks and seemed light blows, but Tony explained in the dressing-room afterward, "I hit him on the temple. I don't know why the crowd booed. I've knocked out tougher guys with lighter punches."

Did What Was Expected.

"Yeh," chimed in Joe Jacobs, Tony's manager. "What can the guy do? He gets out there and does everything that's asked of him. It isn't his fault if the other guy can't take it. Did you see those socks Tony landed in his belly?"

"That's right," Tony said. "He grunted when I hit him there. Hey, doc, he hit me in the Adam's apple. I can hardly swallow."

The commission physician applied an ice pack and Tony said he felt better.

"Tony hit me behind the ear coming out of a clinch," Thomas said. "That got me dizzy. Later, I thought he was open and tried to nail him, but he got his left in just like Louis did against me. This guy Galento is shrewder than he looks, and he can punch, too."

"I knew the fight was over when Galento hit my boy in the stomach," said Nate Lewis, Thomas' manager. "I said to myself, there go his legs. It's all over."

Ontario Threatens To Quit W.A.A.F. Unless Given More Votes And Delegate On Dominion Board

WINNIPEG, Nov. 15.—(CP)—Ontario's threat to discontinue affiliation with the Dominion body, presentation of the Rose Bowl, and election of officers are principal business before delegates to the biannual convention of the Women's Amateur Athletic Federation of Canada in closing session today.

At the meeting opened yesterday, Mrs. Irene McInnis of Thorold, Ont., presented demands of her branch, insisting upon greater voting power for Ontario and representation of an Ontario delegate on the Dominion board. She said if these demands were not met "Ontario will no longer be a member of the Dominion body."

Ontario had more than 1,400 athletes registered with its branch this year, three times the number of the next largest branch.

"We are well aware that the advantages of our affiliation are with the parent body," she said. "It matters little whether the province affiliates or not. Ontario is athletically independent."

Four Out For Bowl

The Rose Bowl, awarded to Canada's outstanding feminine athlete will be awarded today. Four nominations have been received and more are expected.

Noel MacDonald, centre and captain of Edmonton's Basketball Grads was nominated yesterday and added to a list that already included Robina Higgins, Winnipeg javelin tosser; Lynda Adams, Vancouver diver, and Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen, Toronto's Canadian golf champion.

Misses Higgins and Adams represented Canada at the British Empire Games at Sydney, Australia, last spring.

President Ann Clar of Vancouver, in her report, advised branch members to send their athletes to physicians periodically to guard health of girls in the early adolescent age of 15 to 18 years.

Miss Clark and Mrs. W. E. Sterling of Halifax advocated a coach for both feminine and masculine teams when Canada competes next in international competition. Mrs. Sterling felt Canadian women would have made a better showing at Sydney had they been accompanied by a coach.

World's Racing Ace Yanked To Court For 37-Mile Clip

London, Nov. 15 (AP).

CAPTAIN GEORGE EYSTON, holder of the world speed record for automobiles—his 357.5 miles an hour made Sept. 16 on the Utah salt flats—today was fined £1 ($5) in Bow Street police court for exceeding London's 30-mile speed limit.

A traffic policeman who flagged the racer down on the Embankment beside the Thames River said he was ripping along at 37½ miles an hour — about one-tenth of his record.

3 Curious Bears Cure Doctor Of Napping Upon His Deer Watch

Donald, Ont., Nov. 15 (CP)

A CERTAIN Toronto doctor, who prefers to remain unidentified, will think twice in future before falling asleep on a deer runway.

The doctor came to this Haliburton county district to shoot deer during the week-end. Today, he is recovering from fright caused by an inquisitive mother bear and two cubs with a taste for chocolate bars.

The hunter fell asleep in a clump of bushes while waiting for deer. He awoke to find a huge black bear staring at him curiously. A cub was licking contentedly at a piece of chocolate sticking from his hunting coat pocket. A second cub was trying to get in a few licks, too.

Springville W.M.S. Host To Fairmount

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SPRINGVILLE, Nov. 15.—A very interesting meeting of the Springville W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. J. Grandy. The society had as its guests the ladies of the Fairmount W.M.S: Mrs. W. H. Morton, president of the Presbyterial W.M.S.; Mrs. Rowe, Peace and Temperance Secretary of the Presbytery; Mrs. B. McClennan, Recording Secretary of the Presbytery; Mrs. Renaud and Mrs. G. Baird, both of George Street W.M.S.

Mrs. A. Hunter, president of the home society, opened the meeting by giving a very cordial welcome to the guests. She said that the visit of the Fairmount ladies in the fall was always looked forward to.

Mrs. H. Rowan, president of the W.A., was welcomed back after her absence due to illness in her home. She thanked all those who had remembered her in various ways during that time.

It was decided that the W.A. should pay the manse taxes for 1938.

Mrs. Hunter then asked Mrs. C. Hanbidge, president of the Fairmount W.M.S., to take charge of the remainder of the program.

Mrs. Hanbidge read the scripture lesson, which was taken from Luke 24.

Mrs. Renaud gave a delightful solo, which was much appreciated.

After the singing of a hymn, Mrs. Hanbidge introduced the speaker for the day, Mrs. Morton, who gave a very interesting and helpful address. She commended the societies on meeting together at certain times during the year. She felt that much could be gained by each society in the fellowship which they would enjoy at these joint gatherings.

As this was the Autumn thankoffering meeting, Mrs. Morton said a suitable text would be "Give thanks unto the Lord and forget not all his benefits." The speaker dealt with the mercies that are particular to us and to our land and made an urgent plea that we should share these gifts with those not so fortunate. She said we must be willing to give ourselves to God and his work. "It is our innermost thoughts that God looks on," she said, "and He does not want the gift without the giver."

Mrs. Morton dealt briefly with the religions of other countries. She compared these religions of terror and superstition with Christianity—a religion of love and joy. She said we must not forget that Christ's last words were, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."

Mr. Hanbidge thanked Mrs. Morton on behalf of the societies for such an inspirational address.

A duet, which was much enjoyed, was then given by Mrs. H. McBain and Miss B. Allan.

Mrs. Rowe then spoke briefly on the work of her department. She invited those present to attend if possible the W.C.T.U. convention. She spoke of the great work to be done in this sphere and read some of the resolutions which had been drawn up by the Temperance Union.

Mrs. B. McClennan brought brief greetings from the Presbytery, and voiced her pleasure at being present.

After the closing hymn, Mrs. Morton pronounced the benediction.

The meeting was followed by a social hour. At the close of this, Mrs. Hunter thanked all those who had participated in such a splendid program, and also the hostess, who had given her home for the occasion.

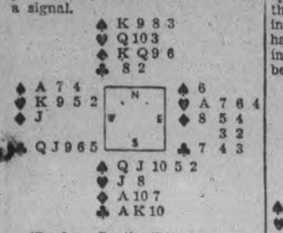
WAIT FOR A SIGNAL

WINNING THE first round of a suit led by the declarer, trumps or otherwise, may necessitate your having to guess what suit to return. If you think your partner will not be able to follow suit on the second round, it is sometimes wise to hold up your ace and not play it until you have had a chance to see his discard. If there is any particular suit he would then like you to lead, he can indicate it with a signal.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

The bidding on this deal was 1-Spade by South, 2-Spades by North, 3-Spades by South and 4-Spades by North.

Against this bidding, West elected to lead his singleton J of diamonds because of his trump holding. If he could get East in the lead, he hoped to be able to trump at least one diamond.

South won the first trick with the diamond A and immediately led the spade Q. West took the trick with his A and switched to the club Q. As a result the declarer lost only two tricks.

East remarked that the hand could have been set if West had led a heart. West replied that this would have been a pure guess, but East pointed out that, as South had bid without the A and K of his spades, he no doubt held five and therefore East held only one. Passing the first round therefore would have given East a chance to signal in hearts, so that there would have been no guess.

How should South play for 4-Spades after the lead of the diamond K?

Havelock To Get Fourth Teacher At High School

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Nov. 15. — The important question of adding a fourth teacher to the present Havelock High School staff, as urgently advised by Inspector Jennings, was brought up and thoroughly discussed at the regular November meeting of the Board. Trustees Mrs. Rigby, Spencer, Lancaster, and Chairman G. Denike unanimously agreed that steps must be taken immediately to relieve the present situation in the school.

Principal R. W. Goheen, addressing the Board on conditions in the High School which make a fourth teacher practically a necessity, said that one might be hired as an emergency measure to assist the present staff from January to the end of the school term. The attendance this year has been increased by over twenty, and at present Miss Thompson and himself are taking an extra half-hour every day in excess of regular hours, in order to teach certain subjects required by the students.

The Inspector has already stated that an extra teacher must be hired or the Upper School dispensed with next September, as it is impossible for the staff to teach all the Middle School subjects in the present setup.

"An extra teacher," said Mr. Goheen, "will make a big difference in the final results as this will allow an extra period for each subject every week, with fewer spare periods."

The question of space for a fourth teacher can temporarily be solved by utilizing the science laboratory, where classes are being held now twice during the week when music is being taught.

A committee composed of Trustees Rigby, Roche, and the chairman were appointed to arrange for the hiring of an emergency teacher, whose duties will commence the first of January.

Principal Goheen reported that the agricultural inspector had informed him that there would be a grant up to $150 for equipment and $35 for garden and supplies.

The Finance Committee was authorized to rent the lot owned by the village at the west end of King Street as an experimental plot for the agricultural course, and to hire a man to do the fall and spring plowing and cultivating.

On motion of trustees Lancaster and Mrs. Rigby, the chairman and D. C. Drinkwalter were authorized to prepare a list of tools required for the agriculture course, and to purchase them to the best advantage from the two local hardwares.

Boatman's Struggle Beaten By Canal

TORONTO, Nov. 15—(CP).—Edwin Carpenter's second attempt to reach Georgian Bay waters has failed according to word reaching here last night, and the unemployed Toronto man has started back for Toronto in his weatherbeaten $50 craft, the Ella-Jack.

Carpenter set out for Trenton late last week with a crew of four. He reached that point yesterday but was unable to get into the canal.

Point au Baril—and employment—as their destination, Carpenter, his wife, four children and two passengers set out from Toronto late last month. Heavy seas a mile and a half out on Lake Ontario threatened the life of everyone aboard and possible drowning was averted after the engine broke down when a youthful passenger reached shore by swimming and summoned lifesavers.

The boat was outfitted with the engine of an ancient automobile donated to the family and Carpenter, leaving his immediate family, at home, once more braved the icy and treacherous lake waters. He finally reached Trenton to find the canal closed. He said he encountered heavy storms for 14 hours.

Stolen Radium May Kill Thieves, Finders

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 — (AP). — Police began a city-wide search today for a lead-lined case containing $1,500 worth of stolen radium—potential death in unwary hands.

The case was stored in a safe taken Saturday night from the Brooklyn office of Dr. Julius Kaufman. Police found the empty safe a mile away.

Fearful the thieves may have discarded the case as worthless, Inspector Michael F. McDermott sent patrolmen to all Brooklyn public schools to warn children not to pick up the object if they find it.

Five needles, each valued at $300 and containing 10 milligrams of radium, were in the case. Police said the needles would cause serious and possibly fatal burns if handled directly.

Cheque Artist Held By Police

TORONTO, November 15—(CP)—Police said to-day that Carlos San Roman, 19, arrested at Kitchener last night in connection with an alleged cheque-swindling plan, is a University of Toronto student.

San Roman's arrest followed a three-day investigation in Toronto, Hamilton, Kitchener, Peterborough and other Ontario cities where forged cheques were passed in business places. San Roman was charged with false pretences.

Detectives said San Roman told them his father was a wealthy Mexican lumberman and gave him money to pay his university fees. Authorities had not determined the number of charges to be placed against San Roman.

A Toronto room allegedly rented by the youth contained a cheque-perforating machine. Also arrested were Patricia Soboskie, 19; Connie Chad, 19; Florence Shea, 17, and Harry Chad, 17.

San Roman was remanded until November 18, when he appeared in court to-day. The Crown suggested bail be set at $5,000.

MISS LAURA GOETZ

The following experience is typical of the thousands who are surprised and pleased with the good result given by this grand new medicine.

"For two years I suffered terribly with my stomach," said Miss Laura Goetz, 958 Maitland Street, London, Ontario. "My digestion seemed so weak that even the lightest food caused gas, acid risings and heartburn. I would feel nauseated and sick and didn't care whether I ate or not. Headaches troubled me a lot, I was a victim of constipation and often suffered pains of rheumatism in my arms, back, legs and joints.

"I often felt terribly worried about myself and tried most everything, but nothing really helped me until I started taking your wonderful Syntona medicine. It has helped my stomach so well that I can now eat anything I want and have no gas or distress of any kind afterward. My food digests fine without me even thinking about it. The headaches and rheumatic pains have gone away and my bowels move regularly every day. I am only too glad to tell about this so that anyone else suffering as I did may also get the same good results."
